Wording of Bill to Be Changed

OTTAWA (CP) — The language of a proposed bill that would give unions the right to strike over the introduction of new methods of production is "misleading" and will likely be changed, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said Monday.

Mr. Mackasey said in an interview that some critics have interpreted the bill—with some reason"—in such a way as to suggest unions would be able to block desirable technological changes in industry.

In fact ,he said, the purpose of the bill is to encourage unions and managements to include technological-change provisions in normal collective-bargaining agreements.

The minister said the labor department now is considering a modification of the bill which would encourage such bargaining without jeopardizing innovation.

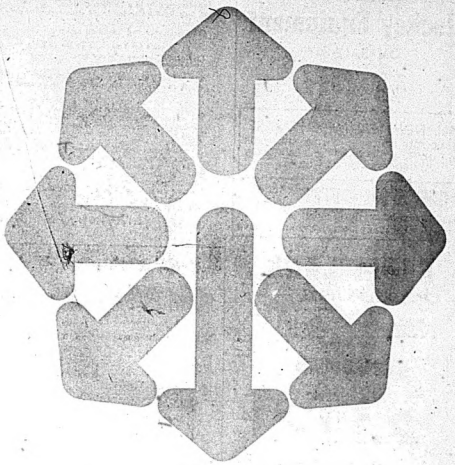
The bill, to reform federal industrial relations legislation, has been sharply criticized by business executives who fear it might increase union power.

Philip Wylie Dies at 69

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Philip Wylie, the iconoclast-sociologist whose book Generation of Vipers incensed American women in 1942, died here Monday of a heart ailment. He was 69.

A resident of Hawaii the last three years, he and his wife were visiting friends in Miami.

In Generation of Vipers, Wylie claimed a generation of American mothers had established a tyranny over the intellect and wills of their sons and that the United States was centred around mother worship.



Flaw Makes Stamps Valuable

OTTAWA (CP) — The chances are slim. But it's possible that on your next trip to the post office you could come away with a sheet of stamps worth $1,000.

The Canada Post Office announced Monday that in April it issued at least two and possibly 10 sheets of stamps without perforations.

An undetected flaw in be manufacture of the 4fx-cent Maple in Spring issue caused the sheets to be distributed without perforations in the four upper rows and along the bottom edge of the bottom row.

Percival Poll Proves Four Out of Five Coaches Lack Respect

TORONTO (CP) — "Everyone talks about the problem athlete," says coach Lloyd Percival, "but no one ever asks the athlete what he thinks about his coach and why he thinks so."

With that idea in mind, Percival, director of the Fitness Institute in Toronto and technical director of the Canadian Coaching Association, started a survey of athletes.

His survey covered 365 athletes at professional, international and top amateur levels and he presented his findings at the recent symposium on the art and science of coaching conducted by the coaching association and the Canadian Olympic Association.

Percival said he found that only about 22 per cent of the athletes he interviewed either liked or respected their coaches. another 10 per cent were unconcerned but the remainder disliked their coaches for various reasons.

The athletes rated personal types disliked and feared by athletes.

The rogue's gallery included the following:

The Shouter—"He believes in the power of decibels, the higher the noise level, the greater the lesson . . . Only the guys close to him hear him. The others are lost in the echo. They turn him off eventually because they resent him."

The Super-Friend—"He always has his arm around someone—anyone. He tries to be very close, so eat with the boys, drink with them. He's a nice guy but he's a throwback to the athlete's parents. The athlete doesn't need another dad. He needs a leader."

The Tough Guy—"This one wants to be like Vince Lombardi or Knute Rockne or Punch Imlach. He just doesn't realize they had other qualities. He believes in blood, sweat and tears, six laps, slaps and starts . . . You have to hate him to win because he's a dictator."

The Scientist—"He is complicated, precise. He has a complex number of plays with 47 options on each one. He gets results—paralysis by analysis."

"He doesn't realize that the great coaches concentrate on simplicity, maximum execution. The simple way is the easiest—even when writing books."

The Actor—"This guy is always playing the role. He has coach stitched on both sides of his sweater, his underwear, his car."

The Black Cather—"He is supersitious. He really upsets the team because they know it doesn't matter how well they play, if he doesn't have a fight on the day of the game, they're going to lose."

The Insulter—"He is constantly insulting his players, being sarcastic. He's special-ist in using words such other niceties are Dirkhead, dumdum, meathead, yahoo, hot-dog, yellow, choke, goof-off and Big Stoop. He has a broad vocabulary and a narrow mind."

The Choker—"When the game starts, everything else goes out the window and he just stands there. He forgets to change the line, count the men on the field, send in a play, check the scoreboard. He doesn't see anything. Tension takes over. He has to wait until Monday to check the films. What this guy needs is an assistant to handle the game."

Napanee Wins With T-E-A-M

Team proved to be a pretty popular four letter word in Napanee yesterday as their senior football squad came up with a well-balanced 21-8 victory over Picton in a sudden death play-off match.

"The way our team is going, to name one or two standouts would be really underrating the efforts of everyone else," commented coach Eric Bartlett of his team who have won three consecutive games after dropping their first trio of encounters.

Peter Weese, George Harris and Dan Garrison counted major scores in the win over Picton, who had defeated Napanee during the regular season. The two teams had finished the year deadlocked with BCI for second spot in the eastern division.

As a result of Monday's win Napanee meets BCI Wednesday for the right to advance to the semi-finals against Trenton.

It was all gravy for Bay side Secondary School's junior football squad as they closed out the Bay of Quinte COSSA schedule Monday with a 6 - 0 win over Centennial.

"We didn't need it, but it's still a nice way to finish the first year," acknowledged Bayside coach Gord Smith, who guided the team to a 4-1-1 record during the regular season. His charges will face the powerful Moira Trojans, a team which Smith coached to the league championship last year, in a week - final match Wednesday at the Belleville school.

Halfback Jim Baer scored the only Bayside touchdown on a six - yard counter in the first quarter. The winning coach praised the work of backfielder Keith Wood, "who played his best game all year," as well as the work of his entire defensive squad.

"That was a brilliant run Geisha. But don't try to get you went out of bounds!"

Olympics Draw Near

SAPPORO, Japan (Reuter) — Expensive and elaborate facilities for the 1972 Winter Olympic Games—the first to be held in Asia—are nearly ready.

Japan has spent $20 million on the site at this northern city. Games officials say all the facilities for the February meeting will be completed by the end of next month.

An estimated 17,000 foreign tourists, 2,000 athletes and officials from 42 countries, and tens of thousands of Japanese visitors are expected to descend on Sapporo for the 10-day event.

Meanwhile, construction work continues on the ice hockey rink, the Olympic Village, and the men's downhill course at Mount Eniwa, 21 miles from Sapporo, which skiers found too steep and dangerous in the pre-Olympic games held last February.

The Olympic Village, consisting of an 11-storey apartment house for women and 19 five-storey buildings for men, will become a housing project after the contest.

Japan, which will field a delegation of 35 athletes and 20 officials, has spent some $1.7 million on training its athletes during the last four years.

Tops Tumble

Sharp Collection

City pharmacist Cleo Colling lists ice skates among a variety of collections. Here he shows off an impressive wall-full of spring skates, or "mulleys," that originally fastened over the wearer's shoes.

Only Winning Jockey Liked International Track

LAUREL, Md. (CP-AP) — Only the winner was happy with the track Monday as Run The Gantlet won the $150,000 Washington, D.C., International in the slowest time ever for the event. It was the 10th United States victory in 20 runnings of the International.

The three-year-old, owned by Paul Mellon and trained by Elliott Burch, toured the 1½-mile grass oval in 2:50 3-5 over a course that had been drenched with earlier rains.

The win was worth $100,000 to Run The Gantlet, the odds-on favorite of the crowd that paid $3.60 to win.

But while winning jockey Bobby Woodhouse claimed it was just the right kind of track for his horse, the other jockeys offered less than critical acclaim for the running.

Sandy Hawley, who rode Canada's representative, Minsky, to fourth place for E. P. Taylor of Toronto, said:

"The course was exceptionally deep. If the turf had been faster we might have been in there. But it was too tiring for my horse."

Run The Gantlet won by six lengths over Irish Bail of France with Champion of the United States third.

Colling Collections Include Skate Array

by MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Cleo Colling's sport is collecting.

The familiar city pharmacist's Dundas St. den would provide a nights entertainment for fanciers of everything from sleigh bells to hydro insulators.

But it's Mr. Colling's fondness for sports that really brings out the collector in him.

Here, he proudly displays the bound covers of every copy of Sports Illustrated, from the 1954 inaugural issue right up to date.

But the pride of the private Colling sports museum is a collection of ice skates that would make the curator of Canada's Sports Hall of Fame envious.

"Oh, I must have 50 pairs," Mr. Colling estimates, pointing out a wall-full of spring skates, or "mulleys", the prototype that fastened onto the wearer's boots.

"Some of these are really something. This one (he indicates an intricately - worked blade) was a gift from Stan Kvarda from Czechoslovakia."

He chuckles as he pulls another one down. "Here it is was fastened onto the skater's boot with a key like roller skates. Mr. Colling explains. There isn't even a picture of that type in a history sent him by the C.C.M. company.

One of the few blades hanging on his basement walls that don't shine with the glint of rebumishment is, Mr. Colling thinks, the oldest in his collection. A gift from the city's Dolan family, he estimates it was used 150 years ago.

You look at the chip of wood, tacked to an eight-inch piece of rusted metal and you think of eight - year - olds whose parents today outfit them with $20 skates.

Another rare item is a set of snow skates, with thin inch-wide blades probably used for "skating" along packed roads earlier in the century. Mr. Colling explains.

Two more recent specimens draw one's attention to another end of the room. One well-worn boot bears the number 16 at the heel, the other a nine. "They're Bob Hull's," Mr. Colling beams, pointing to another dated photograph. "I played goal on that Point Anne team with Bob's dad," he says of the photo, which bears the caption "City League Champions 1928-29".

All of which brought Mr. Colling to yet another collection of his — anecdotes.

"When I was playing goal for the school of pharmacy in Toronto," he reminisced, "this other fellow and myself were trying to get some practice time for our team. It was during the depression and we didn't have any money, so we went right into Maple Leaf Gardens to talk to Billy Hewitt.

Not only did the college students impress Mr. Hewitt enough with their brashness to "rent" them the Gardens' facilities for $5; "they even threw in a rubdown," Cleo Colling laughed.

Alouette Protest Claims Bombers Offside on Key Play

MONTREAL (CP) — Sam Berger, owner of Montreal Alouettes, Monday lodged an official protest with Jake Gaudaur, commissioner of the Canadian Football Conference, over his club's 19-18 loss to the Winnipeg Blue Bombers Sunday.

Berger lodged the protest following a meeting with general manager Red O'Quinn and head coach Sam Etcheverry. The three watched the films of the Sunday match at Montreal against the Western Football Conference team with Berger filing the action based on an alleged missed offside call by the officials late in the contest.

If Gaudaur upholds the protest, it could mean that the entire game or the final two minutes of the contest would have to be replayed.

Winnipeg's victory earned the Bombers their first spot in the WFC playoffs since 1966, but the Montreal loss left the Als' still groping for a playoff position in the EFC.

Berger said that films of the play in the final two minutes of the game showed that both the Winnipeg defensive tackle and a linebacker "were shown to be clearly offside."

He said that rule 4, article 2, of the official playing rules of the CFL is explicit in citing that the most forward part of the player must not be within one yard of the line of scrimmage when the ball is snapped.

"In the case of the play in question, both the defensive tackle and middle linebacker of the Winnipeg team were encroaching on the line of scrimmage, (an action) which stopped the Montreal drive on the Winnipeg 27-yard line," Berger said.

"This prevented further opportunity (for us) to score a touchdown, field goal or a single point.

"A tie with the Bombers would have assured Montreal a playoff spot in the tight EFC race. The only sure way the Als can assure themselves of a playoff position at the moment is to defeat the Rough Riders in Ottawa next Saturday. Montreal has not won a game in the capital since 1963.

Published reports here indicated that even the Winnipeg linebacker in question—Mickey Doyle—"could see that he was offside on the play.

"But they (the officials) didn't call it did they?" Doyle asked in the dressing room. "And I guess that's all that matters."

Gaudaur said in a telephone interview from his home in Burlington, Ont., Monday night he was aware of Montreal's protest "but until I hear from them officially I don't feel I can comment."

Colts Can't Turn Vikings' Corner

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Ed Sharockman grimly remembered what he called the early days of Minnesota Vikings-days when Johnny Unitas and Baltimore Colts used to burn him with long passes.

But cornerback Sharockman, and such an inanimate object as the goal post, doused Baltimore's touchdown flames Monday night, 10-3, in a National Football League defensive struggle decided in the final minutes.

Unitas, who came into the game with 10-35 for 99 and the Colts down 10-0, grazed the underside of the crossbar on a fourth-down play from the Minnesota two with 42 seconds to play. Ed Hinton, the intended receiver, was open but couldn't get to the ball that flattered short of his diving attempt.

That was one of six times Baltimore threatened but couldn't score except for Jim O'Brien's 40-yard field goal in the fourth period.

Sharockman helped stop three of the efforts by:

—Tackling Norm Bulaich after a 4-yard run and ending a possible touchdown at the Viking 21 before Karl Kassulke intercepted in the first period.

—Stopping Tom Matte from turning the corner at the Viking five in the second quarter a play before a Morrall touchdown pass was called down in the end zone by Carl Eller.

Sharockman, a 10-year veteran, also intercepted a Morrall pass at the Baltimore 29 to set up Minnesota's touchdown-a two-yard run by Dave Osborn.

The Vikings strengthened their hold on the National Conference's Central Division lead with a 5-1 record. The loss dropped the Colts, who won the total offence battle 276 yards to 153, behind Miami in the American Conference East with a 4-2 record.

Falcons Rehire Van Brocklin

ATLANTA (AP) — Coach Norm Van Brocklin of Atlanta Falcons pro football team has been signed to a "new, long term contract," according to the president of the National Football League team.

Club president Frank Wall, who sought out and hired Van Brocklin after the Falcons lost their first three games of the 1968 season under Norb Hecker, disclosed Monday that the contract agreement had been reached in March.

Wall declined to reveal details of the contract, but the Atlanta Constitution speculated it was an extension for five years, running until 1977 at a salary estimated to be about $60,000

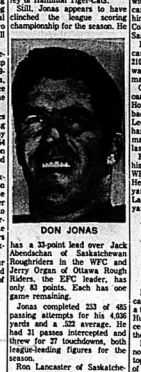
Passed Over 4,000 Yards

Jonas Runaway Scoring Leader

TORONTO (CP) — The regular schedule is over for quarterback Don Jonas and running back Mack Herron of Winnipeg Blue Bombers and their final statistics point them out as two of the Canadian Football League's outstanding players.



Although four CFL games remain, the Bombers wrapped up their last one Sunday with a 19-18 win over Montreal Alouettes, gaining a Western Conference playoff spot for the first time since 1966.

The league's weekly statistics show Jonas with 121 scoring points and 4,026 yards gained by passing and Herron with 84 points and 2,347 yards gained on rushing, kickoff returns and pass receiving.

Herron's 1,018 yards on kickoff returns is a league season record, as was the 35 returns he handled. Dave Raimey, former Blue Bomber now with Toronto Argonauts, set the previous yardage record of 920 in 1968. Pete Thodos of Calgary Stampeders in 1962 set the record of 32 kickoffs returned.

Jonas' 121 points on four touchdowns, 46 converts, 14 field goals and 12 singles fell short of the record of 148 points set two seasons ago by Tommy Joe Coffey of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Still, Jonas appears to have clinched the league scoring championship for the season. He has a 33-point lead over Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan Roughriders in the WFC and Jerry Organ of Ottawa Rough Riders, the EFC leader, has only 83 points. Each has one game remaining.

Jonas completed 253 of 485 passing attempts for his 4,026 yards and a .522 average. He had 31 passes intercepted and threw for 27 touchdowns, both league-leading figures for the season.

Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan, the WFC passing runner-up with one game remaining, is well back in passing yardage with 2,537 on 176 completions. Joe Theismann of Toronto, the EFC leader, has gained 2,064 yards on 126 passes completed.

Herron finished the season with 900 yards rushing in 198 carries, third in the WFC behind Jim Evenson of British Columbia and George Reed of Saskatchewan.

Evenson has 1,198 yards in 246 carries and Reed 1,126 yards on 198 carries. B.C. and Saskatchewan have one game each remaining.

Ottawa fullbacks Dennis Duncan, with 737 yards, and Bob Houmard, 705, are still ever back of the EFC leading rusher, Leon McQuay of the Argos, who has 900 yards and a chance to make the 1,000 club in Toronto's last game Sunday.

Fleeter Jim Thorpe finished his season with Winnipeg as the WFC's leading pass receiver. He made 70 catches for 1,436 yards while team-mate Bob Larose was second with 1,202 yards on 58 catches.

Lions' Hughes Had Hardened Arteries

DETROIT (AP) — Football, can now be blamed for the heart attack which killed Chuck Hughes, 28-year-old wide receiver for Detroit Lions, one of the team's doctors said Monday.

Dr. Edward Guise, who announced the findings of an autopsy on Hughes, said hardening of the arteries had restricted nearly 70 per cent of the player's blood flow.

Dr. Guise said the autopsy indicated a massive blood clot in an artery leading to the heart cut off blood and killed Hughes.

"If I had known he had the disease I would have advised him not to play football," Dr. Guise said, adding that hardening of the arteries often cannot be detected by any symptoms so Hughes probably had no knowledge he was suffering from the disease.

Dr. Guise and Dr. Richard A. Thompson, another physician with the National Football League club, said hardening of the arteries would have killed Hughes sooner or later.

CPGA More Accessible to 'Tourists'

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's golf pros approve opening the Canadian championship to outstanding young professionals in their association.

The Ontario branch of the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association, at its annual meeting Monday, said widening the qualifications was in line with the U.S. method of perpetuating approved tournament players and tournament winners to enter its national championship.

Present CPGA championship rules say players must be head pros or teaching pros with a minimum of five years experience and membership.

Veteran tournament pro Al Balding of Toronto made the proposal at Monday's meeting, noting that if similar rules existed in the U.S., "Jack Nicklaus would not have been able to play until this year."

"And others like Gary Player, George Knudson and myself would never have been able to play," said Balding, first Canadian to win a major U.S. tournament.

Skydivers Drop in for Wrong Game

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Six skydivers who planned to highlight a college football game by dropping onto the field at half-time dropped onto the wrong field for the wrong game.

They were supposed to land at the 50-yard line on the new Springfield College Polyturf football field Saturday before a huge homecoming day crowd watching the Springfield-American International game.

Spectators looked upward and saw the six jump out of a plane, but they drifted off, far away from the field.

About a mile away, fans watching the Trade High-Commerce High football game were stunned as the six parachutists descended onto the field during the third quarter.

They finally made it to the Springfield College 50-yard line, dropping at the end of the game.

Hawks Not Too Tall for Celtics

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Celtics withstood Atlanta's hot first period and charged back behind veterans John Havlicek and Tom Sandars' Monday for a 136-116 National Basketball Association victory over the Hawks.

The taller Hawks shocked Boston by surging to a 14-point lead mid-way through the first period. The Celtics managed to narrow the gap to 41-31 after the first 12 minutes.

Havlicek hit for three field goals to make it 48-41 before Sanders came off the bench to ignite a rally. Sanders sunk two set shots to put his team ahead to stay with a lay-up at 9:45.

Boston led 65-57 at the half and then turned the game into a rout in the third period, Havlicek scored 25 points.

The victory was the Celtics' fourth in a row since an opening loss.

All other teams were idle Monday.

Eight Points in Three Games

Esposito Back on High Ground

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins is back on familiar ground today, atop the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Esposito picked up eight points in Boston's three victories last week for a total of 16, two more than last week's leader, Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers. Right winger Gilbert now is second.

Esposito and Gilbert share the lead in assists with 10 each. Another well-known name, Boston defenceman Bobby Orr, occupies third spot with 12 points, eight of them collected last week.

Incidentally, Esposito is one point ahead of his pace of last season when he won the Art Ross Trophy with a record 152 points.

The leading goal-scorer and fourth in the over-all point parade is left winger Frank Mahovlich of Montreal Canadiens, who, with nine goals in seven games—including five in three outings last week—is off to the hottest start of his career.

Mahovlich and Yvan Cournoyer's seven goals — second best in the league—the pair has been responsible for more than half Montreal's league-leading 31 goals.

None of the top four had a chance to improve their status in the single league game scheduled tonight when Chicago Black Hawks visited the Red Wings at Detroit.

The Chicago pair leads with a combined average of 1.35 goals-against per game. Lorne Worsley and Cesare Maniago, a couple of veterans with Minnesota North Stars, are right behind with 1.71, while Jim Rutherford and Les Binkley of Pittsburgh Penguins are third at 1.87.

Buffalo Shuffling

"We're taking 19 players to the coast," said Fred Hunt, the Sabres' assistant general manager, "and we're taking the 19 we figure will help us most."

Hunt was in charge of a one-hour skating drill at which Shack, forward Dick Duff and Defenceman Mike Robitaille were informed they would be left in Buffalo.

The Sabres lost 3-2 to St. Louis Sunday night, their seventh defeat against but two victories.

North Stars Better Both Ways

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Coach Jack Gordon continually wondered through the 1970-71 National Hockey League season what happened to Minnesota North Stars' offence. He garnished that perhaps he had put too much of a stress on defence.

When training camp rolled around this season, Gordon went to work on the scoring aspect. Only this time, the North Stars didn't forget about defence.

The North Stars, heading into St. Louis to meet the Blues Wednesday night, have allowed the fewest goals in the 1971-72 NHL season out of the 14 teams—only 12 in seven games.

And they also lead the West Division in scoring, 28 goals to Chicago Black Hawks' 26. Montreal Canadiens are the highest scoring team with 31 goals.

In the more important aspect of figures, the North Stars have won four straight games for a 5-1-1 record, leaving them in second place with Pittsburgh Penguins, at 5-2-1 for 11 points each. Chicago is the division leader with a 7-2 record and 14 points that go on the line tonight in Detroit against the Red Wings.

This Contest Just One Big Yoke

VANCOUVER (CP) — Egged on by a large group of spectators, "competitors in a unique sporting event wound up with egg all over their faces—and hands, and legs, and just about everything."

They were taking part Sunday in the North American raw egg-tossing championship at the University of British Columbia and scrambled—how else—to a North American record.

It took 11 dozen eggs before the two teams finally set the mark. The winners were three employees of a Vancouver company who tossed the winning egg 260 feet, four inches, which is 19 feet more than the previous North American mark.

Under rules of the sport, an egg must be thrown from one competitor to another without breaking.

Sport Briefs

MONTREAL (CP) — Four young baseball players, including two Canadians, have been promoted to Montreal Expos' major league roster, Jim Fanning, general manager of the National League club, announced Monday.

The Canadians are pitchers Denis McovenIa, 19-year-old lefthander from St. Timothee, Que., and Paul Sullivan, 22, a righthander from Toronto.

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — Australia's Ray Ruffels caused a major upset in the $48,000 Embassy Open tennis championships Monday, defeating second-seeded Stan Smith of Los Angeles 9-8, 6-4 in the opening round. Two other seeds, Marty Riessen, Evanston, Ill., and Australian Ken Rosewall, also lost in a day of surprises at the start of the week-long contest which is the last major tournament of the year on the British circuit.

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Willie McCovey, San Francisco Giants' first baseman, underwent surgery Monday to correct torn cartilage in his left knee and was later said to resting comfortably. The operation went "fine, as expected," said Dr. Frederick Behling, a surgeon at Stanford Medical Centre.

OTTAWA (CP) — Larry Watkins, a 265-pound offensive tackle who tried out with Hamilton Tiger-Cats earlier this season, started a five-day trial with Ottawa Rough Riders Tuesday. A graduate of Western Kentucky, Watkins spent the 1970 season with the Toronto Argonauts, was dropped in the 1971 training camp and joined Ti-Cats, who released him early in the season.

On a long lonely road it's nice to know what's behind you.

We know the thoughts that must be racing through your mind about buying an imported car.

After all, you've probably heard all sorts of truths and half truths.

We'd like to tell you about ourselves first hand. What's really behind you when you buy a Toyota.

First of all, the people at Toyota know and understand what it takes to make a great car. If you've seen any Toyota car, you'd know what we're talking about. The little things mean as much as the big things.

And the same pride we've taken in building Toyotas carries over to our parts and service.

It must be working, because now Toyota dealers stretch across the length and breadth of Canada and the list continues growing. Growing because Toyota is now the fourth largest car maker in the world, because of the quality of our cars and because of accessible, dependable service.

So, to sum it all up.

It's nice to know that after you've bought a Toyota, the road ahead is a lot easier to travel because of what's behind you.

Santa Parade Shorter

This year's Santa Claus Parade route will be 0.3 miles shorter than last year's following a police study of methods to improve traffic circulation while the parade is on. The 1.9 mile procession will unfold Saturday, Dec. 4.

Beginning at the corner of Wallbridge Cres. and Moira St. West, the marchers will continue down Moira and across the upper bridge onto Front Street. They will then go south on Front as far as the Market Square where they will turn east onto Pinnacle Street and begin the final stretch before disperning at the corner of Pinnacle and Station.

Last year the parade turned around on Dundas St. East rather than at the Market but the Belleville Police Dept. received complaints from travellers, drivers of vehicles using Highway 2 as a through road. With the Dundas St. bridge opened two weeks after the 1970 parade, it was felt that traffic would be even heavier this year.

Inspector Ralph Blatchford told a parade committee meeting Monday night that the police department will be out in full with all 55 officers helping in some capacity.

Plans are also going ahead for the election of a parade queen. Committee chairman Don Foster has sent letters to nine schools asking each to select a girl for the contest which is tentatively scheduled for Friday, Nov. 26. Alderman Jean Smith has agreed to judge the judges while Pete Thompson of CJBQ will emcee the evening.

Hastings Turnout 70 Per Cent

ACTINOLITE (Staff) — Official count of last Thursday's provincial election turnout in Hastings was about 70 per cent of the eligible vote, returning officer Lloyd Price reported today.

Yesterday's official count showed 15,380 of 22,095 eligible voters turned out at the polls, said Mr. Price. There were only 114 spoiled ballots.

Rotary Sets Up Student Exchange

Belleville's Rotary Club will play host to two South African exchange students in January of 1972. Enthusiastic in their response to a visiting Canadian student who had spent a year in Japan, Rotarians earlier this year decided to initiate their first student exchange.

Belleville students have not been chosen as yet, but the two teenagers from Africa will arrive sometime in January.

Dale Ann Lumley, 17, of Marskin, Zululand and Sonja Dorothea Johnson, 17, of Estcourt, Zululand, will board with three different families while living and studying in Belleville next year.

"We'll fit them into anything that goes with weekend," Rotary past - president Wilson MacKay said, following confirmation of their visit.

The two girls are expected to attend BCI, Sight, and certain living expenses will be aided by their parents, but Rotary will provide for incidental funds while they are in Canada.

Similar goodwill ambassadors to Canada will be chosen from Belleville high schools following arrival of the South African students.

Humane Society Raids Zoo

BROCKVILLE — An early afternoon raid on the Woodland Park Zoo, west of here was supposed to provide Ontario Humane Society officers with a full-grown African lion, an American bobcat and a red fox.

However, the officers, from Toronto headquarters and offices in Belleville and Kingston came away with empty nets.

Proprietor of Woodland Park Zoo, John Vanderschuit, was warned Sept. 28 by Superintendent Walter Koegler, that if the lion's rear and bleeding ears, and general condition, were not improved, the beast would be impounded. At the same time, he ordered the owner to improve living conditions for the other two animals.

In September, noted zoologists examined the lion and "felt it should be removed and have its ears operated on," said the superintendent.

Complete with three station wagons and an enclosed pick-up truck, the officers and two doctors from the Ontario Veterinary College in Guelph, were prepared to seize the bobcat and the fox, along with the lion.

However, when officers arrived at the zoo shortly after noon Thursday, accompanied by an Ontario Provincial Police Corporal, doctors found the lion's condition greatly improved.

Upon close examination, the ears, which had been dripping blood, surrounded by hordes of flies only three weeks ago were well on the way to recovery.

Instead of impounding the six- to seven-year-old female, Superintendent Koegler agreed to give the zoo owner a two-week period of grace. During that time, an improved antiseptic spray will be provided from the college laboratory.

At the end of this period, Dr. G. S. Dingwall and Dr. Ronald Prescott are to return to again inspect the lioness.

The senior officer explained any move would be "detrimental". Coupled with the lion's sary addition and the long trip to Guelph, any removal could seriously affect the beast, he said.

Although officers were also prepared to move both the bobcat and fox, this was not necessary. While the

Mohawks Add To Building Fund

SHANNONVILLE (Staff) — Quinte Mohawks of the Tyendinaga Reserve here Saturday staged a walkathon and raised an estimated $1,700 toward rebuilding of their council house.

The walkathon was part of a series of ongoing events raising funds for the council house — the centre of Quinte Mohawk community life, which burned down in July.

A new building is estimated to cost some $50,000 — a sum toward which some surrounding municipalities, including Belleville, Deseronto and Tyendinaga township already have made donations.

The Mohawks have also been endeavouring to raise funds through various social events and raffles.

Pledges from Saturday's 21-mile walkathon — mostly around reserve lands — should bring the construction fund allotted to date to $16,000, says Mrs. Earl Hill, wife of the Mohawk chief.

Impatient Shopper Arrested

TRENTON (Staff) — An early morning shopper kicked in the front door of the A and P store on Quinte Street about 1 a.m. today, packed up a box full of groceries and made off with it through the streets of town.

Police report that the afterhours supermarket visitor put together a parcel of groceries and cuts of meat valued at between $50 and $60 in the downtown store.

Constable Robert Galloway spotted an individual carrying the large cardboard box of goods along Dundas Street about 1:20 a.m. and an investigation followed at the A and P.

Ray O'Sullivan, 44, of Frankford was arrested in connection with the incident.

Sinc Says:

Seeing is Believing!

It's not really easy is it... believing everybody's claim about lower food prices? So, don't believe them. Believe yourself!

After all, you know what you paid for your groceries just last week, at some other supermarket. Many of the items you bought are still in your pantry or 'frig. With the price you paid stamped right on the tin or package.

So, if you're really interested in finding out what the score really is, when it comes to deciding which supermarket has the lowest prices, just turn the page to Dominion's advertisements.

Every item in it shows the Deep Discount price last week (and, at present) on a whole batch of popular brands you regularly buy.

All we're asking you to do is compare... write in the boxes provided opposite each item, the price you actually paid at any other supermarket last week.

Then—you decide for yourself who has the lowest prices!

If you didn't shop Dominion last week you probably paid too much.

Write in the actual price of the items you purchased elsewhere and compare!

Pensioners Will No Longer Qualify as Taxpayer's Dependents

OTTAWA (CP) — Distinct gales began to break the generalized tone of the Commons tax debate Monday as MPs described how the government proposals may effect the paramour, the pensioner, even the prostitute.

All parties agreed last week to get down to specifics on the 707-page tax bill and they did so as debate focused on the tax-exemption clauses.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), picking out one shadowy area, said many Canadians will be in for "an awful shock" when they find they no longer can claim a pensioner as a dependent if the dependent's income exceeds $1,500 a year.

That would cover many pensioners who are getting the present guaranteed income supplement, which gives a pensioner a total of $1,920 a year.

The pensioner himself would not be taxed on his supplement, but a relative supporting him would lose a tax allowance.

"A recipient who is not a wife will not qualify as a dependent because the old age supplement will take him beyond the allowable amount," Mr. Lambert said.

He asked whether the government intended to amend this section. But Pat Mahoney (Calgary South), parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister E. J. Benson, said further amendments weren't expected.

Mr. Mahoney said arguments are being considered.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants), a lawyer who was co-chairman of a special parliamentary committee on divorce, appealed for a tax break for the paramour and the concubine.

In the eyes of the law, at least one was not free to marry. But they lived as man and wife.

"I do not think the Income Tax Act is a statute of morality," Mr. McCleave said.

"If anyone thinks it is, they should examine the clutches of the income tax collector.

"When he finds that someone is applying the trade or profession of prostitution, that woman's earnings are quickly whacked despite the fact that she earns them in an immoral way."

Parliament was seeking tax reform and tax equity. A man and a woman living together, but unwed, might both be refugees of an unhappy marriage.

"It is unjust unless we accord to them the same taffation and tax exemptions as we do to those who have gone through orthodox marriage ceremonies."

Mr. McCleave said tax collectors, on finding a couple isn't married, ruin "all hell . . . on their heads." Unwed couples are taxed as single persons, meaning they pay a lot more.

He asked why the definition of a married person in the Income Tax Act could not be enlarged to include unwed couples.

Mr Mahoney replied that Mr. McCleave himself intruded an element of morality by referring to "paramour and concubine."

"This presupposes that the married couple is at least of different sex; yet today that is not necessarily the situation that prevails," a reference to homosexual "marriages."

"What are we to do about such things?"

Furthermore, how could assessors sort out other admirable tax questions—

"How do you prove it is a common-law relationship? Is it a traditional relationship of a day or two or a week or two?"

Gordon Blair (L—Grenville-Carleton), a tax lawyer, criticized as "absurd and unjust" an exemption clause that would disallow deduction of expenses because a practical nurse rather than a registered nurse or a certified nurse's aide had been hired to look after a dependent.

Meanwhile, the main thrust of the debate was that the basic personal exemptions in the bill are too low and would be better replaced by a tax-credit system.

In the first change since 1949, the basic exemption in this bill for a single person would be raised to $1,500 from $1,000 and for married couples to $2,850 from $2,000. This is the amount of income on which taxes don't have to be paid.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview), calling the increases niggardly, said they mean a single person earning more than $30 a week would pay taxes while the level for a married couple would be an income of $57 a week.

Such incomes were well below the Economic Council of Canada's 1968 "poverty line" for income and it was unreasonable to expect people in such brackets to pay income taxes.

The NDP continued to press for tax credits but said they would settle for increased exemptions.

Ross Whicher (L—Bruce) said Canadians want exemptions rather than tax credits—a system which would decrease the amount of tax paid rather than exempting some income from tax. Credits would be given according to income, age, family and other such factors.

Canada Lags in Fundamental Research

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada lags woefully behind in world-calibre fundamental research, British radio-astronomer Sir Bernard Lovell said Monday.

He suggested at a news conference that the slender financing of basic research should be made a major issue in this country.

Policies of concentrating financial support on research to produce new technologies and products failed to provide the magic which politicians had expected.

The best course?

"Produce your brains and keep in the van of fundamental research and, as time and funds are available, pull out from that what you need."

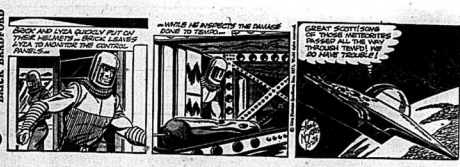
Sir Bernard, in Canada to speak today at the University of Western Ontario in London, Ont., addressed the Science Association at the National Research Council Monday.

His visit here was arranged by Dr. J. L. Locke, NRC chief of radio astronomy, who told the news conference there is increasing difficulty getting funds for basic research, especially in astronomy.

He said the climate is "just not right" for pure science in Canada, partly because of a "turning away" from it by the public and government and partly because of economic difficulties.

Sir Bernard said cuts in the U.S. space program are tragic and disastrous because space scientists stand on the threshold of new understanding of the universe.

The result would be a serious imbalance between the American effort and that of the Soviet Union where there was no sign of a similar cut in funds.



Sir Bernard was equally critical of the Canadian government's 1968 decision to scrap the $22 million Queen Elizabeth II telescope at Mount Kobau near Penticton, B.C.

The British scientist, director of the world famous Jodrell Bank radio telescope, said the 150-inch instrument could have made a major impact in astronomy.

Trudeau Is Noncommittal On Report on Ownership

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau remains noncommittal about suggestions that a cabinet report on foreign ownership of Canadian industry be made public.

Meanwhile, says Conservative MP Gordon Fairweather, parts of the report may already have been leaked in Toronto.

"Working papers used by some people who worked on the report are available in Toronto," Mr. Fairweather (Fundy-Royal) said in an interview Monday.

Some figures based on the report have been published in newspapers, he said.

Mr. Fairweather again Monday pressed the prime minister, in light of somewhat dramatic indications regarding foreign ownership of Canadian industry," to at least release the official statistics gathered in Revenue Minister Herb Gray's study of foreign ownership.

This would aid groups other than the government in deciding policy on the issue.

"We will consider that," Mr. Trudeau replied, "and if there is anything that can be usefully published, we will take it under consideration."

The Gray report itself, before the cabinet for several months now, would be released as soon as possible, the prime minister said for the third time in recent weeks.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♥	Pass	2♠	4♠
5♥	Pass	6♥

Opening lead — king of spades.

Let's suppose that on the hand shown your opponents were to bid and make four hearts, that case they would score 700 points for winning the rubber and 120 points for tricks and you would end up minus 820 points.

Now let's suppose you defeated the contract, either through your own skill or declarer's lack of it. In that case you would be either 100 or 820 points richer, depending on the view you take in such matters.

You could argue that the only gain is the 100 points that appear on the score sheet, but you could also reasonably argue that you had improved your position 920 points by defeating declarer of 820 points and earning a plus of 100 instead.

But no matter what your philosophy is in such matters, the fact remains that there is a big difference between making the contract and defeating it. And in the accompanying hand it is easy to see how crucial it is to defend the contract properly, since bad defense allows declarer to make it and good defense beats it.

There are two hurdles the defense must surmount. One arises at trick one, when East should overtake the spade king with the ace in order to play the queen next. This is not really a difficult play, for East can spare the ace whether South has a singleton, a doubleton or a void.

The second hurdle arises when East plays a third spade at trick three. When South ruffs with the queen or jack, West must be sure not to overruff! He should discard in the hope that East has the jack or the 10, in which event declarer will have to lose two trump tricks and go down one.

Theologian

Prof. Leslie Dewart, a Toronto philosopher and Roman Catholic lay theologian, says he believes that "the time for religious controversy has passed." Prof. Dewart, 47, whose book The Future of Belief set off a modest revolution in the Catholic intellectual community in 1967, said: "I doubt there is anything that could be said that would be controversial. It's just as well." The professor is with the philosophy department of St. Michael's College of the University of Toronto. (CP Photo)

Start Selecting Jury

KINGSTON (CP) — Selection of a 12-man jury for the trial of 13 convicts charged with murder in the slaying of two prisoners during a riot at Kingston Penitentiary in April began Monday and will continue today.

About 300 perspective jurors appeared Monday before Mr. Justice William Henderson.

Organized Crime Said Rampant

KITCHENER (CP) — Organized crime has infiltrated every type of business in the province, Herb Thurston, an intelligence officer with the Ontario Police Commission, said Monday.

Mr. Thurston of Toronto told businessmen at the Grand Valley branch of the Canadian Institute of Management that crime also has moved into new areas, such as investment frauds.

Businessmen, he said, sometimes refuse to co-operate with police to end industrial theft.

The intelligence officer said police must be allowed to use the sophisticated electronic equipment employed by criminals if they are to compete effectively.

Telephone wiretapping must be permitted by police on a controlled basis, he said.

To Your Good Health

Real Goal with Migraines Is to Prevent, Not to Cure

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I never saw a tick until I moved to the South six years ago. Wherever a tick is on me, I get a sore. It swells, is very red, and itches constantly. I have tried coating the area with clear nail polish, or rubbing alcohol on it, but it doesn't help.

Would I have an allergy to ticks? Is there anything I can do to relieve the itching or reduce the swelling?—Mrs. B.

You could be more than averagely sensitive to the toxin secreted by ticks, but I don't know that I'd call it an allergy. Certainly some folks are much more bothered by ticks than others, although a tick can burrow into anyone's skin—that's what ticks do.

If you suspect that the critters have gotten on you, wash thoroughly as soon as possible using a thick lather. That should remove most of them. But once a tick has penetrated the skin, there isn't too much you can do.

Applying an antiseptic to the spot may help reduce the inflammation. Or an anti-itch preparation, such as calomine, may help. If the discomfort is severe, you can use one of the lotions or sprays that have local anesthetic properties. Ice applied to the red, swollen spot may help, too.

But the best answer is to avoid the ticks. Consider using a repellent. One containing dibutylothalamide is effective. Sprayed lightly on clothing, it reduces infestation 80 to 90 per cent. In suspected tick areas, wear slacks that have been treated to repel the pesky things.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do you have a leaflet or booklet on how migraine headache sufferers can be helped?—Mrs. L.R.

Migraine is a difficult problem to combat, and it's a miserable trouble to have. While it's difficult, it is usually possible to achieve at least some relief. The real goal is not to cure migraines but to prevent them.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: On a radio program we heard a discussion on vitamin E. It was stated that before batteries started using white flour for bread, back around 1900, heart attacks were virtually unknown, but we cannot find any bread that is made from unrefined wheat flour.

Since both of us have had lots of relatives die of heart attacks, we were wondering if taking vitamin E daily would help us maybe escape a heart attack. — Mrs. B.C.

It remains to be proved that vitamin E will help prevent heart attacks. Can it help? Or is it just another one of the many health fads that come and go over the years? I'd like some proof before I'm willing to accept it as valid.

When the "proof" is a statement that heart attacks were "virtually unknown" around 1900, that makes me mighty suspicious. Heart attacks were plentiful then. Many were called "acute indigestion." So let's wait for something solid in the way of evidence before accepting the claims.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 68. Three years ago I developed vitreous floaters in both eyes. Does that mean eventual cataracts or blindness? I can see fairly well now. I do not wear glasses—Mrs. T.G.

Vitreous floaters—those tiny specks that seem to float in the eyes—may occasionally accompany an eye problem, but in the vast majority of cases they don't signify anything. Sort of a nuisance but not a harbinger of cataracts or blindness.

Kerr Okays Trenton Sewage Plant Plans

Common Mart Decision Near

LONDON (AP) — Britain's great debate over joining the Common Market neared a climax today with Prime Minister Heath still counting on some socialist opposition help for victory.

But in the lobbies and council rooms of the Parliament at Westminster most signs suggested the Conservative government's winning majority is not likely to be impressive.

Heath's Conservatives and former prime minister Wilson's Laborites are under maximum pressure not to defect to their opponents.

"You can hear the cracking of arms being twisted wherever you go," one veteran Tory legislator confided in one of the Parliament's bar-rooms. "This place is like a torture chamber."

Knowledgeable insiders on each side are forecasting that Heath probably will get a margin of between 40 and 50 when the 630-member House of Commons exercises its historic choice Thursday night.

For a government seeking Parliament's approval for the most important single decision the nation has had to take since the Second World War, such a majority would hardly be a triumph.

And it would not be insurance against defeat for a government that must push a mass of important enabling legislation through Parliament before Britain can actually enter the Common Market Jan. 1, 1972.

A prime minister must resign if the Commons tosses out some major piece of legislation. This, then, could compel Heath to call a general election on the issue.

A general election is exactly what Wilson's Laborites say they want as the democratic way of resolving the Common Market controversy.

The polls show that most Britons do not want to link up with Europe. As a party, the Laborites are committed to fight every one the terms Heath has obtained.

Complicated political arithmetic lies behind the current round-the-clock manoeuvrings of Tories and Laborites.

Each side has its wobblies. But there are more shaky Laborites than Conservatives. That is why Heath is permitting a "free vote" for his followers whereas Wilson is insisting on a "party line" vote for his.

"The Tories know their figures. I know their figures. And they know mine. The fact is there are about 290 Conservatives who are going to vote for the market. There are just over 20 who are going to vote against."

Mellish went on:

"Taking up against them are 289 Labor members. If the 289 Labor members, plus the 20 Tories, voted against the market the government would be defeated and there would have to be a general election. Those are the facts of life. So the party managers go to Heath and say frankly: 'Ted, we have got to rely on the Labor party to make certain that we get this thing through.'"

Up to about 80 Laborites do in fact favor joining the market on existing terms. The big question is whether all would defy party policy and vote in that sense for the Tories. This is where the pressure stuff comes in.

"No, madam! This is not the same 'I' that wrote 'The Sensuous Woman'!"

Tito Stops At Gander

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Tito of Yugoslav a arrives here today to begin a six-day state visit that will include talks with President Nixon and top administration officials.

The European Communist leader spent Tuesday night under tight security in Gander, Nfld., during a brief stopover on his trip from Belgrade.

U.S. officials, who begin their talks with Tito Thursday, are expected to ask for his help in smoothing relations in the Middle East, where he long has sided with the Arab nations.

Despite his differences with the United States on the Middle East, Indochina and other questions, Tito has enjoyed a special relationship with the West ever since he defied Stalin and was ousted from the Moscow bloc in the late 1940s.

Town Studies Appeal Move

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Minister of Environment George Kerr has approved an Ontario Water Resources plan for the long-discussed $2.6 million addition to Trenton's already inadequate sewage treatment plant.

Municipal officials and councillors have met the news with mixed feelings in view of the fact $40 more a year must be collected from the average ratepayer here to pay the bill.

Ironically Trenton had pushed for the expansion that will boost capacity of the east side plant from one to 3.5 million gallons daily but now there is serious concern over whether Trenton-ians can afford to have their waste adequately treated.

Commenting on the announcement the expansion will go ahead, Councillor Ted Parker took the position if the town is going to build new sewers to feed into the treatment centre, money must be found to have the sewage treated. "If this is not done we might as well let it all go into the river the way it used to," he said. Trenton is now engaged in a major trunk sewer building program.

The possibility of appealing the decision to let the plant go ahead is being considered but the stance to be taken by the town will depend largely on advice from engineering consultants Gore and Storrie who are now preparing a report on the treatment question.

The OWRC public hearing in Trenton last May both Mayor Duncan McDonald and Clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry requested that the project be staged over a five-year period. However, the OWRC has advised this is unwise and has now programmed the construction for a completion target date of December 31, 1973.

The municipal engineering staff and the clerk are now preparing a series of queries to be presented to water resources officials concerning the plant. Background to the inquiries is an attempt to have the scope of the projected limited somewhat.

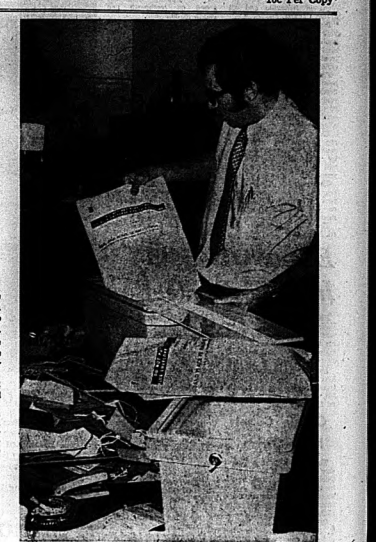
Incorporated in the plan is a $120,000 outfall pipe that would take effluent from the treatment complex far out into the Bay of Quinte. The town has some doubt about the necessity of this.

Another leading concern here is that the new facilities would require much of the community's sanitary landfill area (destined for parkland) be turned over for use as sewage lagoons.

The chief objection to building so large a plant presented at the May hearing hinges on the fact there is a high degree of ground water seepage into Trenton's sewage system. Much of the flow through the treatment plant is now sewage but water seeping into faulty sewers.

The Trenton position before the OWRC this spring was that infiltration is a leading factor in the need to build the plant addition and, if checked, a more modest expansion would suffice. Water resources officials have expressed the view it may cost more to end the infiltration than to accommodate it in the sewage system.

Gore and Storrie's report is expected to give some conclusion as to whether it is feasible to attempt to seal the system from ground water. This report, to be delivered shortly, will be a large factor in whether Trenton appeal's the OWRC plan to construct the new plant that will provide not only additional primary but also secondary and tertiary treatment (nutrient removal) of the town's sewage.



Trenton has 28 days to appeal the decision to go ahead with the project. Although the town has indicated it will ask, it is not known whether its presentation will take the form of an appeal.

Comprising the OWRC work program is a $2,000 modification of the Dundas East pumping station, the $120,000 outfall line, a $70,000 trunk sewer to connect the pump house with the treatment centre and expansion of the centre itself at a cost of $1,775,000.

The average taxpayer here pays $17 annually for sewage treatment service but with the expansion this will climb by more than $62. On a $517 tax bill (about average) in Belleville, $27.30 goes to pay for sewage treatment. A flat rate of about $2.70 a month is also taken from the PUC bill, while a percentage of the water bill is taken from the industrial and commercial enterprises.

Renault Will Build Russian Truck Plant

PARIS (AP) — France and the Soviet Union today marked Leonid Brezhnev's visit to Paris with signature of a 10-year economic co-operation agreement calling for close links between the industries of the two nations.

Later today the Russians and the French were to sign a contract for the state-owned Renault auto company to participate as a prime contractor in the building of the Soviet government's huge Kama River truck plant. The contract may run to $300 million.

The U.S. government forced the Ford Motor Co. and Mack Truck to drop negotiations with Moscow to build the $1.4 billion complex. The Renault deal is expected to sew up for France most of the equipment supply for two large sections of the complex.

White House Puts on Brave Face Trying to Welcome China in UN

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The expulsion of Taiwan from the United Nations gave a big boost to President Nixon's efforts to improve relations with Peking despite the stunning defeat for American diplomacy in the international forum, diplomatic observers said today.

The White House put on a brave face as it pondered the after effects of the General Assembly's vote, but it left official government comment to state secretary William Rogers.

He told a news conference the United States welcomed Peking's admission to the world organization—which was U.S. policy anyway—but he then went on to deplore the expulsion of Taiwan as a mistake of major proportions.

Moreover, he offered an oblique hint that the United States might prune its contribution to the United Nations and its specialized agencies—a move that is sure to win a welcome response among some, though not all congressmen.

Rogers made it clear, though, that this was not a measure of retaliation, but just of simple economy and a suggestion that the UN might be living beyond its financial means.

However, while it deplored the death of its two-China policy, the administration seemed determined to move ahead with its policy of easing tensions with Peking, capped by President Nixon's decision to visit the Chinese capital before next May.

Officials said the expulsion of Taiwan, though a severe blow, would not be allowed to obstruct the goal to which the president has given the highest priority—to bring Peking into the community of nations and put Sino-American relations on a normal basis after more than two decades of anger, bitterness and—21 years ago in Korea—battlefield confrontation.

Army Post, Police Station Blasted by Bombs in Ulster

BELFAST (CP) — Bombs wrecked a heavily-sandbagged army post in Londonderry today and killed two British soldiers.

The death of the troops at the post on the edge of a Roman Catholic district raised to 137 the death toll in two years of communal warfare in Northern Ireland.

The blast shattered windows in a nearby factory. The workers were moved out while security forces cordoned off the area to investigate the bombing.

Police came under concerted bomb and gun attacks at two points in Ulster during the night.

A police station was wrecked in an explosion which wounded eight persons, two seriously.

Explosive charges were set off at the homes of nine police officers, and another's home was raked by bullets. One gunman was reported shot and wounded by a police officer defending his house.

The pre-dawn raids followed a day of shooting — and mourning — in Ulster. Two persons died in the violence Tuesday.

The strikes against the officers' homes — all staged about 1 a.m. — were preceded by a guerrilla assault on a precinct house in Lisnie, a port on the Irish Sea 17 miles north of the capital of Belfast.

Police said gunmen opened fire on the station and a man was seen dumping a suitcase on the doorstep. Seconds later a 20-pound charge of gelignite erupted, virtually wrecking the building.

Detectives opened fire at the raiders, but they escaped unharmed. Two policemen were seriously wounded and four police and two civilians were treated for superficial injuries.

The raids on police houses were concentrated in the northern suburbs of Belfast.

UNICEF Pennies Go A Long Way

Saturday night is UNICEF night in Belleville and all across Canada.

It's the one night of the year when tiny ghosts and goblins go begging in the annual Hallowe'en trick or treat for other less fortunate children around the world.

For 25 years UNICEF has been helping children in underdeveloped countries. Last year Canadian children raised almost $700,000 but the need is growing with the spiraling birthrate.

There are 700 million children in the 112 developing countries of the world helped by UNICEF. The number will double in the next 30 years.

That's why UNICEF is reaching for the moon this year — seeking $80 million, or just half the price of a moon rover vehicle.

The UNICEF budget, stated in another way, is equal to the amount Canadians spend on toothpaste and candy in one year.

The money goes to provide food and drugs and literacy programs for children who might never grow up or go to school without UNICEF's help.

The pennies local youngsters collect with their Hallowe'en candy goes a long way. Five pennies protects five children against tuberculosis. Ten cents gives an exercise book to three school children.

The bright orange and black UNICEF boxes have become a Hallowe'en tradition in the Quinte district. Citizens are again asked not to disappoint the children by those collecting here and those receiving in the developing nations of the world.

Everyone is asked to have plenty of small coins on hand Saturday night.

35,000 Envelopes to Stuff

Some 20 members of Belleville Company 5, Girl Guides, along with their leader Mrs. Norma Lobb, spent last evening stuffing envelopes with Christmas seals. Distributed by the Hastings and Prince Edward County Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, they will be in the mail on Nov. 1. Seals will also be mailed to each resident of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties. During the week as many as 100 young people will participate in the envelope stuffing. New residents who wish to obtain seals, may do so by calling 962-2186.

Evans Defeated In OMMB Election

PICTON (Staff) — Cherry Valley farmer Harry Evans was defeated yesterday in his bid to win a seat on Ontario Milk Marketing Board as representative of zone 4.

Incumbent member Allan Ketcheson swept all five polls, trouncing his opponent with 346 votes to 177 ballots marked for Mr. Evans.

Quinte Count Now Official

The official count in Thursday's provincial election for Quinte riding, released by returning officer Gerald Joyce, shows little changes from the tabulations made election night.

Winning candidate Dr. R. T. Potter emerged from the official count with 7,516 votes. Liberal Gerald Weaver of Trenton polled 7,249 and NDP Alan Deacon polled 3,639.

Eligible voters totalled 29,602 this year, in contrast to the 29,678 eligible in 1967.

A total of 20,265 people turned out at the polls; 67.1 of the number eligible.

The percentage turn-out was down this year from 1967, when 74.1 of Quinte riding's voters went to the polls.

Mrs. F. G. Lang, the Shannonville woman who also challenged Mr. Ketcheson, polled 42 votes.

The polls opened at 9 a.m. yesterday at the Picton office of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food and voting continued until 10 p.m.

Mr. Evans today commented: "The Federation really supported Allan Ketcheson in places and the fluid producers in Prince Edward really voted for him. I didn't appeal to anyone for support. The National Farmers' Union was mad at me because I didn't pay my dues, but claimed the defeated candidate.

He added thoughtfully, "It could have been a table at the same table as George McLaughlin."

The farmer noted that Mr. McLaughlin reportedly stated during a recent Seven Park conference that perhaps only fluid milk should be sold for the Ontario Milk and Industrial shippers eliminated.

According to Mr. Evans, 75 per cent of the 1,400 shippers in zone 4 qualify as industrial.

The defeated candidate did not feel he would repeat his bid for office when the OMMB calls its next election in four years.

"I'd have a beard to my knees by then," predicted the middle-aged farmer.

Authority Negotiating For Camp Picton Land

PICTON (Staff) — The Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority is negotiating for a 232-acre land tract incorporated in the provincial government's holdings at the former Camp Picton.

Kenneth Musclow, a Napanee resident who is resources manager of the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority and the Napanee authority, yesterday told Picton Rotarians a multiple use design for this property adjacent to Macaulay's Mountain is under preparation.

He added the design will be presented to the public in December and said the potential of the land parcel in question has been discussed among conservationists, ski enthusiasts and recreation program personnel.

Mr. Musclow explained the Prince Edward authority is one of 38 such organizations in Ontario and covers 399 square miles.

The local authority was established in 1965 and is a corporate body which can pass is town regulations and raise funds for various projects. All conservation authorities in the province operate under the jurisdiction of the Conservation Authorities Act.

Mr. Musclow remarked that all capital programs initiated by conservation authorities are eligible for 50 per cent provincial government grants.

Administration costs also are offset through a grant program.

No grants, however, are provided for the maintenance of roadside land areas turned over to conservation authorities by county councils, for example.

The cost of upkeep for lookout sites and small parks fall to the authorities, themselves.

Conservation authorities receive a financial boost from ARDA (Agriculture and Rural Development Association) when purchasing land parcels for recreation purposes or as "wide open spaces". Grants from ARDA can absorb 75 per cent of the cost.

The Prince Edward authority recently has acquired a 62-acre block of land at Massassa including 4,000 feet of Lake Ontario shoreline.

Although no public access to this land is now available, the authority is negotiating with Ameliasburg township representatives to gain a right of way.

An additional 1,700 feet of shoreline has been offered for sale but the authority has reserved its decision on this proposal.

Mr. Musclow said the most important part of the Prince Edward authority's program and the most doubtful, is acquisition of 4,000 acres of land lying in Athol and South Marysburg townships.

This property formerly the Point Petre gunnery range, was turned over to the Crown Assets Corporation by the Department of National Defence.

Mr. Musclow said the land is owned by the ARDA directorate but this group does not intend to acquire the property.

Several studies of the area have been made and a decision soon will be made by the ARDA directorate concerning who will control the land tract.

Athol and South Marysburg townships would receive grants in lieu of taxes if the conservation authority takes over the land block.

Mr. Musclow, a graduate of the University of New Brunswick, holds a degree in forestry.

For all it's worth, milk didn't offer any inducement to night crawlers who broke into Reid's Dairy sometime before 5 a.m. Tuesday.

Council Approves $175,000 Road Job

TRENTON (Staff) — Town council here has approved a reconstruction program for Dufferin Avenue, one of the west side's major traffic arteries.

Once new services are installed, the Dufferin, now four lanes between Dundas West and Coulter Crescent, will be widened to Bleecker south as far as Carrying Place Road, a distance of 1,200 feet.

Included in the project approved by councilors of the whole Monday, is the building of a new watermain system and storm and sanitary sewers along Dufferin.

Total cost of the Dufferin construction job is estimated at $175,000. Of this Trenton taxpayers will pay about $69,000 with the rest of the cost to be borne by provincial grants.

The public works department will do the job with its own staff — a practice that has already been successful on the Front Street sewer project, where considerable savings were realized through the do - it - yourself approach.

Quinte Returning Officer Adjusts to Non-political Role

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

For Gerald Joyce, the election tumult and the counting finally ends.

So too, does a problem which he frankly admits nigged him personally when he was first appointed returning officer to supervise all provincial elections in Quinte riding.

With the end yesterday of his official count of votes cast in last Thursday's election, the near nine months of office is lifted for this campaign.

And that niggling personal doubt has been resolved for all future elections.

It was a highly - personalized dilemma. One which Mr. Joyce doubtless has shared with many a conscientious RO appointed by federal and provincial governments since Confederation.

For, assuredly, like every RO, Mr. Joyce was once upon a political time a staunch party man. How then comes the personal transformation into an impartial public official supervising a prime social function?

It's not a new situation and Canadians accept the practice. Therefore, for instance, in Ontario most federal appointees are one-time hardworking Liberals and most provincial returning officers equally dedicated Conservatives.

In the Quinte district Mr. Joyce was perhaps a more publicly vigorous than most. For years he was among the foremost Conservative party organizer in Tory elections — and among the most successful. His campaigns were brisk, stylish and highly-organized.

He has to his credit the management of two provincial campaigns and two federal contests. In fact, he was campaign manager when incumbent Dr. Ritchie F. Potter decided to successfully enter the provincial political arena in Quinte riding in 1967.

For Dr. Potter's second successful election — last week — Mr. Joyce suddenly found himself thrust in the role of a non-political official who had to ensure equity existed between his one-time political friends and foes without distinction.

Mr. Joyce is frank about his reaction.

"I found it rather frustrating at first to have to stay away from political meetings, not be involved in the grass-roots organization and the nuts and bolts of a philosophy of putting on a campaign," he says, taking a quick breather at his Front Street office among the scattered memorabilia of last week's election.

He becomes given more honest about his personal, inner-most reaction:

"But as the campaign wore on I found myself more neutral than I thought I would be.

"As a matter of fact, I found myself leaning over backwards to help the other two parties, with information and helping them get across the information they needed to make the election process work."

For proof he points to the absence of criticism from the two parties which were once his former political foes — the Liberals and New Democrats.

"I haven't had one bit of criticism from the other two parties as showing any partiality."

So, as far as the one-time veteran campaigner is concerned, it is possible to make the shift.

"I feel it is possible to become impartial," he says. "You may have your own political views from a provincial or federal point of view, but I think when you get put in that position (of returning officer) you respect the oath that you have taken, I think it's very possible to take a neutral position down the line."

Although he might first have missed his one-time political associations, he feels he's also gained in his appointment.

"I've gained a lot of new friends in both other parties that I would not have known at election time normally — they would have been political foes.

"This time they became just political workers — and I was in the middle steering the ship.

"And frankly," he adds, "I think I gained a lot of good friends — and certainly knowledge from them that I didn't have before."

But — did such impartiality trouble some of his old party political colleagues?

"I'll know that," laughs the returning officer, "probably as the days go on as to how much I offended or annoyed some of my (former) good Conservative organizers.

"They didn't openly criticize me at all," he muses. "But," confesses Mr. Joyce, "I felt that they felt I was being pretty picky in making them do certain things I would ask any political party to do. Frankly, I went out of my way to make sure they got no favors in any shape or form.

"And that might have annoyed a few of them," he adds. "But as far as I was concerned it was three parties (contesting the riding). They all started off on an equal base. And although I had a lot of good friends and a lot of ex-political colleagues in the Progressive Conservative party I didn't give them any favors.

"Frankly, they were very kind," he says of his one-time comrades - in - election - arms, "I don't think they expected any."

There is a second dilemma that faces a returning officer — though its chances of becoming reality have been remote in most ridings in most Canadian elections: The power to cast the winning vote in the eventuality of a tie between candidates.

That's the only chance he gets to vote. As a citizen, the returning officer is disenfranchised from casting a ballot in the election he is umpiring. However, it was a possibility that didn't haunt Mr. Joyce in his election - as returning officer.

"It would have been a situation I hadn't really considered," he admits.

Further: "It's a position I wouldn't want to put myself in — but if I had to I would use the vote as I see fit."

Dr. Potter won last Thursday's campaign handily.

But would the returning officer say which candidate the crucial decision would have favored?

"Well. It's a situation that hasn't arisen, hopefully, as long as I'm returning officer it won't happen. And I'll have to consider that fact should the situation arise.

"Today, not having to make that decision in my own mind, in my own conscience, I know how I would vote.

"But in another election, another set of circumstances I would have to consider that fact."

Such personal naggings, however, may be on the decline. For now, both federally and provincially returning officers are lifetime appointments — barring indiscretions which could see them removed — a contrast to the days when such appointment was tied to the fortunes of political parties and even local candidates.

And Mr. Joyce is looking forward to future elections in the same impartial role.

Despite some snags in his first experience at electoral refereeing — printer's ink which suddenly began producing carbon copies of poll officials' signatures caused a momentary flurry over possible spoiling of ballots; some poll clerks didn't show up as promised; some voters found themselves enumerated but it would have to consider that fact."

With the rulings of the chief returning officer in Toronto such impediments were overcome.

"But all in all," says Mr. Joyce, "there were no quarrels within the polls. There are no questions from anyone that the election process was not very fair at the polls. We didn't have to go out and referee any problems in the polls."

Indicative of the standards maintained by poll officials was the fact there were only small differences in the voting tallies made on - the - spot election night and yesterday's official count.

Compared to election-night problems publicized in other ridings, Quinte constituency "had no problems at all."

"I'm just delighted," he sums up. "It's my first attempt.

"And with experience, of course, it will come easier the next time."

Just One More Check

Returning officer Gerald Joyce with assistant Helen Vandervoort, makes quick check of poll total at official count of provincial Quinte riding election votes yesterday. For Mr. Joyce, umpiring his first campaign as a non-political public official, the election, he says, posed no problems that weren't solved.

Thank You!

To my supporters I extend my thanks for your continued friendship. Your action at the polls last Thursday was most appreciated.

I think the four years ahead will be most exciting ones. It could quite well be that the focus of attention will swing to an even greater extent to Eastern Ontario. As the representative for Hastings I would like to assure every one in the riding that I will do my utmost to see that all residents share beneficially in the development of our area of the province.

To every resident of Hastings, I point out my position has not changed. I pledge my support and the goodwill of my office as your member of the provincial parliament to work in your best interest. I ask only that you make me aware of any problems as they arise.

Sincerely
Clarke J. Rollins

Negro and Farm Vote, However, Rema in Blank Spots

Richard Nixon's Presidential Star Is Rising

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — With the United States presidential election little more than a year off, President Nixon might be forgiven if he secretly wished the test would come next month instead of November, 1972.

He's in fighting form, demonstrating a greater mastery over events than probably any time in his presidency. The polls reflect a substantial increase in his popularity.

Equally important, the Democratic party is virtually leaderless, poor by comparison with the well-financed Republicans, and hard-pressed in its search for popular election issues. And it faces a possibly nasty battle over the party presidential nomination at next summer's convention.

Given the vagaries of a capricious political situation, all this could change in a year. But as of today Nixon is sitting pretty.

Sometimes called the "unseen president," Nixon in style has changed form, being visibly in control of affairs, appearing frequently on radio and television and making public appearances in a number of states where votes are vital to his re-election.

To use one of his favorite terms, the whole thing is said to be part of his "game plan" — a design to bring decisive action on a number of fronts in the final year of his four-year term.

Throughout the two principal slogans have been "A full generation of peace" and "Prosperity without war."

To this end, the turnabout on China policy and his planned visit to Peking with a follow-up trip to Moscow have attracted popular support.

In dealing with the twin devils of inflation and unemployment he and his free-wheeling treasury secretary, John B. Connally, have imposed strong medicine.

While labor is annoyed by the wage freeze and many thoughtful Americans are concerned that the 10-per-cent import surcharge will bring retaliation or at least an era of ill-will from U.S. trading partners, it seems that the majority of Americans are sympathetic to the way Nixon is dealing with this national crisis.

In another field, Nixon recently pressured Japan and some other countries into agreeing to limit textile exports to the U.S. This fulfilled a three-year-old election promise to the hard-pressed textile industries of the U.S. south.

That is not to suggest Nixon is without remaining serious problems.

For a start, the overseas journeys could turn out to be disappointing. And, if there's another situation stubbornly refuses to budge, it would reflect on him.

The extreme right wing of the Republican party, observers say, is disappointed in him, particularly over the China issue.

He got practically no Negro support in his 1968 election. So far there is little or no evidence that he has substantially increased in winning over the black vote or that of other important minorities, such as the Mexican-Americans.

Also, the farm industry, particularly in the traditionally Republican Midwest, is hard-pressed and showing growing discontent.

In 1972, the youth between 18 and 21 years will get the vote for the first time. Some observers have suggested the young could decide it in a close vote. Others, however, feel that the Democrats are mistaken in their belief that they can take the youthful voters for granted.

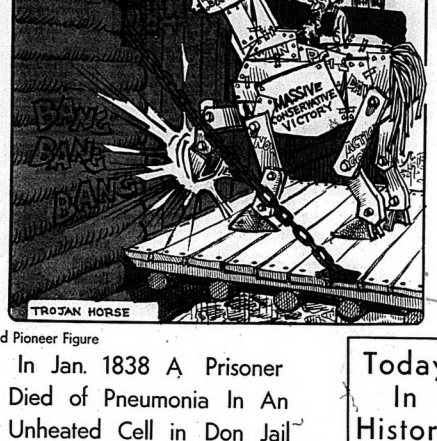
A number of studies have indicated that voter-registration among these new voters has been low so far.

In other words, many may not vote for anyone—and that would hurt the Democrats more than Nixon.

Kosygin Departs

There will be a sigh of relief now that Premier Kosygin has departed our shores. Not that he was altogether unwelcome, but rather that the business of security for such a man is so formidable.

Canada's police were equal to the task though, with an assist from the experience of the first day or two when Mr. Kosygin was attacked but not seriously hurt on Parliament Hill. That incident rendered even stronger security inevitable.



Meanwhile, the police raids on a number of Toronto homes on Sunday, and the netting of arms — some of them loaded — and ammunition is an indication of the type of threat that exists during such a visit. Two persons were arrested, neither of them, incidentally, persons with European names which goes to show that any alleged antipathy to a person of Mr. Kosygin's political background is not necessarily confined to any one ethnic group.

Trouble had been expected from members of the right-wing Edmund Burke Society and indeed they were among demonstrators during Mr. Kosygin's Toronto visit. One of their number, interviewed on television, gave the impression that his own political bent, his so-called antagonism to Soviet oppression, might be matched by comparable extremism on his group's part if given a chance. Moderate men, in other words, are not all that plentiful in our own system of democracy, and virtually non-existent among such as the Maoists on the one hand and the Edmund Burke Society on the other.

It would be interesting to know just what the Soviet premier's own private reaction to such demonstrations was. The fact that they are permitted at all is doubtless alien to his way of thinking. None the less he must be aware of what the protestors are trying to get across: the Soviet Union is not a country where freedom of the individual is paramount.

A glimpse of Kosygin the average man and tourist, rather than the powerful politician, did come through in an interview with The Globe and Mail's Bruce West, when he told him, "like a visiting uncle," that he "had a great desire just to rove in the streets and visit a Canadian home."

Yes indeed . . . the trials of being a politician, and one of the leaders of the Communist world's leading exponent, the Soviet Union.

Peking Makes It

So the Nationalist Chinese in Formosa (Talwan) have been given the chop by the United Nations and Communist China admitted in the place of the Chiang Kai-chek government.

This development had to come at some stage and Canada's recognition of the Peking government is generally credited with hastening the inevitable. Ironically, it would seem to illustrate the hypocrisy of international politics which after all are only a reflection of the conduct of the human species. The United States has been going to bat for Taiwan and maintain its seat in the UN, in addition to the newly-arriving Communist regime, but no one, least of all Washington, really believed this would come about. The U.S. was simply going through the motions. The Nationalist Chinese have been dropped from the world body, and the cynicism of the whole business cannot be lost on international opinion.

Taiwan doubtless will survive as a nation, with the continued backing of the United States, but of course it can no longer maintain the admittedly artificial position of representing not only the 14,000,000 population of the island itself but, more interestingly, as a sort of government-in-exile, over the mainland as well. If Peking had been recognized in the beginning the Chinese in Taiwan would not now be getting brushed off in such unceremonious fashion.

U.S. Chastised

Characteristically, Mitchell Sharp sounded as if he was lecturing — in the sense of admonishing — when he told an NBC interviewer the other day that Canadians did not want to be "pushed." Public opinion in Canada, the External Affairs Minister told the rather startled American, might not tolerate U.S. economic impositions indefinitely and demand reprisals.

Mr. Sharp knew he was enjoying a large audience and made the most of it. But whether his naughty-boy style reprimands would carry much weight in Washington is another matter. The surcharge has been imposed and Canada, though the United States' largest customer, has been informed there will be no exceptions.

Noted Pioneer Figure

In Jan. 1838 A Prisoner Died of Pneumonia In An Unheated Cell in Don Jail

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

Somewhere in the neighborhood of the one-time villages of Waterloo and Berlin (now Kitchener), Col. Anthony van Egmond in 1828 recruited two German-speaking immigrants, Sebastian Fryfogel and Andrew Seuch. The three of them set up leg-cabin taverns in advance of the west gangs that chopped out the first road from New Hamburg to Goderich.

Col. van Egmond, an ex-soldier who had commanded a Dutch battalion in Napoleon's march to Moscow in 1812, was one of the colorful figures in the pioneer period in this part of Ontario. He gets less space — like many others — than he deserves in Canadian history texts.

He was a leader of discontented settlers in contests with the Canada Company. He planted and harvested the first grain crop between New Hamburg and Lake Huron. He undertook to give military training to William Lyon Mackenzie's volunteers for the rebellion of 1837.

His involvement with Mackenzie was unlucky. He never did train any rebels but he was taken prisoner and charged with treason. While he was awaiting trial, in an unheated basement cell in the old Don jail in Toronto, he died of pneumonia in January, 1838.

A local historical group in the Seaforth area is now trying to preserve the brick house he built in the 1830s at Egmondville, 50 miles north-west of the Twin Cities. The project is more worthy than most of its kind, and deserves help from either provincial or federal budgets for preserving historic sites.

White House Moves

Auto Industry Gets Boost—But What About the Environment?

Christian Science Monitor

We can understand why President Nixon used the automobile industry as his first instrument for stimulating the American economy. We are still in the automobile age.

The quickest way to provide jobs and give a fresh flush of apparent prosperity to the economy probably is through Detroit. The 10 per cent extra tax off on foreign car imports, the excise tax rebate, and the quicker investment writeoff are all goodies for Detroit which probably will pay off in benefits to everyone in the United States who sells things through the automobile industry or benefits from selling the Detroit products to the public.

But now that Mr. Nixon has used the internal combustion engine as his chosen stimulant for the economy, we trust that he will give some thought as his further planning to the American environment.

What's good for the economy in the short run, and Detroit as well, is not necessarily good for the future of life in the United States. Even if it turns out that lead in gasoline is not as dangerous as it was for a time presumed to be, we all know that motorcar exhaust fumes made the air of Los Angeles, New York, and many other cities unfit for human (or animal) consumption. And we all know that nothing chews up scenery, scenery, and farm land as fast as superhighways.

In the good society of the future there will be more emphasis on public transportation, less on the individual luxury of the automobile. There are other ways of stimulating the economy for the long run which will do all good and no harm.

Urbán renewal, modern schools in city slums, underground railroads, high-speed rail service between cities where rail can beat air at less cost (Boston-New York for example) are all urgent necessities. Investment in such projects would stimulate the American economy while improving, not further damaging, the environment.

So far Mr. Nixon's economic policies, necessary and justifiable as they are from the short-run point of view, are pointing to leave an even bigger cleanup problem for his successors than the one he inherited.

We urge the White House to keep in mind the importance of salvaging as much as possible of the natural American environment. Future generations will thank him more for green forests and clean water than for more highways and bigger automobile scrap heaps.

The 'Silly Season'—From Oregon to Ontario!

Portland Oregonian

And now, topless bait girls. It figures. Sooner or later the topless fad was bound to invade sports.

The enterprising Newport charter boat skipper who plans to see such bait girls next season points out that he's had a lot of small town "fleet" about his plan "but once we're out to sea, who's gonna care?" He may have something at that. No fisherman on such a trip is going to complain, even if he fails to land his limit.

But what next? Topless ushers at ball parks? Topless cheerleaders at football games? Topless caddies on the golf course? When it comes to sports topless ideas have unlimited possibilities in this "anything goes" age.

Uganda's President Idi Amin ordered the traditionally nude Karamojons to cover themselves and some of them complied.

But tribal conservatives did not like this new morality. They preferred things as they had been, all in the open.

So they forced those who had covered themselves to eat their clothes.

Makes you shudder for our girls. If they had to eat only what they wear, they'd die of starvation.

Enter the 'Davis Era'

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park

The province now is launched on a completely new ball game, the fourth in 28 years.

The first one started with George Drew's election in 1942, the second and third in 1951 and 1963 when Leslie Frost and John Robarts ran the show for nine terms, and now, as of the Davis election of last week, the fourth.

I say a new game now, even though William Davis has been premier for eight months, because in practical terms the Davis era will date from the election.

Until a new leader has a mandate he is not really in the saddle.

He doesn't have the endorsement of the public, he doesn't even have the unqualified backing of his own supporters and his immediate colleagues other than the long-term future governing of the province, so he is on his own himself and win a quick seal of approval.

The man we saw before an election is not the man we will see once he has a firm grip on power.

And not only because he has been insecure, but because with power men always change.

Most recall Leslie Frost, before settling into the premiership he was a mild, relatively unknown man.

Then he became Old Man Ontario, as empirical a figure as we have had.

And John Robarts? A relaxed, country-club type of man who seemed to almost look down his nose at politics.

You wouldn't have seen in him the statesman who developed and the master politician who carried his party through two elections. It is pretty well agreed that in 1967, at least, the Conservatives could have been sunk without him.

Now what will we see in Davis?

To date we know an apparently unaffected and most pleasant man who seems to be able to keep his cool, who ran a superb election campaign, who gives the impression of great patience, who is obviously physically capable of prodigious amounts of work and who says his guideline in governing the province will be "the best interests of the people".

But this is all pretty superficial.

What is the deep Davis, the Davis that the premiership will bring out as it brought out the deep Frost and the deep Robarts?

Is he a man who can grasp the long - term future? If he didn't, Robarts tried to. Will he be decisive and prompt to act when action is called for, does he have imagination or the capacity to listen and accept imagination around him, does he have the toughness, the callousness, which leadership can demand?

All the answers to these and other questions rest the course of the new game, and with it the course of the province itself.

Auto Sales Pitch

Cars Join Mall Stock

There's little actual relationship between new cars, coats and cookies, but up at the new Quinte Mall on North Front Street customers can do the whole shopping bit under one roof.

Commencing last week and continuing until Oct. 30, Elliott Motors is staging a first-ever auto show for Belleville in an enclosed shopping Mall.

So, until the end of this week, the car enthusiast of the family can check over the new Buicks and Pontiacs — full sized, mid - sized and compacts — while the other half of the marriage partnership is shopping for the groceries or other requirements.

Or Mom and Dad, along with the kiddies, could make the car inspection a family affair.

Shopping mall auto shows are old hat for the larger metropolitan centres but, with the opening this year of the new North Front Street mall, this is the first opportunity local auto dealers have had to get in on the action.

Frank Jeffrey, veteran salesman at Elliott's says the new approach to auto sales is interesting but admits the results are a bit hard to assess.

"You do get a lot more exposure than say at the regular showroom, but just how many orders are written because of the shopping mall show is difficult to say," he says.

However, he admits you do get to talk to a great many potential customers who might never come into your showroom, says Mr. Jeffrey.

Many shopping mall patrons have shown considerable interest in the new models and could become customers.

Elliott's have 18 different models at the mall, ranging in size from the biggest Buicks right down to the smallest sized General Motors compact.

And depending on the day of the week, as many as three or four salesmen are on hand to answer questions — and hopefully make a sale.

Religion Course for Hastings Debated

The Ontario department of education has instituted a new high school course in comparative study of world religions and some trustees went to see it taught in Hastings county.

Raymond Rowe asked board administrators Monday night about plans for implementing the course in local school.

"Something should be done," agreed board chairman Donald Williams. "It disturbs me a little bit that you give the impression we're way off on this."

Superintendent D. C. Stirling said the curriculum committees would have to plan the course, since the department of education's guidelines are "very loose." First decision would be to determine "which of five basic religions should be studied in depth."

Mcira's principal, E. J. Shipton, who happened to be present at the board meeting, was asked by trustees to give his opinion on the course.

"I feel we will continue as we are," he said of Moira. "Students are studying four of the world's major religions as part of their history course now and the new course is not needed."

But as a result of Mr. Rowe's query, principals will bring reports to the board of courses their schools will be offering next year.

Tyendinaga Wolf Nets $55 Bounty

Scott McLaren of Melrose this week shot a brush wolf on his grandfather's farm and will collect a total of $55 county and township bounty for his efforts.

The grandfather, Leslie McLaren, said several wolves had been spotted in his area and at least one of them had developed a liking for chicken, as was indicated by the skeletons of birds found in nearby thickets.

The McLaren chickens have been running outside during the summer but were penned up yesterday.

Township clerk William Walsh says normally there are quite a few wolves shot in the township each fall, usually during or after the hunting season.

One Word in Tax Bill Finally Changed

OTTAWA (CP) — After 19 days of debate since the summer recess and seven days under clause-by-clause scrutiny, the Commons finally changed a word in the 707-page government tax reform bill Tuesday.

A whole clause almost got through, but initial approval later was rescinded when Social Credit members said there was so much noise at their end of the chamber they didn't know what they were voting for.

It all started with approval of the first of 35 government amendments to the bill—changing the word "taxpayer" to the word "individual" in one of the clauses.

This passed by a voice vote and Deputy Speaker Russell Honey immediately put the whole clause to the House for a vote and it too appeared to have passed. Then came the Social Credit disclaimer and the debate resumed.

In an attempt to hasten the bill through the planned implementation Jan. 1, all parties agreed last week to limit debate. This week it was to be on clauses dealing with the basic income tax and certain other deductible items.

Debate in the afternoon and early evening stuck close to the points in the clauses.

Referring to Prime Minister Trudeau's oft-quoted statement that the state has no place in the bedrooms of the nation, Robert McCleave, (PC—Halifax-East Hants) asked for a tax break for couples living together outside the bonds of matrimony. At present, they are taxed as single persons.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson replied that it was impossible to define the kind of common-law relations that should be sanctioned by tax law.

Mr. McCleave, a lawyer, said it would be easy to establish that maintaining a residence for two people was the determining factor.

There was a barrage of complaints that the increase in personal tax exemptions amounted to too little, too late.

The bill would boost the single person's exemption to $1,500 from $1,000 and to $2,850 from $2,000 for a married couple. About 750,000 Canadians would be relieved of paying taxes.

There were renewed pleas that a tax-credit system—basing the tax reductions for an individual on such factors as total income, number of dependents, age and other related factors—would be better than across-the-board exemptions.

Pat Mahoney, Mr. Benson's parliamentary secretary, said a government study showed there was no more flexibility in a program of tax credits than there was in basic exemptions.

But John Skoberg (NDP—Moose Jaw) said the Liberals steered away from tax credits because this had stimulated an organized protest movement by those in the top income brackets. The middle classes, unorganized, were ignored.

P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe North) said the basic exemptions were last changed in 1949. The proposed increase in this bill came nowhere near matching the amount by which the cost of living had debased the dollar's purchasing value since then.

In the evening portion of the debate, Mr. Honey ruled against an amendment by Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) that would put the basic exemptions at $2,000 for a single person and $4,000 for a couple. It also would have recouped lost government revenue by a tougher tax bite on the upper income brackets.

Then an amendment by John Burton (NDP—Regina East) to increase deductions for medical expenditures went down handily in a voice vote.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette then took the floor.

Paying scant heed to repeated pleas from the chair to stick to the subjects under discussion, he castigated the Liberals for high unemployment and the entry of China into the United Nations.

Monetary Pact Predicted

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A senior economist at the Research Institute of America said Tuesday he believes the United States' 10-per-cent supplementary duty on imports will be removed next year and a new international monetary agreement reached.

Bert Gottfried of New York City predicted Canada's exports "will pick up even more" in 1972 when the U.S. eases current economic restrictions.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the London Chamber of Commerce, he said the U.S. move could be "a blessing in disguise" because it will force Canada to expand its export market in other countries.

Mr. Gottfried also predicted the U.S. dollar will devalue by two percentage points when the economic situation returns to normal next year.

Eskimo Carvings

A collection of Eskimo sculpture s, said to be one of the most important of its kind, will soon go on exhibition in Vancouver, Moscow, Leningrad, Paris, Copenhagen, Philadelphia and Ottawa. The 405 selections from the cream of Eskimo carvings, past and present, have taken four years to assemble, with the biggest sculptures weighing hundreds of pounds and the smallest a half-inch running polar bear. Photo shows Dr. William Taylor, director of the National Museum of Man looking at the sculptures with Miss Sharon VanRaalte, co-ordinator of the Eskimo exhibitions.

Nixon Given Endorsement

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon received a vote of confidence and a standing ovation Tuesday from a meeting of about 80 Liberal candidates who ran in last Thursday's provincial election.

"Believe me, I appreciated that," Mr. Nixon told reporters later. Most of the candidates who attended the meeting were

Mr. Nixon said he will be forced to make some cuts in his office staff because of the party's weak showing in the election.

Each party receives $7,000 per member from the province for research and secretarial staff, so the Liberals' loss of seven seats will cost the party $49,000 a year.

Lewis Criticized As Too Moderate

TORONTO (CP) — At least one prominent member of the New Democratic Party blames provincial party leader Stephen Lewis for being too moderate in the campaign for last Thursday's Ontario election.

Steven Penner, defeated NDP candidate in Toronto Dovercourt and chairman of the Ontario Waffle section, a radical and ultra-nationalist group, accused Mr. Lewis of being too moderate.

Dr. Morton Shulman, who won Toronto High Park by a big margin for the NDP, disagreed. He argued that "a major factor" in the party's showing was Mr. Lewis's radical image.

Successful Living

Youthful Writer Consults Doris

By DORIS CLARK

I have a budding writer among my pen pals. Whether she will blossom into fine stories or whodunits, I'm not sure yet. Here are samples which have been arriving in my mail sometimes printed, sometimes written, but with a suspicious similarity in the juvenile shaping of the letters:

"My husband likes to play with children's toys. Yesterday he bought a Barbie doll! Today he wanted me to play babysitch with him. — Child's Wife"

"My husband and I were painting our house black. He purposely poured the paint on my bloody hair. Should I forgive him for rubing my sex appeal? — Black and Blonde Mess"

"My boy friend purposed to me three days ago, and last night he came and ate in a restaurant booth behind me, not seeing me. As I looked behind me to see who was making the awful racket, I saw him purposing — another girl. What can I do? — First Girl"

No name, no address. Any readers like to prophesy what brilliant future my unknown correspondent is headed for?

Dear Doris: I have a message for the lady who signed "Real Fathers", and here it is:

Dear Failure; Please do not insist on not going to see a psychiatrist and don't you ever believe the story tellers about the doctors being only interested in your money. It is absolutely not true.

I was like you for a long time, but thanks to the doctors and psychiatrists I am back to normal and I know for a fact that they are interested a lot more in your health than in your money. They talk so nicely about your childhood, your married life and so on. To me they are marvelous. Nowadays, with all the smart doctors we have, there is no reason to suffer in silence any more like I did.

I hope for the sake of your little girl and good husband and also, for your own, good that you will talk to a doctor before it is too late. You won't be sorry you did. — Sailing In The Same Boat

Dear Sailing: Thank you. Your letter may be just what R.F. needs to pluck up her courage and get help.

Dear Doris: I would be interested to know where Grey Hair obtained her diploma. A very good friend of mine is interested in doing something similar. — Another Grey Hairs.

Dear Another: Grey Hairs The First never did tell us just where she went to get her training. We had sent her to two sources of help: the principal of a continuing education centre and a college of applied arts and sciences.

This was after I had specific information from a provincial minister of education as to where she could get the help she needed. I am sending you a similar address which would apply where you are.

Let's hear whether your friend has a success story like hers for us, later on.

(Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let Doris help you see the light).

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

by JOHN CONWELL

Can a man's name affect his chance of marrying?

Answer: No, not even if a man has such a tongue-twisting name that he hates to ask a girl to go through the same difficulties he has experienced in spouting off his own name. An individual like that may be self-conscious about saying his name because he was born with, by a girl who agrees to marry him, though, will not have that trouble, since she will be putting a "Mrs." in front of it through her own choice.

Does it disturb a woman if she doesn't like kids?

Answer: It may, but it shouldn't if she isn't a mother although some women who have to force themselves to "ooh" and "ash" over someone else's baby often say it is a good thing that they never did become mothers. Many women with those thoughts say they have an aversion to children, just to convince themselves that they are glad that they don't have children. If they ever do, however, they fast lose their aversion to kids.

Is a 'gripe' the same as a complaint?

Answer: Not always; and that is why more attention should be paid to whether a person is complaining or griping. A legitimate complaint, of course, should be corrected. Yet sometimes an individual may be griping about something he doesn't want changed. It may be a tough course in college. He gripes about it, sure, but rather than expect anyone to change it, he just wants to be sure everyone knows he is accepting its challenge.

Neighbors' Aid Holds Reunion

Holloway Street United Church was the scene of a happy reunion recently for the Avendale Neighbors' Aid group.

Mrs. J. Cordes, who was WMS president in 1937, when the Aid was formed by Holloway Street Church women, welcomed them back to the church for this occasion, wishing all a pleasant time. The guests were from Deseronto, Demorestville, Frankford, Napanee and Cameron.

The motto of the group was "To help others — work together in the neighborhood," and a poem "Ladies' Aid," was read by Mrs. E. Hall, president. Mrs. L. Adams was pianist for several sing songs during the afternoon.

After a public luncheon, provided by the present members, an anniversary cake made by Mrs. L. Legace and decorated for this special day was cut.

Highlights of the past years were given by Mrs. C. Holmes explaining that on February 13, 1937, Avendale Neighbors' Aid was formed and affiliated with Holloway Street United Church with 13 members. In 1948 there were 51 members. The meeting day chosen was the second Thursday of every month.

A summary of various programs over the years included travelogues, study books, demonstrations, displays of antiques, addresses from representatives of different groups, etc. A service for deceased members was held in 1965.

Money making projects over the years were: pancake supper in 1938, catering in the 1940's, travelling basket, quilting, home bake sales, rummage sales and euchres.

In this community the Aid assisted Avendale School, Brownies, Sunday School. The war work was outstanding. members were presented with service pins.

The Neighbors' Aid helped to organize the Hastings Manor Auxiliary in 1959. An organ was purchased and presented to Hastings Manor for their chapel in 1967.

Mrs. R. Cameron gave a memory test over the years when she asked, "Do you remember?" and dealt with various events.

U.C.W. Meeting

ST. ANDREW'S UCW

Members of the St. Andrew's UCW met recently in the Christian Education Hall. Mrs. D. Vilneff, president, opened the meeting, welcomed those present and chaired the business session.

In addition to the usual business and correspondence, a letter received from the group's foster child was read. These letters telling of daily interests and dreams for the future, are always received with a real interest by everyone.

Plans for the annual UCW Christmas Bazaar and tea were discussed. The date is to be Nov. 26 from 2 - 5 p.m. with a general admission charge. It was decided not to have a supper in conjunction with the bazaar this year.

Several members attended the Centre Hastings Regional Rally of UCW at Tweed. The theme for this meeting was "What shall we do in '72?" Miss G. Warren is now 1st regional vice-president and in 1974, she will preside over the rally to be held in Marmora United Church.

Mrs. K. Gillies was in charge of the evening's program and presented listeners with a great deal of food for thought as she gave members a glimpse at the useful tools or education as seen by students. From a survey taken with school children in Marmora, it was pointed out clearly that children learn from many different sources, but that not all children learn by the same methods. It was interesting to note that a group of 12-year-olds chose people to be the greatest educative force, putting the home and the school next in line of importance.

Mrs. Gillies closed the program with three quiet meditations.

Hard Cooked Eggs Treat for Halloween

By ALICE DENHOFF

Just a few nights now and the witches will be leaving their covens to gas up their broomsticks for their Halloween night ride. Youngsters will be out on their trick or treat rounds and many will be collecting for UNICEF, the world children's fund. And Mom will be busy devising refreshments for family and friends. Many surprises can be anticipated at a Halloween party and one such might well be smoked hard-cooked eggs, an easy trick that's a fun treat.

SMOKED EGGS

6 hard-cooked eggs, freshly shelled
2 cups cold water
2 teaspoons liquid smoke seasoning

Place freshly-shelled eggs in jar. Pour in water and liquid smoke. Cover and refrigerate. Several hours are required for smoke to flavor eggs. Eggs may be kept in smoke liquid as long as they last. As part of the fun and frolic, place the smoked eggs in a bowl disguised as a cauldron and place a cardboard witch near the bowl to stir additional attention.

Since the imps will be busy on Halloween, how about preparing:

DEVILED EGGS SPANISH STYLE

1-3 cup chopped onion
1-3 cup chopped celery
1-3 cup butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon sugar
Salt to taste
¼ teaspoon ground pepper
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
1 can (1 pound 13 ounces, about 3½ cups) tomatoes
6 hard-cooked eggs, deviled (recipe follows)
½ cup buttered fine bread crumbs

Cook onion and celery in butter over low heat until onion is tender but not brown. Blend in flour and seasonings. Add tomatoes all at once. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Pour in shallow, 1½-quart baking dish. Arrange deviled eggs in sauce; top with crumbs. Bake in 425 F. oven until sauce is bubbly around edges, 10 to 15 minutes. Serve over toast, or if you have to feed a hungry bunch, serve over spaghetti or noodles. Serves 6.

Now for the:

DEVILED EGGS

6 hard-cooked eggs
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¾ teaspoon salad mustard
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons lemon juice or vinegar
⅛ teaspoon ground pepper
3 tablespoons mayonnaise or salad dressing

Cut eggs in halves. Remove yolks and press through sieve. Combine yolks with remaining ingredients; beat until smooth. If desired, add more seasoning and salad dressing. Refill whites with yolk mixture, using fork, spoon or pastry tube.

No matter the occasion, ice cream is always a star attraction. Then how about a spicy, tangy Halloween:

APPLE-GINGERED ICE CREAM

¼ cup chopped candied ginger
2 cups canned apple sauce
1 quart vanilla ice cream

Combine first 2 ingredients; chill in refrigerator several hours or overnight. Place ice cream in 6 serving dishes. Top with gingered sauce.

Most Ex-TB Patients Better Employment Risk Than Others

Dear Ann Landers: Would you do your readers a favor and print this letter? I am recovering from tuberculosis, which was detected early. I am in my mid-20s and had never been sick before in my life. When the TB trailer was in our neighborhood, I was in a hurry but decided to take the few minutes. Those few minutes may have saved my life.

Many people still have old notions about TB. Would you please set them straight? In order to catch TB a person must be run down and susceptible. After a brief time on medication, the TB patient is not contagious. Also when a person has been declared "cured" by his doctor, he is as capable a worker as he was before he became sick. Many people have written to tell me they are sorry about my illness and they hope someone will be kind and hire me. Please inform your readers that a person who has had TB is extremely health conscious and will get regular medical checkups which makes him a better employment risk than non people. Thanks a lot. —100 per cent O.K.

Dear O.K.: Bravo! Thanks for giving me the opportunity to get some vital information to 54 million readers.

Dear Ann Landers: I married into a rather strange family. I told myself I was marrying Len, and not his relatives but these people are beginning to get to me. The thing I find most irritating is the way my mother-in-law makes such a point of how people look.

I'm no beauty, but I wouldn't scare small children either. My mother-in-law never stops talking about how "beautiful" this one is and how "gorgeous" that one is. We went to a luncheon yesterday and on the way home, she spoke endlessly about the women who were there. Didn't I think A was "plain," B was "homely," C was "unattractive," D was "stunning," F was "magnificent"? F was "a knockout." I was so depressed by the time I got home, I had a headache.

Please give me some advice on how to handle this.—Unhappy With My Looks

Dear UN: Interesting that the real problem showed up not in your letter but in your signature. One thing is certain, you are not going to change your mother-in-law, so you'd better change your attitude toward her. Make sure you look as good as you can in her presence, then forget it. The important thing is that you get along with her son—and to heck with the rest of it. It doesn't matter.

Dear Ann Landers: Bless you for speaking out against bridal showers that soak everybody to the skin. I could have kissed you when I read that column.

I live in a small town where the same people get invited to everything. We just got through paying for the shower gifts and the wedding present, and here comes an ad in the paper: "BABY SHOWER EVERYBODY WELCOME." Now I ask you, is this nerve? After helping to furnish the bride's home, we are asked to dress her kid. What is the matter with these people that they can't see it?

In between the bridal shower and the baby announcement is an invitation to a tea in honor of the parents' 25th wedding anniversary. Then, the little brother graduates from high school and we have to send a fountain pen. Am I the only person besides you who believes this is terrible? Please set my mind at ease. Sometimes I think I'm a little goofy on the subject.—Peeved-Pooped and Pitcher-Pocked-Poor

Dear PP and PP: We aren't alone. I received a raft of letters, from women who feel the same way. I'll repeat my advice. These grabby gimmicks will continue so long as women accept invitations. The only solution is a boycott after one shower. And I suggest a $3 gift-limit.

Hastings Centre Regional UCW Rally Held in Tweed

The Hastings Centre Regional Rally of UCW was held in Tweed United Church. The theme of the rally was, programming. "What will we do in '72?"

The regional vice-president, Mrs. Jack Bush welcomed the group and opened the meeting with an inspirational poem.

Mrs. Parrish of Tweed UCW gave a warm welcome to the Tweed United Church and expressed the wish for a successful rally.

Mrs. Bush conducted the business which included a letter of appreciation from Mrs. Snow in Angola. She was expressing thanks on behalf of the people for the large bale of allocation articles sent following the 1970 rally.

Marmora UCW extended an invitation to entertain the 1974 rally as part of the 100th anniversary of their church, which was also accepted.

The report of the nominations' committee was given as follows: past vice-president, Mrs. Jack Bush, Frankford; regional vice-president, Mrs. Max Burnside, Madoc; 1st regional vice-president, Miss Grace Warren, Marmora; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Rex Rollins, Madoc; nominating committee, Mrs. Hodgins, Mrs. Holden, and Mrs. Meiklejohn.

Mrs. Bush paid tribute to the nominating committee and asked the new officers elect to stand as she introduced them.

Mrs. T. W. Spear brought greetings from the Presbyterial and introduced Presbyterial officers present — Miss Sexsmith, overseas relief officer; Mrs. Williams, correspondeing secretary and Mrs. Adams concerning stewardship workshops. Mrs. Spear closed with a poem with the thought "Someone needs us and needs what we can give." Each local presented a layette or money to be used for blankets. Flinton UCW received and dedicated the layette articles plus enough money for 58 blankets to be used at a mission hospital.

Mrs. Huyck and Mrs. Kells introduced many new and interesting books, music and cassettes in their literature report.

Mrs. Cox of Bethel UCW led in a singsong which included many African songs as Mrs. Jack Bush and Mrs. Don Williams prepared to lead the ladies on a "Programming Safari to Africa." Following their introduction to the new study book, the women were divided into buzz groups where they learned new methods to study and present "Africa" in their own locals. Miss Adams concluded the safari with an entertaining imaginary lion hunt.

The vice-president invited everyone to the dining hall where Mrs. Spear gave an African grace and all enjoyed dinner prepared by the Tweed UCW.

Mrs. Peters of Marmora led the afternoon session in a hymn sing, which was followed by an inspirational worship service conducted by Thomasburg UCW under the leadership of Mrs. Bob Sararas and her assistants.

The afternoon's presentation of "Women's Lib — Are ya for it or agin it?" spurred everyone's interest as Queensboro UCW staged a demonstration down the aisle, followed by a skit. Questions concerning the skit were discussed with good group participation.

Everyone joined in a prayer of courtesy and thanks was expressed to Tweed UCW. Mrs. Bush was thanked for her excellent leadership during the past two years and the rally closed.

Cancer Patients Not Thought Threat to Nurse

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a nurse's aide and have taken care of several terminal cancer patients. Is there a chance of being contaminated or infected with discharge from patients I have handled?

I have read that cancer is not infectious, but is there a chance of some cancer cells being transmitted through cuts or wounds?

Many articles tell about the possible or proven causes of cancer, but I haven't seen the answer to what I am asking. Do the cancer cells exist only in the patient's body? Why does not the health department require isolation techniques on cancer patients?—Mrs. L. P. E.

The exact cause of cancer has not been determined, and there is reason to wonder whether there is "a cause." One possibility is that cancer occurs under a certain combination of circumstances—a combination of heredity, hormones, irritants, virus and possibly others.

Why not isolation techniques for cancer patients? There's no more cancer among nurses and others who care for such patients than is the rest of the population, which is pretty good basis for believing that cancer is not transmitted.

Another reason is based on a study some years ago when a number of convicts volunteered to have cancers transplanted into their bodies. There were live, growing cancers. In most cases, the cancers stopped growing and were destroyed by the body. The only exception was with volunteers who already had cancer. Only in those cases did the transplanted cancers continue to grow.

Thus there is no reason to think that, as a nurse, you are endangered by caring for cancer patients. (This also is the answer to others who ask whether there is any danger in living with a person who has cancer, eating at the same table with him, using clothes or other articles formerly used by a cancer patient. Cancer is not transmitted in any such manner.)

There is one point that you should keep in mind as a nurse, though. Open cancers easily become infected, just as any open wound can. The germs causing such a secondary infection should, of course, be avoided. Just as you would avoid the germs from any infection in which cancer is not involved at all.

Wearing gloves and washing the hands is sufficient protection against picking up such secondary infections, but cancer doesn't enter into that.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In regard to the girl with the "itchy bottom," may I add a word? I agree that nylon panties may aggravate if not cause her problem, but wearing cotton may not always be the answer, either.

My son at 13 had an "itchy bottom" (around the genitals) and no amount of medication seemed to relieve him. Finally I took him to my own doctor who suggested simply that I get him some rayon or acetate underclothing to wear.

In just a few weeks the itching disappeared. For two years we tried several times to go back to his cotton briefs, but each time the itching returned.

So if cotton panties don't work for the girl, perhaps she should try rayon or one of the acetates before giving up. It worked for us.—Mrs. C.V.

Thank you—another illustration that one man's food can be another man's poison. Or should we say that one person's clothes can be another's itch?

RAMPAL AND HIS FAMILY — By Urmila Sharma

Punjabi working - class immigrants, largely illiterate, alien in thought, dress, custom are now a feature of the British scene. THE LAST SPIKE — By Pierre Berton

In the eagerly awaited second volume of his history of the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Pierre Berton tells how some two thousand miles of steel was flung across half a continent in just five years, exactly half the time stipulated in the contract. Here is a financial tale that reads like a cliff hanger: the railway teetering on the very edge of bankruptcy with one hour between it and ruin. A host of extraordinary characters, some well - known, others less so, populate this fascinating book.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: We are planning visit to Williamsburg, Va., and understand that a stop in Fredericksburg, Va., on the way is worthwhile. From a have quite a lot of material concerning Williamsburg. Can you fill us in at all on Fredericksburg?

ANSWER: One of the most historic cities in the U.S., Fredericksburg was officially founded and took its present name in 1727. However, settlers had built a fort there as early as 1676.

In a valley at the head of navigation on the Rappahannock River, the city was a port for ocean vessels for many years. Fredericksburg was George Washington's mother's last home and the home of his only sister, Betty Washington Lewis. James Monroe set up his first law office there in 1786. George Washington was initiated as a Mason in 1752 at the Masonic Lodge on Princess Anne and Hanover Streets.

Between 1861 and 1865 Fredericksburg was an armed camp and on several occasion was the scene of violent battles. By the end of the war it was desolate, its houses torn by shot and shell, the dead buried in its streets and yards.

Information Centre, 2800 Princess Anne St., is the start of a self-guided tour. A map is provided and the attractions bear markers. Visitors may obtain free parking passes for the downtown metered zone.

The Courthouse, 809 Princess Anne Street, was erected in 1851-52 on the site of an older structure dating from 1728. Historic documents include the will of Mary Washington. The bell was made by the Paul Revere foundry.

The grave of Mary Washington, on Washington Ave. at the end of Pitts Street is marked by a granite shaft. Andrew Jackson laid the cornerstone for a marble monument in 1833, but it was never completed; during the bombardment of Fredericksburg in 1862 the first monument was badly scarred by shellfire. In 1894 President Grover Cleveland laid the cornerstone for the present marker.

The Hugh Mercer Apothecary Shop, Caroline and Amelia Streets, is the quaint shop opened by Dr. Hugh Mercer in 1761. A personal friend of George Washington, Dr. Mercer sold drugs there until the Revolutionary war. He became a brigadier general and was killed January 12, 1777 in the Battle of Princeton. In addition to the drug room, with its curious bottles, ancient showcases and yellowed ledgers, there is a sitting room and a small library used by Washington as an office during his many visits. Some of Washington's accounts in his own handwriting have been preserved. Upstairs is Dr. Mercer's bedroom and colonial powder room.

The James Monroe law office, museum and memorial library is at 908 Charles St. Monroe practised there from 1786 to 1791. The building, which dates from 1758, contains personal belongings of President and Mrs. Monroe and furniture originally used in the White House, including the desk on which the Monroe Doctrine was prepared.

Kenmore, 1201 Washington Ave., was the home of Col. Fielding Lewis and his wife, Betty Washington Lewis, sister of George Washington. Built in 1752, this colonial home is furnished with 18th-century antiques and is a beautiful example of an 18th Century Georgian Manor House and gardens. The decorative plasterwork of the ceilings is noteworthy.

Mary Washington house, Charles and Lewis Sts., is furnished and maintained as a shrine. It was bought by George Washington in 1772 for his mother, who lived there until her death in 1789. Lafayette visited her in 1781, when he arrived to take command of the Continental forces in Virginia. There Washington and Rochambeau stopped on their way to Yorktown in 1781. It was also from there that Washington left for his inauguration. The old English garden is especially beautiful. Some of the boxwood Mary Washington planted remains.

Rising Sun Tavern, 1306 Caroline St., was built in 1760 by Charles Washington, brother of George Washington. First known as Washington Tavern. It was the gathering place for patriots in the days before the Revolutionary War. Its original appearance and furnishings have been preserved.

St. George's Church (Episcopal), Princess Anne and George St., was originally built in 1722, the present structure in 1interior. It contains a memorial window to Mary Washington. In the churchyard are buried William Paul, brother of John Paul Jones, and John Dandridge of New Kent, father of Martha Washington.

Saints Sink Teeth Into Moira After Listless First Half

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

Paul Hall put his foot in it. Ken Vos had a big hand in it and, although it took them a while, the Quinte Saints' defence were finally able to sink their teeth into the matter. The result of this football anatomy lesson by the Saints was a 31-8 decision over the Moira Trojans in a semi-final Bay of Quinte COSSA match.

For the first half it appeared as though Quinte's adversary would be picked apart by a fired-up Trojan team. Moira carried an 8-7 lead into the halftime break and appeared to be out-playing the sluggish Saints. Quinte's only touchdown of the first half came on a 30-yard punt return by Steve Nash as the Trojans' "Animal" defence bottled up the opposition.

While Quinte's offensive unit never did get untracked, an outstanding secondhalf effort by the defence, along with the booming punts of Paul Hall and a re-invented kick return game, proved equal to the occasion.

The defensive dozen abandoned the sloppy, high tackling which had cost them several key penalties in the first half and helped set up Peter Stallkovich's first and touchdown run.

"He's got size, strength and speed," said head coach Rick Leake of his defensive star, while offensive coach Jack Simon admitted that, "you'd probably have to rate him about as good as anyone we've had at that position."

The Saint standout had to be helped to the bench late in the third quarter, however, after intercepting a pass and absorbing a crushing tackle by Stallkovich on the Moira one-yard line. Vos failed to return for the remainder of the game, but is expected to be able to play in Saturday's final bout.

Hall pulled Quinte into a 9-8 lead early in the third period with booming punts of 35 and 40 yards, while also unleashing a 55-yard effort to keep the Trojans pinned in their own end.

Alan Hayman upped the count to 16-8 on a 45-yard punt return that was converted by Terry Meagher. After that, Moira never seriously threatened despite the occasional ground - gaining efforts by Stallkovich, Dave Rutherford and Peter Hart. Stallkovich and Rutherford were particularly brilliant in defeat seeing two-way action throughout the contest.

Quinte's final pair of majors came on a one - yard plunge by Bill Kirkham and a 15-yard dash around left end by quarterback Rick Meagher. Hall added his third single and a two-point conversion.

In addition to Vos, defensive end Mike Whalen and safety Steve Nash, who added an interception to his punt return touchdown, came up with strong showings for the winners.

Napanee and BCI met today to decide the right to meet Trenton in the other semi - final series with the Saints taking on the eventual winner next Tuesday, to decide the Senior league championship.

Call to Arms

Quinte Secondary School halfback Stuart Boardman greets the pigskin with open arms as he falls on a fumble in Tuesday's Bay of Quinte COSSA playoff game at Moira. The Saints staged a 24-point rally in the second half to wipe out a one-point Moira lead at half-time and roll to a 31-8 victory. The win by Quinte assures them of a spot in the league championship game to be held next Tuesday.

Yacht Club Launched on 1972 Course

An increased volume of boats coming into Belleville's harbor is the broad objective licensing Bay of Quinte Yacht Club commodore Ernie Colebourne has set for 1972.

Mr. Colebourne, who has been commodore of the Belleville club on two previous occasions, said some 400 boats made use of the yacht club facilities this past summer "and that means a lot of dollars were dropped off in the city, considering an average four persons per boat."

Mr. Colebourne said there is also a pressing need for yacht club representatives to get together with the parks board and city council to assure that Victoria Park is capable of accommodating visitors to the city, the 250 yacht club members, and the general public who visit the park area.

Resurrection of senior sailing instruction and a schedule of club guest speakers — "no boasting, as well as other topics" — were also listed among Mr. Colebourne's priorities.

Other members of the incoming Bay of Quinte Yacht Club executive are vice-commodore Peter Annis, rear-commodore Albert Horlock, fleet captain Dick Bird, past-commodore Ray Day, and directors Stu Pescod (treasurer) Pete Petin, Don Adamson, Paul Andrus, and Arnold Duffy.

Halfback Remains Critical

MONTREAL (CP) — Butch Voce, 17-year-old rookie defensive halfback for Bishops University Gaiters who suffered a broken neck in a university football game 11 days ago, remained in critical condition Tuesday in a Montreal hospital.

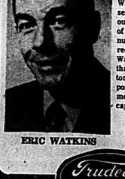
But the athlete appears to be improving, his father, Harold Voce, said in an interview, saying that his son has eaten a "poached egg and jello."

"We won't know anything definite about surgery or anything for two or three weeks," Mr. Voce said.

Butch was to have taken part in a game against McGill University this Saturday. The field where the game will be played is some 100 yards from his hospital bed.

He was injured while making a tackle.

Gomez Charged



TORONTO (CP) — Avelino Gomez, North America's leading jockey in 1966, testified Tuesday the list he gave the accountant who prepared his 1966 income tax return contained unintentional errors.

Gomez, now a horse trainer and owner, is charged under the Income Tax Act with failing to declare taxable income of $3,652 for the 1966 taxation year and $7,717.15 for 1967, and with expressing income of $21,169.15 for both years.

Gomez, 42, told the court that he was "shook up and surprised" when his brother, Mickey, telephoned him early last year while he was in Florida, to say Gomez's house was being searched by investigators.

Asked about cheques for $6,055.15, $922 and $800 that appeared in one listing of his income, but not on another, Gomez said he had made an unintentional mistake.

Quintes' First Test Friday

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

After six games, you'd think the Belleville Quinies had proven something in the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A league.

While their 4-2 second-place record is just so many numbers Friday night to Galt Raiders when the defending Allan Cup champions come to town.

That's the test, all right," admitted Quintes' coach Gene Poirier. "They're the best team in the league, for sure."

The fact they have been favored by the lightest possible schedule (two games each with Woodstock, Owen Sound, and Kingston) has no doubt had something to do with the Quintes' second - place standing.

But however they got there, the Quinies will deserve some respect from Galt. The Belleville seniors are unbeaten in their first three home outings of the season, and a win Friday would tie them with the Hornets for first place in the eight - team standings, with a game in hand.

The teams return to Galt for a Saturday night game, while a Belleville - Oakville contest originally scheduled for Sunday has been postponed.

Last year's leading Belleville point - getter, centre Doug Senior made another practice appearance at Tuesday night's Memorial Arena workout, but again left unsigned, indicating the 6-foot, 200-pound Poirier the back he injured late last season was still bothering him.

GEORGE GODSON

This year's leading club point - getter is George Godson, with ten points. But Godson already has scored four goals in his six games after notching only nine in 37 regular - season games last year.

Al Ferguson's- seven goals in his five appearances lead the Quintes in that category.

Derek At It Again

MONTREAL (CP) — Derek Sanderson of the National Hockey League Boston Bruins said Tuesday he is becoming fed up with hockey.

Sanderson, in town for tonight's encounter with Montreal Canadiens, said in an interview that the sport had become "all work."

"The schedule's too long and the people running the game are too money-hungry. Maybe most of the guys need hockey no matter what—they're married and they like that income—but not me. There's a lot of other things I can do."

The Bruin centre added that he was looking at some land in northern Alberta and seriously considering settling on it for good.

Sanderson says his money worries are over, "so the only pleasant part of hockey I can see now is the companionship."

"I've got three bars and a grocery and it's really coming in.

"There are a great bunch of guys on our club. I like being around with them, but I'm fed up with being told to do this, do that, go here, go there.

"There are a lot of things I should be doing besides playing hockey. No, getting married is not one of them."

Sanderson said the calibre of hockey had fallen badly but "with all that travelling, you can't be up all the time."

The Canadiens will be without forwards Pete Mahovlich, recovering from a bout with bronchial pneumonia, and Marc Tardiff, on the limp with a swollen foot.

Coach Scotty Bowman said two forwards would be called up from the American Hockey League Nova Scotia Voyageurs. He said the two who showed the most in the Voyageur's game Tuesday night against Cincinnati, which ended in a 4-4 tie, would be given the opportunity to play against the Bruins.

Detroit Feels Mikita's Pains

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stan Mikita started the season with a painful back, but the ones hurting are Chicago Black Hawk opponents in the National Hockey League.

The Hawks' centre star scored once, the winner, and set up two other goals in a 5-2 win over Detroit Red Wings in the only NHL game scheduled Tuesday night.

The win moved Chicago five points up in the West Division race over second-place Minnesota North Stars and Pittsburgh Penguins.

Tonight the Wings get an opportunity to reverse the setback when they visit New York Rangers, the East Division leaders who have a one-point edge on Boston Bruins.

In other games, Vancouver Canucks are at Toronto Maple Leafs, Buffalo Sabres visit Los Angeles Kings, Pittsburgh entertains California Golden Seals and Minnesota takes on the Blues at St. Louis.

Mikita's back has been ailing the last two seasons and has reflected in his play.

He's not ready to forecast hockey, but he'd probably give a lot for a remedy.

The Czechoslovakian-born star remembers when the pains first started to show, following a game against Montreal in February, 1969, after "I got cross-checked a couple of times in a row."

"Ever since then I've had the pain at the base of my back."

Last summer he visited the Mayo Clinic in Rochester but "they weren't able to pinpoint anything new." He said the ailment has been diagnosed as "stretched ligaments and muscles."

He stretched those ligaments and muscles against the Red Wings, setting up Chicago's second goal, by Doug Jarrett after Bobby Hull had got them away to an early lead, then scored their third midway through the second period that opened a 3-1 Hawk lead.

His production moved him into third place in the NHL scoring race with 13 points, three behind the leader, Boston centre Phil Esposito.

Dennis Higgins, playing his first game in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, gave Oshawa Generals a shutout for a 5-0 victory Tuesday over hapless Hamilton Red Wings.

The 17-year-old goaltender blocked 47 Hamilton shots for the Generals, who lead the league with 19 points, five ahead of Niagara Falls Flyers. Hamilton, with three points, shares last place with Montreal Junior Canadiens.

In other games Tuesday, the Flyers tied Kitchener Rangers 3-3 and Toronto Marlboros defeated London Knights 4-2.

The Flyers came from behind with two goals in the last two minutes for the tie, barely hanging on to second place in the 10-team league. They have 14 points and Kitchener 13.

Blue Youngest Pitcher Ever to Receive Cy Young Award

OAKLAND (AP) — "The way I look at this year is that it helped prepare me for next season," said Vida Blue, the American League's Cy Young Award winner.

The 22-year-old left-hander, in his first major league baseball season, had a 24-9 record, eight shutouts and a 1.82 earned-run average as he pitched Oakland Athletics to the West Division title.

He is the youngest player ever to win the award and is considered a strong contender for the league's Most Valuable Player Award, to be made next month.

"I'll never get that one. They can't give me everything," Blue said Tuesday after the Baseball Writers Association of America named him the league's best pitcher.

He was surprised at the outcome of the Cy Young Award voting, saying: "I really thought Mickey Lolich would win it, but I'm glad I did."

Lolich, of Detroit Tigers, was runner-up in the voting and Wilbur Wood of Chicago White Sox finished third. Blue got 14 of the 24 first-place votes, Lolich nine and Wood one.

Lolich and Wood, also southpaws, finished the season strong while Blue was tailing off from a sizzling start that made him baseball's biggest drawing card. Lolich finished 25-14 and Wood was 22-13.

"The last part of the season, I was just pooped," Blue said.

"But it wasn't my arm. It was all that pressure from the publicity. I just couldn't take it mentally."

He got some national attention last year with a no-hitter against Minnesota Twins in a late-season stay with Oakland. But he took baseball fans largely by surprise this year, and more than a million paid to see him pitch.

"I guess a lot of people came out to see if I was for real," said Blue.

He won 19 games before his 22nd birthday on July 28. Two 1-0 losses and a game in which he pitched 11 shutout innings, and left with the score 0-0, later helped ruin his chance to win 30 games.

Blue received a reported $13,000 this year, plus a new car that owner Charles O. Finley presented him.

Based on Judgment Call, Als' Protest Tossed Out

TORONTO (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, Canadian Football League commissioner, announced Tuesday he has disallowed a protest by Montreal Alouettes against the result of their game Sunday against Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The Als lost 19-18 and Als owner Sam Berger said Monday he was lodging the protest on grounds that game officials failed to call an offside penalty against Winnipeg on a crucial fourth-quarter play.

Berger said films showed that two Winnipeg players moved offside before Montreal snapped the ball.

"In the case of the play in question," Berger said in Montreal, "both the defensive tackle and middle linebacker of the Winnipeg team were encroaching on the line of scrimmage, an action which stopped the Montreal drive on the Winnipeg 27-yard line.

"This prevented further opportunity for us to score a touchdown, field goal or a single point."

In a prepared statement, the CFL commissioner said his decision to disallow the protest was based on CFL bylaws, paragraph 1, section 2, which provides that a protest shall not be based on a judgment call by an official.

Als Trying Out Gabler

MONTREAL (CP) — Veteran quarterback Wally Gabler arrived in town Tuesday afternoon and immediately huddled with Montreal Alouettes coach Sam Etcheverry as he began a five-day trial with the Eastern Football Conference club.

The Als were left in a precarious position last Sunday when they were defeated 19-18 by Winnipeg Blue Bombers. They lost their only healthy quarterback rookie Jim Chasey, and also face the prospect of having to win a football game against Ottawa Rough Riders next Saturday in the nation's capital to gain a playoff berth.

The Als have not won a game in Ottawa since 1953.

Gabler says he does not know much about Etcheverry "but I respect what he has done in football."

Sonny Wade will probably start in Saturday's game and Gabler will be back-up.

Nicklaus Richest

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Casper's victory in the Kaiser International Sunday pushed him into eighth place in the year's professional golf money list, still led by Jack Nicklaus.

The latest financial figures were released Tuesday by the Professional Golfers Association.

Without a victory for 14 months and troubled most of the season with assorted ailments, Casper won $30,000 in the Napa, Calif., tournament and extended his record of having won at least one tournament every year since he started as a pro in 1956.

The top ten money winners: Nicklaus, $207,080; Lee Trevino, 199,469; Arnold Palmer, 194,577; Gary Player, 120,916; Miller Barber, 117,359; George Archer, 115,530; Jerry Heard 108,379; Casper, 107,228; Bruce Crampton, 106,736; Tom Weiskopf, 104,825.

"He dropped three touchdown passes! Why shouldn't I drop him once?"

Pistons Steaming

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bill van Breda Kolff was fit to be tied.

The coach of Detroit Pistons fumed over a goal-tending call in the last four seconds of play that gave Houston Rockets a 104-103 nod over the Pistons in the National Basketball Association Tuesday night.

With time running out and Detroit leading 103-102, Mike Newlin got off a jump shot for the Rockets. Hayes and Lanier both went up in the air from underneath the basket.

Referee Kenny Hudson ruled that Lanier knocked the ball off the rim. He called it goal-tending and awarded the winning basket to Newlin. It was Houston's first victory of the season after six straight defeats.

The champion Milwaukee Bucks made it seven in a row by routing Baltimore 120-90 and the New York Knicks made it seven straight over Boston by defeating the Celtics 106-101.

Chicago whipped Portland 123-111, Phoenix drubbed Cincinnati 125-99 and Buffalo shaded Golden State 91-89 in the other NBA games scheduled.

Three seeded players—Stan Smith of Los Angeles, Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., and Ken Rosewall of Australia—were ousted in the first round Monday.

In the women's division, Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., defending champion, needed only 40 minutes to dispose of Shirley Brasher of Britain 6-4, 6-1.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♥	2 ♠
Pass	4 ♠

Opening lead—king of diamonds.

The value of a hand invariably rises or falls as the other players at the table make their bids.

Thus, if you tried to assess West's hand at the point he opens the bidding with a heart, it would register as only slightly more than a minimum opening bid. This is largely because the hand has only 13 high-card points and there is considerable uncertainty about the trick-taking value of the hearts and diamonds. Neither suit is sufficient as trump.

But when East raises hearts the hand expands greatly in value, and in fact its potential changes so much that making as many as 10 tricks becomes a highly feasible prospect.

West's pass of two spades must therefore be regarded as too conservative. He should have bid three diamonds instead. This might have elicited a further bid from East and led to a contract of five hearts which would have gone down only one.

As the bidding went, though, South got to four spades and made the contract by careful play. West started with the K-A of diamonds, declarer ruffing the ace.

South's problem was to avoid losing three club tricks. Had he relied solely on East's having the ace he would have finished down one, but instead he placed his faith in an end-play that was practically sure to succeed.

After leading a trump to the ace and ruffing the last diamond, South crossed to dummy with a trump and returned a heart, finessing the 10 after East had followed low.

This unusual play rendered the defense helpless. West won with the queen but could score only one more trick for his side, whether he returned a heart, a diamond or a club. Whatever he did, South was bound to wind up with 10 tricks.

What The Stars Say

Thursday, October 28

General Guide—Nixon steals the scene now, coming out with an official statement that slaps down a few financial heads, as well as a couple of off-the-record remarks that do little to endear him to these economic wizards. Public reaction, after the dust settles though, should be quite positive.

Aries (March 21-April 19). You shouldn't hold back your consent or support from associates who are pressing for a vote of confidence. Show their optimism and enthusiasm.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). It's out of character for you to be so impatient, especially when rewards or honors are almost within reach. Don't push higher-ups to speed things up.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). Now you have to get back to work, regardless, of what personal pastimes try to lure you away. You should have made better use of your time earlier this week.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). If you haven't eliminated a few extravagant items from your budget, you may be forced to forego a very dear but costly dream. Funds are too low.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). By sticking to your guns and not heeding the ridiculous advice of partners, you've made the right decision. Still, allies may continue to give you a hard time.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Any recent advancement on the job shouldn't be allowed to go to your head. Promotions were based on your ability to cooperate with others, not play dictator.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). Any speculation today would be the surest and fastest way of waving goodby to your cash reserves. Don't follow any hunches—they're all wrong.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). It won't be easy to bring willful homefolks back into line, but you can't avoid your responsibilities, especially if you're a parent. Expect a fight all the way.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Don't take any risks, especially when travelling today. Keep your mind on what you're doing and be extra alert and cautious to boot.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Spending is still accented, but whatever funds remain could be burning a hole in your pocket. Any impulse purchases could be excessively costly.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Competence on the job can easily give you the idea you know how to run the whole show, including the boss. Be warned that authorities will take a dim view of any challenges.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Don't take any criticism laying down today. Once partners get it into their heads that you're a willing outlet for their hostilities, your peaceful days are numbered.

Today's birthday—There can be considerable activity at home base this year, though much of it will involve disagreements with kin. Insist on having the final word in family decisions.

Ottawa Welcomes Admission of China to UN

OTTAWA (CP) — There were some regrets over the expulsion of Taiwan, but the admission of the Communist Chinese government to the United Nations was widely welcomed in Ottawa Tuesday.

"The countries of the world have made up their minds that the time has come for the People's Republic of China to be seated at the UN," a smiling External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said to reporters.

And as for the expulsion of Taiwan Monday, he said that technically it did not occur.

Both in the Commons and in outside interviews, he said Taiwan has never been a member of the UN although "this has been a bit of propaganda which has misled the public a good deal."

The Taiwan-based government of Chiang Kai-shek had held the UN seat claiming to represent all of China. There is no government of Taiwan."

Asked by reporters what would happen now to Taiwan in the international community, Mr. Sharp said, "I really don't know."

Prime Minister Trudeau was asked whether he thought the United States, which has campaigned vigorously to keep Chiang Kai-shek's government in the UN, now will become more inward looking.

He couldn't understand that reasoning, replied Mr. Trudeau. President Nixon had already made plans to visit Peking and also go to Russia.

Former Conservative prime minister John Diefenbaker said it was "a terrible thing" to expel Taiwan.

"... Fourteen million people who have stood with us against communism have been sacrificed. And I wonder what the result will be among nations and peoples who want to stand against communism."

Party Leader Robert Stanfield told reporters it is appropriate that the Peking regime be in the UN. "The UN wasn't really representative in their absence."

But he said it wasn't a solution to leave the 14 million people of Taiwan without representation in the UN. He would support seating a government of Taiwan in the organization.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis described the admission of the Peking regime as "a world development."

Pearson Signs A-test Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Post carried a full-page advertisement today signed by 66 "concerned Canadians" calling for cancellation of the planned United States underground nuclear test on Amchitka in the Aleutian Islands.

Signers of the "open letter to the people of the United States" included former prime minister Lester B. Pearson, mentioned in the ad as winner of the Nobel peace prize, and Stuart Keate, publisher of the Vancouver Sun.

"We are against testing" by any nation, the Canadians said. "We seek your help in banning nuclear testing and specifically, in stopping the imminent Amchitka blast. We have faith in the moral persuasion of American public opinion."

1972 AUTO SHOW FEATURE OF QUINTE MALL THIS WEEK!!!

View the 1972 Pontiac, Buicks and GMC Trucks being displayed until October 31 by Elliott Motors at the Quinte Mall. The entire mall makes an attractive setting for the many models and colors currently on display.

Elliott Motors, Belleville's Pontiac, Buick and GMC Truck dealer located immediately south of the Quinte Mall, leased the entire indoor display area from October 20 to October 31. This display creates an attractive setting to exhibit their new 1972 products in an atmosphere suitable and comfortable for any prospective purchaser allowing them to browse at their leisure from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily. Additional models, colors and accessories are on display at the dealership showrooms with several courteous salesmen on duty to assist or respond to a customers request.

The Auto Show presentation was an original idea of Mr. David Blandford, Manager of the Quinte Mall. After several discussions of the idea with Bryce Philp, Vice President of Elliott Motors, the plans were formulated and carried out resulting in the first indoor 1972 Automotive Show for the City of Belleville. The show already has attracted people from points as far away as Peterboro, Kingston and Campbellford.

The Elliott Pontiac Buick dealership, being established in Belleville since 1950 employs 81 full time employees and nine part time employees. The annual new vehicle sales of cars, trucks and school buses averages around 775 units. The current year unit sales registration for the Belleville area through October 10, 1971 is 557 units, nearly 80 more units than the next closest competitor, General Tires, Corsair Travel Trailers, Moto-Ski Snowmobiles as well as the full line of Pontiac, Buick and GMC trucks (in gas and diesel) are also handled by the dealership. They maintain a large inventory of General Motors replacements parts and serve daily a larg quantity of wholesale outlets with two Parts Wholesale Vehicles and Salesmen. The Service Department equipped with the latest collision, painting, brake, engine, steering, washing and lubricating equipment is open daily at 8 a.m. excluding Sundays. All the technicians are factory trained and a Service Department night shift is maintained five nights weekly. Two tow trucks equipped with Holmes Wreckers are operated on a round the clock basis. The firm is the local Tilden Rent a Car agent and they maintain and lease several cars and trucks on daily and long term leases to individuals, local businesses and fleet accounts.

Elliotts invite you to inspect this new car display and to check with them for all your motoring requirements.

Prime Time Half Hour Depends on the Station

NEW YORK (AP) — Those new rules which returned a half hour of prime time to local individual television stations for local programming just aren't working out as expected.

Although network production and entertainment isn't cheap, by and large it is superior to the assortment of low budget, syndicated programs now filling the time spots.

The new Federal Communications Commission rules were designed in part to stimulate local programming. Since returns of old network shows are forbidden and most stations can't afford elaborate productions, the rules have stimulated production by independent entrepreneurs. The product is what is being seen, for the most part, between 7:30 and 8 on week nights.

The show business journal, Variety, estimates on the basis of a survey that there has been a drop of seven per cent in viewership during the early evening time period.

Among the best efforts appearing around the country is Story Theatre, which is witty and specializes in retelling old fairy tales in contemporary and droll idiom. And also there is The David Frost Revue, a show slightly reminiscent of That Was The Week That Was.

Since the early time period has a large "family audience" — in trade jargon that means lots of children and grandparents — many of the shows are being planned at two ends of the viewer spectrum. There is Circus, simply a half hour of big tent acts, and Rollin' On The River, a well-produced rock and country music show. Shut Up And Cheer, a jolly, patriotic musical outing, reaches out for the older viewers. The Goldbergers is a bouncy musical show spun off Dean Martin's network hour onto the syndication circuit.

Dearest of the new shows are Primus, an underwater adventure, and Sesame Street, the old Sea Hunt. Other dreary shows include Dr. Simon Locke, a doctor drama, and Cannon, Nash, a standard private eye series.

Snow Watch

Hugh MacLean, supervisor of the road information centre at the department of transportation and communications in Toronto, checks teletype information. The centre goes on a 24-hour watch during winter, relaying province-wide information about road conditions to department offices, and news media. (Special Photo)

Equipment Ready For Winter's Blast

TORONTO (Special) — Severe snow and wind storms last winter boosted the cost of clearing Ontario's highways an estimated $4 million, says Murray Sinclair, maintenance operations engineer with the department of transportation and communications.

Winter maintenance programs last winter were expected to cost $26 million, Mr. Sinclair told the Toronto Bureau of The Intelligencer the final cost was about $30 million.

Earl Orr, maintenance engineer at the department's head office, said last winter was the "worst I have seen across the province in 21 years." He said the southwestern section of the province was most severely hit by the storms because those districts were ill-equipped up for such heavy snowfalls.

The almanac is one source of information the engineers said they will not use as they prepare for the annual battle against ice and snow.

Last December a department newsletter quoted an almanac which forecast "some snow between January 24 and 27". That was exactly the period when the first of a series of storms lashed the province, stalling traffic and stranding motorists.

"We certainly will not depend on the almanac this year," Mr. Orr said.

Mr. Sinclair said a force of 4,500 employees using about 2,500 vehicles will carry out winter maintenance programs on Ontario's 13,000 miles of highway this winter.

Equipment includes nearly 1,000 snowplows of varying sizes. The most common is the familiar five-ton truck equipped with a nine - foot blade in front and a V - shaped wing on the side for throwing snow up off the shoulder of the road.

Also part of the fleet are more than 700 sand and salt spreaders and about 850 pieces of backup equipment. In most areas, Mr. Sinclair said, sanding and salting is done by locally hired trucks on which the department's sanders have been mounted.

The big guns of the snow removal fleet are the department's 15-self propelled snow blowers, which are dispatched to areas of heavy snowfall to move large amounts of snow quickly. Mr. Orr said the Owen Sound district, which includes the Georgian Bay snow belt has such heavy snowfalls that seven of the 15 snowblowers are permanently assigned to that district.

The centre gathers information through private telephone links with the 18 district offices across the province. Each office reports six times daily, Mr. MacLean said.

Road condition bulletins are compiled and relayed back to the district offices, Mr. MacLean said. His office also writes press releases and supplies voice reports on road conditions to radio stations.

Mr. MacLean said the centre also handles direct inquiries from the public. Last year, he said, 75,000 calls were answered most of them during winter.

Mr. Sinclair said preparation for the winter program begins almost before last winter was over.

Equipment was reviewed, contracts negotiated for the season and the 300,000 tons of salt and 735,000 tons of sand purchased and stockpiled at more than 300 patrol yards across.

But, he said, the department with its formidable force of men and machines is not much better off than an average motorist — or the almanac — at predicting what will happen over the next six months.

"It all depends on the weather," he said.

Canadian Security Forces Sigh Relief as Kosygin Leaves

OTTAWA (CP) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin has flown out of Canada beaming goodwill and leaving behind a renewed call for Russian-Canadian co-operation that was almost lost in the mighty sigh of relief from this country's security forces.

After spending eight days viewing Canada from within one of the tightest security networks ever thrown around a visiting dignitary, Mr. Kosygin left the country saying it made a tremendous impression" on him.

And in a television interview broadcast after his departure Tuesday, he said Russia wants to broaden its economic ties with Canada and join forces in controlling Arctic pollution.

An official communique issued earlier in the day said Mr. Kosygin's political discussions here produced "a similarity of views on a number of international issues."

Talks between the often-dour 67-year-old Russian premier and Prime Minister Trudeau were said by the communique to have been carried on "in an atmosphere of frankness, cordiality and mutual understanding."

Despite an Ottawa incident in which Mr. Kosygin was lightly mauled by a man who bounded through police lines, and a constant series of protest demonstrations, there was no indication the hectic tour had been officially marred in any way.

Dismissing the "riff-raff," Mr. Kosygin left the country describing Canadians as "very business-like people . . . proceeding towards their goal boldly, courageously."

Mr. Kosygin's tour, moving like an armored caravan, took him from Ottawa to Montreal, Vancouver, Edmonton and Toronto.

He saw industrial plants, theatre, a hockey game, wealthy clubs, groups of businessmen, factory workers—and just about everything Canada has to offer in the way of policemen.

But it was his three days of talks with Mr. Trudeau—talks which could have a major impact on international relations—that was at the core of Mr. Kosygin's visit to Canada.

And Tuesday's communique indicated that a lot of ground was covered.

The document envisaged expanded economic co-operation; that appropriate agencies examine ways to develop this co-operation which would extend to the scientific and technological fields.

Both sides agreed to facilitate trade, and wheat was specifically mentioned as a continuing component in this trade.

The communique referred to the "friendly, good-neighborly relations" between the Soviet Union and Canada; consultations revealed a similarity of views on a number of international problems.

Both sides favored a properly prepared conference on European security, which would include Canada and the United States.

There was agreement that early steps should be taken toward a reduction of East-West forces in Central Europe. There was a call for an "urgent political settlement" in East Pakistan. And the communique said other areas of agreement "included disarmament and the Middle East.

At a news conference here last Wednesday, Mr. Kosygin said Canada will "always have a friend in the North." He said this friendship should not threaten any other country, including the United States.

While the official communique provides a rough outline of Mr. Kosygin's talks with Prime Minister Trudeau, it likely will take months to assess the full effects of the discussions.

The communique for instance does not mention the diminishing fish stocks on Canada's east coast.

But Fisheries Minister Jack Davis told the Commons he had made an emphatic, although brief, representation to Mr. Kosygin on the matter. The Russian premier had said it would give "very serious consideration" to the request for better conservation practices.

In the economic area, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said working groups already have been set up to study such areas as oil, gas, non-ferrous metals, construction and hydro-electric power.

Yaremko Charges Violence

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Secretary John Yaremko said Tuesday "responsible citizens" have told him police used excessive and unwarranted force in quelling demonstrations Monday at the Ontario Science Centre during the visit of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

Attorney-General Allan Lawrence said he has asked the Metropolitan Toronto police commission to report to him as soon as possible on the circumstances surrounding the 20 arrests made by police in a clash with protesters outside the centre where Mr. Kosygin spoke.

Mr. Yaremko, who said he had made the request to the attorney-general, said he was at the police station where the 20 arrested were taken and that it was "an unfortunate tragedy and I'm appalled it took place."

"I have eyewitness accounts as to the action and behavior of certain policemen mounted on horseback and their allegations as to the use of excessive force," he said.

Trudeau Hopes for Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament puzzled Tuesday over whether a communique issued after the visit of Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin means that a fruitful European security conference is in sight.

Prime Minister Trudeau suggested it does.

He also said he is hopeful the communique means the Soviet Union is moving away from the doctrine of party leader Leonid Brezhnev, which invokes Russia's right to intervene in the affairs of other Communist states.

The reference in the communique to respect for independence, national sovereignty, territorial integrity and non-interference in internal affairs could not be interpreted as a repudiation of the Brezhnev doctrine—Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield had asked if it was.

"We do not know how the other side will implement this, but we are hopeful," Mr. Trudeau said.

Mr. Stanfield asked whether there had been any indication the Soviet Union was prepared to discuss, at a European security conference, a reduction of troops or simply a withdrawal.

"It is in order to get an answer to this type of question that the NATO countries have encouraged our discussions with the Soviet Union," Mr. Trudeau said.

Mr. Stanfield replied that he had been told during a Russian trip that the Soviet Union wasn't prepared to discuss global reduction of troops at a European security conference, only withdrawal of troops in Europe.

Mr. Trudeau said it was believed Soviet leaders had moved from this position. There had been fruitful discussion of the Berlin issue—a NATO prerequisite to a security conference.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker asked whether Mr. Kosygin mentioned that the Soviet Union "today has the largest fleet on earth, including 340 submarines, that it controls ingress and egress from the Mediterranean?

"What did he say he intended to do about the reduction of NATO forces ,particularly in the Atlantic, and especially in the number of Russian submarines parading through the North Atlantic, and the south Atlantic as well."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government was arrogant in refusing answers while talking peace and "allowing Kosygin to fool them. . . ."

In the Senate former external affairs minister Paul Martin, who escorted Mr. Kosygin on his eight-day visit, said both governments declare themselves in favor of a European conference in which the U.S. and Canada would take part.

Senator Martin (L—Ontario) said Canada's welcome to Premier Kosygin can't be taken as anti-American. The United States itself was preparing for a visit by President Nixon to Russia.

Telephone Pioneers Mark Anniversary with Northern Open House

Multi-wires Must Be Compressed Into Cables

Automatic Machine Drills Four Printed Circuits

Jordan Elms Uses Circuit Tester on Phone System

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

In those dark ages of not so long ago, electricians were often hard pressed to sort out the source of an electrical break-down in the thousands of tiny wires that are packed into telephone cables.

Not so any more.

For the past two days, 2,900 members of the Mohawk - Loyalist branch of Bell Canada's pioneer council of the Telephone Pioneers of America, have had a chance to view six computer - like circuit testers.

Built in Montreal, the Northern Electric company units have been installed in Belleville's plant. At this time, Northern employs them to test only telephone systems.

Thousands of tiny wires are hooked into testing circuits. Pre - programmed computer tapes are fed through the new machines and technicians can then isolate any problem area.

Once the problem is located, simple manual tests can quickly locate the bad connection.

Demonstrations of these machines formed part of Northern Electric's role in helping to celebrate the 60th anniversary of the Telephone Pioneers.

Local members, guests and Northern employee families were conducted through the Sidney Street plant Monday and Tuesday evenings.

Tours began in the printed circuit department. Visitors were shown steps required to produce these electronic boards, from acid baths to the final drilling stage. In this last stage, another computer-like machine operates drills which can cut into four circuit boards at one time. Programmed tapes move the drills automatically over the boards.

Visitors were given an complete a tour as security measures allow. Intricate wiring systems were laid bare. Employees continued wiring circuits, telephones, and cables. In the old satellite production department, now without these master electronic systems, the Pioneers displayed articles produced by workers at ARC Industries on Station Street.

As Victor Allen of Northern Electric explained, the Telephone Pioneers are an industrial, social club. Composed of 350,000 members in Canada and the U.S., employees of any telephone - oriented industry or business, from switchboard operators to engineers, are invited to join pioneers if they have more than 21 years' service.

With a small annual fee of $3, members take on various fund - raising campaigns to help retarded and handicapped people.

Making use of trained members, the pioneers will undertake any work that can aid the handicapped electrically. One of the Belleville projects called Lulu, will eventually produce two three-foot dolls that can talk to retarded children.

A tiny microphone and speaker amounted in the dolls will enable a doctor or psychiatrist to converse with a child who might not talk to them in person.

Other such toys include whistling balls and hockey pucks which are used to help the blind.

Anniversary celebrations began with church services at St. Thomas' Anglican and St. Michael's Roman Catholic churches, Oct. 24. Northern Electric held their first family open house night since 1958, but plans were brought to a halt because of the Bell Canada strike. An open house there, plus a life members' tea today, had to be cancelled.

However, the Telephone Pioneers hope to conclude their 60th anniversary celebrations with a dinner dance at Club Canara, Thursday night.

Cubans Refuse To Fly Home

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While 326 hijacked Americans spent their second night at a hotel in Havana, a planeload of Cubans who refused to leave New Orleans enjoyed a night of American hospitality.

The tale of the Americans who couldn't go home and the Cubans who wouldn't started Monday night when a gunman hijacked an American Airlines 747 jumbo jet en route from New York to San Juan, Puerto Rico.

The 747 put down at Havana's Jose Marti Airport at 9:38 p.m. Monday and was sitting there Tuesday noon when Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin arrived for a "friendship visit" to the island.

The cheers of the Cuban throng that met Kosygin had hardly died down in Havana when a Soviet-built twin-engined prop jet landed at New Orleans after a flight from Cuba.

That plane carried a crew of three and 19 passengers who said they had flown to New Orleans to attend an international sugar cane convention—even though the United States had denied their request for visas.

The pilot, Ray Morina, was ordered by the U.S. state department to leave. But he refused to do so without orders from his own government.

After spending nine hours locked behind customs office doors, the Cuban delegation was led to an airport hotel to spend the night.

Health Ombudsman Advocated

TORONTO (CP) — A political economist called Tuesday for a health ombudsman and representation by laymen on senior advisory committees to health ministers.

Prof. J. T. McLeod of the University of Toronto said it is easier to get a car serviced than a person treated.

He said a patient goes to a general practitioner if he can find one, and then finds the doctor is overworked and cannot give him much time. Either on his own or by referral, he then goes to a specialist, and then perhaps to another and another.

"No one seems to notice that the patient has experienced pain over a long time, or that he has been absent from his job or his family for a prolonged period," Mr. McLeod said. And no one seemed to notice that the patient had built up no patient-doctor relationship.

He said a health ombudsman might help not only patients but doctors deprived of hospital privileges and might mediate in conflicts involving nurses, doctors and therapists.

School Bus Hits Pole, Child Dies

MOUNT FOREST, Ont. (CP) — One child was killed and eight were injured when a school bus carrying 45 children went out of control and struck two hydro poles Tuesday.

Patricia Mitchell, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Mitchell of Moorefield, Ont., was killed in the accident about 12 miles south of this community 40 miles north of Kitchener.

Three of the injured were in hospital, all in satisfactory condition.

Singer Is Shot

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Ray Corbin, country and western singer and composer, has been shot to death at the home of a Phoenix woman, police reported Tuesday.

Detectives said Corbin's body was found at the home of Violet Henderson, 27. Corbin, 37, had been shot through the chest and Mrs. Henderson was in hospital in serious condition with a bullet wound in the thigh, they added.

MRS. ERNIE HOGAN, 19 Winnifred Street, Smiths Falls.
Mrs. Hogan, who shops for a family of six, says: "I come to Loblaws because I think I get more for my money shopping here. We used to shop another store in town but I usually came to Loblaws to buy fresh fruit and vegetables. Then I started to buy my meat here. It seemed silly to shop at two stores so I began to buy everything at Loblaws and I've been coming back regularly ever since. I still check prices in the other stores but overall I think I probably do better at Loblaws than I would anywhere else. The prices are generally quite reasonable, the quality is excellent and the service is really good. Why would I change? I find I can get everything I want right here at Loblaws.

Aleutian H-bomb Test Is Authorized

Conservationists Seeking Injunction

WASHINGTON (CP) — Unless there is a last-minute change by the Nixon administration, only a court injunction can prevent the United States from setting off its huge underground H-bomb test at a North Pacific island early next month.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission announced Wednesday that Nixon had authorized the test.

Canadian protests and bitter words from Alaskans did not deter President Nixon from authorizing the massive blast, equal to five million tons of TNT.

The Canadian government conceded that Nixon's decision is irrevocable since the test preparations are so advanced the bomb cannot be recovered from more than a mile underground.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp of Canada said Nixon's go-ahead only added to the already-strained relations between Canada and the U.S.

For Other Stories On Nuclear Test

Sharp warned that the Canadian government would hold the U.S. responsible for any damage done to the environment by the blast.

In the United Nations, Canada asked to speak today in the General Assembly's main political committee, a natural place to raise a protest over nuclear tests since the group now is discussing international security.

Publicly, hardly a voice was raised in Canada in favor of the test, aimed at improving a new missile for the defence system of the United States, but there is plenty opposed.

Alarmed U.S. conservationists and angry senators, particularly Senator Mike Gravel of Alaska who delivered a bitter commentary on Nixon's decision, pinned their hopes on the U.S. Court of Appeals granting them at least a temporary injunction to halt the test.

A three-judge tribunal heard the appeal from environmental groups about two hours after the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission announced Wednesday Nixon's go-ahead for the test.

The court indicated it would decide quickly whether it should grant a stay to allow time for consideration of a permanent injunction against the test, which the AEC said will take place within a few days.

Gravel, a Democrat, said he believes the test, dubbed Cannikin' will take place next Thursday. His semi-Arctic constituency is closest to the test site on the Amchitka Peninsula.

The government argued before the appeals court that it had no authority to challenge the president's authority.

Seven environmental groups headed by the Committee for Nuclear Responsibility, fearing environmental hazards, had sought a court injunction to bar the test.

Last Sept. 22, Congress voted to bar the test until at least mid-1972, unless the president personally authorized it.

Wednesday, Nixon did just that, and AEC chairman James R. Schlesinger announced: "We have now received the requisite authority to go ahead including detonation."

Japan as well as Canada is strongly opposed to the test of the warhead designed for the Poseidon ballistic missile. Both countries said they fear such a blast could cause environmental damage, including leaks of radiation that could

Market Vote Comes Today

LONDON (CP) — Ten years of monumental effort to gain British membership in the European Common Market reach a historic climax tonight with a crucial Commons vote on the hotly-contested issue.

There appeared little doubt a comfortable majority will support the principle of entry on terms negotiated by the Conservative government of Prime Minister Edward Heath.

This would mean that for the first time in a decade nothing stands in the way of British membership in Europe except parliamentary approval of enabling legislation to be introduced later.

The vote, set for 5 p.m. EDT, comes at the end of a six-day debate which saw a succession of late-night House sittings, some sparkling rhetoric and bitter political in-fighting.

Most newspapers today gave Heath—who has staked his political future largely on the Market issue—a majority of 50 to 70 MPs in the 630-seat Commons.

The Common Market bands together France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg in a customs union in which the main barriers to the free flow of internal trade have been dismantled.

"Can you direct us to the U.N., please?"

Surcharge Effect Said Exaggerated

CHICAGO (CP-AP) — "The effects of the import surcharge have been greatly exaggerated," U.S. Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans says.

He told a news conference Wednesday that results of the 10-per-cent extra charge on dutiable imports "have been exaggerated in the rhetoric of negotiation by affected countries."

He cited Canada as an example, saying half of its exports to the U.S. are not affected and other Canadian items produced at a cost of more than 10 per cent under the U.S. cost would continue flowing to the U.S. market.

All told, about 25 per cent of Canada's exports to the U.S. are affected by the surcharge.

In a recent speech to businessmen in Dallas, Tex., Canadian Ambassador Marcel Cadieux noted a survey of Canadian business showed that if the surcharge, imposed Aug. 15, lasts a year 150 plants in Canada might have to close with tens of thousands unemployed.

Castro Drives Guest Around

HAVANA (Reuter) — Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin exchanged light-hearted banter with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro in front of construction workers during a tour of nearby building sites Wednesday.

The visiting Kremlin leader, wearing an open-necked shirt, seemed in high spirits as he was driven around in an army jeep by Castro.

He offered a bust of Lenin as a prize to the best gang of workmen in exchange for a white construction helmet while he inspected the home-building project just outside Havana.

Nixon Will Make Trip To China in New Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will make his trip to mainland China sometime after Jan. 1, with the exact date to be announced next month.

Setting the trip in 1972 does not mean delay in Nixon's schedule, Henry Kissinger, the president's national security adviser said.

He told reporters Wednesday: "We are exactly on the schedule we set ourselves. It has not been delayed." He pointed out Nixon had said from the start the only limit on timing was May, 1972.

Kissinger, who returned Tuesday from a six-day visit to Peking, said his advance work accomplished what he set out to do, "to make concrete arrangements for the president's visit." But, he added, another preparatory team will be sent before Nixon leaves.

On other matters, Kissinger made these points:

—He did not see Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, but Nixon will. Kissinger added he had no idea of an internal disruption on the mainland and "wouldn't presume to speculate."

—Nixon's talks with the Chinese leaders will not involve other nations.

—The Vietnam war will be ended either through negotiations or by Vietnamization, not by talks with Peking.

Nixon Attack May Strengthen Move to Cut UN Contribution

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — President Nixon's attack on the United Nations delegates who cheered Taiwan's expulsion from the UN could strengthen Senate moves to cut U.S. financial contributions to the world body, diplomatic observers said today.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said Wednesday that almost any motion to reduce American financial support for the UN would be approved.

Scott said the administration were quick to crush suspicions that the motives might be retaliation for defeat of U.S. moves to maintain Taiwan's membership.

But observers said any reduction in the U.S. funds for the UN would strike a welcome chord among many legislators who feel the U.S. has paid too much and received ridicule as its reward.

The president's angry reaction to the Tuesday night vote in the General Assembly—shock and outrage was the White House description—was directed less at the expulsion of Nationalist China than at what was termed the "shocking spectacle" of delegates cheering and dancing in the assembly aisles when the result was announced.

White House spokesman Ronald Ziegler said the president interpreted the delegates' behavior as "undignified glee and personal animosity . . . toward the United States' position."

And it did not go unnoticed in the White House that many of them represented countries that had received "quite generous" economic aid from the U.S.

Despite the sharp outburst from Nixon and the veiled warning of budgetary pruning regarding the UN, the White House and the state department emphasize that the administration would not support any retaliatory moves.

Canada Protests

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada today protested the "poisonous, dangerous and in the ultimate futile" nuclear testing by the superpowers.

Speaking in the General Assembly's main political committee, Paul St. Pierre, parliamentary secretary to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, was referring specifically to United States' intentions of exploding a nuclear device in Alaska.

But his remarks took in the Soviet Union, France and China in a general condemnation of nuclear tests.

"We cannot find security in this narrow world of ours without an end to nuclear tests."

U. S. Assessed $56 Million

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States has been assessed $56,332,171 for the 1971 UN budget, or 31.5 per cent of the total.

Other assessments for 1971 include: Soviet Union, $22,665,684; France, $9,409,000; Britain, $8,964,533 and China $6,272,971.

The assessments are based on financial needs of the United Nations and the member's national product. Adjustments downward are made for countries with low per-capita income.

The assessment against China was made before the Nationalists were removed from the United Nations. The Chinese Nationalists are in arrears, and UN sources do not expect mainland China to take over the debt.

In Ottawa, the external affairs department said Canada has been assessed $4,891,000 for the general budget of the UN in 1971. This was 3.08 per cent of the total.

The Canadian share was up from 3.02 per cent in 1970 when Canada contributed $4,527,288. Canada is a fully paid-up UN member.

Catholic Joins Ulster Cabinet

BELFAST (AP) — A Roman Catholic joined Northern Ireland's cabinet for the first time Wednesday night with an appeal for peace. A few hours later, a police officer and a British soldier were killed and the army claimed at least six guerrillas were shot in a gun battle.

Prime Minister Brian Faulkner appointed Dr. Gerard Newe, 64-year-old specialist in social work, as a minister of state in an attempt to reach out to the Catholic minority.

The toll of known deaths in the communal warfare rose to 24 in the last two years, including 31 British soldiers this year.

After an eight-hour, house-to-house gun fight in West Belfast during the night, military headquarters reported troops hit at least six guerrilla snipers. But the dead or wounded were dragged away into the darkness by their comrades, the army said.

Early today, raiders ambushed a police car driving along the northern shore of Lough Neagh a few miles from Belfast.

A burst of automatic weapon fire riddled the car, police said, killing a 33-year-old sergeant. A constable with him was critically wounded.

Shortly afterward a mine exploded under an army scout car near the border with the Irish Republic. A 22-year-old corporal died of his wounds.

Lake Ontario Water Would Cost Nearly Double Present Rate

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Lake Ontario water piped from near Wellington across Prince Edward county and the Bay of Quinte would cost Belleville users nearly double the present 43 cents per 1,000 gallons rate.

This was indicated yesterday at an Ontario Water Resources Commission meeting with the Belleville and Trenton Area Sewer and Water Supply Advisory Board held at city hall when engineers and water plans for the Quinte area were presented.

The meeting was told that treated water from Lake Ontario provided at present to Belleville users would cost between 81 and 85 cents per 1,000 gallons.

On top of this would be distribution costs of the Belleville Public Utilities, which Commission chairman Gerry O'Connor said could boost the domestic rate cost to more than 80 cents.

Belleville currently obtains its water supply from the Bay of Quinte but in view of the deterioration of water quality, the OWRC is advocating piping water from Lake Ontario to supply Belleville and Trenton, along with the urban areas of Sidney and Thurlow townships.

The plan would also allow serving areas of Hillier and Ameliasburg Township as well as the villages of Belaava and Wellington.

Gore and Storrie, Toronto consulting engineers who prepared plans for the water distribution system, estimated capital costs of the required new work at just over $16,500,000 and with required land acquisition at more than $19 million.

The proposed system would have capacity for the estimated population growth of the area to 1996. Completion date for the system would be 1976.

Belleville and Trenton would be given credit for the value of their existing distribution systems.

The engineers said the location of the water supply had been determined after exhaustive consideration of water quality and distribution costs.

The system would be designed for an estimated area population of 104,000 in 26 years and for a maximum capacity of 25 million gallons a day.

The proposed intake would be about 1¼-miles west of Wellington where engineers said water quality was "good" and unlikely to deteriorate.

The water would be treated at a plant on the lakeshore and delivered across Prince Edward county in a 36-inch pipe to control reservoir Ameliasburg township and then by gravity fed across to the north side of the Bay of Quinte. Twin 30-inch pipes would deliver the water to a junction on the north side of the bay, from where single mains of the same size would deliver it to Belleville and Trenton.

Two new underground water reservoirs would be constructed at Belleville from which water would be delivered to users at tap pressure. There would be one reservoir at Trenton located on one of the Murray township hills from which it would flow by gravity.

The engineers said the reservoirs would play a key role in the system in that they would provide sufficient storage for a full day's use if for any reason the main trunk line from Lake Ontario was out of use.

Under section 46-A of the Municipal Act the Ontario Water Resources Commission is given discretionary powers in the construction of area water system but officials yesterday suggested there was no thought of ramming anything down peoples' throats.

In any event, there would be public hearings if there are objections by any of the member municipalities.

And as far as Belleville utilities chairman Gerry O'Connor is concerned, there is likely to be objection from Belleville.

Mr. O'Connor said that in view of the fact that Belleville water cost could double under the scheme, his commission would ask the OWRC for an alternative to Lake Ontario water.

He noted that while at certain times of the year the taste and odor of bay water is objectionable, there could possibly be treatment which would allow the use of bay water to be continued.

"With the controls that we have today, the bay water is not likely to deteriorate any further," he says.

The town of Trenton gets its water supply from wells and is able to provide water to customers at a considerably lower rate than in Belleville.

Trenton officials have been only lukewarm to the Lake Ontario water supply proposal and have indicated the project would not get their support.

Also at yesterday's meeting conceptual plans for sewer servicing of suburban areas outside Belleville and Trenton were presented by other consulting engineers.

At Belleville plans would call for expansion of the present treatment plant to handle sewage from the Sidney and Thurlow township areas proposed for servicing.

The engineers said that expansion of the present treatment plant would be more economical than to build a new plant which had at one time been suggested for the Jones Creek area west of the city.

A main trunk sewer would be constructed up the Moira River to serve Thurlow township and the northeast city industrial area, while sewage from the Jones Creek area would be channelled into a pumping station in the area of Loyalist College and thence into the city by way of Bridge Street.

The engineers said that Foxboro north side of the Bay of Quinte were too distant to be serviced by the Belleville system and eventually would have to be serviced on an individual basis.

The conceptual report for the Trenton sewer area would call for servicing of Trenton, the Canadian Forces Base, Bayside, Glen Miller, Batawa, and Frankford and portions of Sidney and Murray Townships.

This report was done by Delcuw Cather Ltd. while the Belleville area sewer report was by Marshall, MacKlin and Monaghan.

Both proposals would provide sewage facilities for the two areas until the year 2,000.

Old Cheese Factory Now Headquarters

The former Shamrock Cheese Factory south of Stirling on Highway 33 is making a transition from cheese to fibreglass products.

New tenant for the factory building is the Centenary Company, operated by two former Belo ite Stellite employees, Hugh Healy and Bruce MacKenzie.

Since May the new firm has operated from a service station in Frankford but the transfer to the Stirling area building is expected to be completed this weekend.

Centenary's busiest line is production of mini-campers for imported compact pickup trucks, but the firm also has the Canadian franchise for Custom Hardtops of Long Beach, California.

The new plant employs five men, including the principals but the work force is expected to increase to six or eight by next spring.

Snowmobile Snowplows Set to Go

The city's sidewalk snowplowing problems should be eased considerably this coming winter with the delivery yesterday of two new Bombardier track-type plow-equipped tractors.

The two sidewalk plows ordered earlier this year at a cost of approximately $14,000 will augment the three privately owned plows previously used in the city.

Designed for heavy going, the plows will do most of the work and should be able to keep walks cleared even after the exceptionally heavy snows that stalled Jeep equipment last winter.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said the Jeep plows are still be used but would be pulled off following heavy snows.

The new machines are cab equipped and operators will be able to work in comfort even in the coldest weather.

The Bombardiers, in appearance looking like an overgrown snowmobile, are designed for faster operation than the Jeep plows.

Drama Group Officers Elected

PICTON (Staff) — Members of the Quinte Island Theatre group have elected a new executive for their fall and winter production season.

Dr. Roger Hirst has been named in charge of publicity while Mrs. J. (Birdie) Cross will act as secretary. Treasurer is Miss Anne Robinson.

Senior representative for the QTT is Robert Mihill and junior representative is Frank Creamer.

Enthusiastic thespians discussed a program for the coming months and agreed two one-act plays could be presented at Christmas followed by a three-act play in mid-winter.

Interest was displayed in organizing workshops and setting up study groups for the program for the summer of 1972.

This will be done to provide experience for Children's Theatre, which has become the mainstay of the QTT at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Actors from the QTT toured local parks this summer supported by a grant from the federal Opportunities for Youth program.

A visit o Prince Edward Heights also was greeted with enthusiasm this year.

The QTT is seeking new members interested in community theatre. Applications will be received by secretary Birdie Cross, telephone Picton 476-3432.

Two Winners - - Two Dinners!

Michael Coulter, Toronto, (left), and Walter Karr, Belleville, had gourmet surprise sprung on them last night. Both men were winners in a draw at Four Seasons Hotel by Quinte Arts Council as part of campaign boosting sales for upcoming Neptune Theatre's Servant of Two Masters. Adding even more glamor to event, was Sandra Saunders, directoress of London of England Modelling Academy.

Two Additional Days For Winter Carnival

Because of the number of organizations wishing to take an active part in this year's Winter Carnival, and the large number of events tentatively scheduled for the celebration, the carnival this year will be two days longer.

This change, and a modification in management of the carnival, are the only two changed in the format of the event, and most portions of the carnival will be as they were in the past.

Similar to last year, most, if not all, carnival events will be held on Zwick's Island, and again one of the real highlights of the island festivities will be the Cogsled races.

"They proved to be a real attraction last year and when the committee for the Chamber of Commerce (sponsors for the carnival) approached by association for a return visit, they were only too happy to oblige," said Pat Hinston, manager of the chamber.

For the third consecutive year, Jack Trembley will be the principal co-ordinator of the carnival but there will be changes this year in the committee work behind the scenes.

"In the past Jack has completely handled the paper work and the leg work, but this year there will be a steering committee to take some of the load off him," said Mr. Houston.

Separate organizations will be responsible for carnival activities on particular days. Each of these groups will be co-ordinated by a member of the steering committee who will be responsible for the smooth running of the day. Mr. Trembley will be responsible for the smooth running of this committee, rather than handling the entire event.

Other highlights of last year's carnival that will be repeated this year include, the winter carnival queen, the pancake breakfast, and the airplane rides.

Sunday, again this year, "will prove to be the big day," said Mr. Houston.

Most of the events at the island will be in full swing and as an additional attraction, there will be free snowmobile rides, for the general public.

"A couple of exciting things may be happening at this year's carnival that did not last year," said Mr. Houston.

"Because the carnival this year is two days longer, there are two evenings that will have to be filled with an activity of one form or another."

While it is still in the planning stage, it is hoped by members of the committee that for at least one of these evenings, the carnival will be able to show a veterans' hockey game.

"We contacted the Montreal Canadiens Veterans Hockey Club, but were told they couldn't make it because of a previous commitment," said Mr. Houston.

Plans are still going through and members of the committee have contacted the Toronto Maple Leafs. There has been no reply yet.

For the second evening, also unfilled, the committee hopes to involve the Belleville Figure Skating Association in an activity, and, as an added highlight bring in a top name performer for an ice show.

Toques and buttons will be sold again this year and with the accent on keeping warm, The Hotel Quinte Barber Shop is sponsoring a beard growing contest.

Judged in categories of full, red beard, best groomed, and most original style, the contest is open to anyone who can grow one.

Applicants must register no later than Nov. 20.

Rules of the contest include, you can't have growth professionally trimmed within two weeks of the judging, but you can use moustache wax.

For information on the carnival, or if clubs in the city would like to participate in the event, they may inquire at the offices of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce on Front St.

Landmark Gone

An old Trent River landmark which has served the residents of Glen Miller and the Quinte district for many years has disappeared from the scene.

It is the old swing bridge across the river at Glen Miller which has been dismantled following the completion of the new high-level bridge which has been under construction for the past year.

Gas Rate Decision Monday

Toronto (Special) — The Ontario Energy Board will announce its decision on the Northern and Central Gas rate increase application Monday afternoon says A. B. Jackson, vice-chairman of the board. Ladyfield Gas, which serves the Quinte area, is a subsidiary of the company.

Mr. Jackson told the Toronto bureau of The Intelligencer announcement will come in the form of a statement, a written decision at the board office.

Preparation of the decision has taken nine months because of the complexity required and the fact the board conducted regular hearings for other applications.

The hearing was the longest on record for the Energy Board in terms of length of time and volume of material submitted by the applicant and intervenors.

Opposition to the proposed increase came from 29 Ontario Municipalities in the area served by Northern and Central Gas.

Northern and Central Gas wants a seven per cent rate increase for residential customers in Northern Ontario and a three per cent rate increase for their franchise area along Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River.

Liberals Elect Daicar President

BATTAWA (Staff) — Anthony Daicar, a Bata Industries executive, last night was chosen president of the Prince Edward — Hastings Liberal Association, replacing Ontario Hydro employee Bill Menzies.

The Czech - born Liberal has been active in the party since soon after coming to Canada 24 years ago. In the 1971 riding executive, he held the office of vice-president.

In other election activities here last night, Trenton school teacher Mel Boulton, who has served as secretary, became the new vice - president. John Loucks, a Bata accountant, will continue as association treasurer while Dr. Terry Watts of Trenton will be the new riding secretary.

In his acceptance speech, before 27 party stalwarts at the association's annual meeting yesterday, Mr. Daicar urged the building now of an organization to back their local candidate, Trenton school teacher George Cunningham, for the next federal election. He said the people of this riding "feel like orphans in Ottawa."

Cunningham remarked he has begun to form an election campaign committee. Members now include Mr. Daicar, Mr. Loucks, Dr. Watts and Hugh O'Neil, a Trenton realtor.

He also read a short note from Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau thanking him for the reception he received during his recent tour and telling him "I thought you did an excellent job of coping with the distractions" at Picton fair.

In his brief address, Cunningham criticized the Globe and Mail, The Intelligencer and the Picton Gazette. He also chided provincial conservatives for taking credit for programs achieved through federal - provincial co-operation, referring to the new Glen Miller Bridge and developments at Loyalist College.

"We should get credit," he said. "I am getting sick and tired of getting no credit."

Lr. Ian Wilson of Cobourg, a Liberal Party executive, told the assembly a federal election will be held next year but its date would "depend on the condition of the economy."

Blacksmith Retires After 47 Years

The forge and anvil in the gray workshop of the CNR's Bridge and Building shack will no longer feel the blacksmith's masterful touch.

Jim Watters, a craftsman from another age, retired Wednesday after 47 years with the railroad, the final 36 of them as one of CN's few remaining smiths.

Although he never shoed horses and he's been using an acetylene torch since he began, Mr. Watters was every inch a farrier. Most of his work was done on construction machinery — track liners, bulldozers, electrostatics (for lifting track), loaders and the like.

While the original railway blacksmiths built such devices as brake hangers and tow chains, Mr. Watters spent much of his time assembling motor cars, the tiny little vehicles used to transport maintenance crews up and down the track. Working with engine parts and pieces of iron, he constructed frames on which to mount rebuilt motors and later, installed two - way radios which he had fabricated.

The title blacksmith does not do the job justice, declares Mr. Watters. "I was a motor mechanic, electronic welder, radio electrician, you name it." He had designed an arc welder by 1947 and since the railway was not yet using them, he bought the parts and assembled it himself.

The only time he used a forge was for sharpening tools. Torches, he says, are better for heating up metal because of their handiness and the fact that the piece being worked on doesn't have a chance to lose its heat.

Mr. Watters officially joined the CNR as a laborer in 1924, although he insists he had worked for the company for two or three years before then. His first post was Fallowfield, a tiny village near Ottawa, and since then he has covered most of the territory in eastern Ontario.

The blacksmith's job came along at the end of the war when the Belleville smithy retired. He went to work for 93 cents an hour and has been at it ever since, although his rate of pay has gone up considerably in the meantime.

Work was more enjoyable in recent years he says. "It's not so tiresome and you have better equipment. Young people who work today don't know anything about it." He then went on to tell about the days when he worked 99 hours a week including every second Sunday.

He has many fond memories of his years with the railroad but one of the most vivid was a time when things did not go so well. That was the day, in 1954, when he was called out to mend a snowplow which had broken down near a town called Dwyer Hill. He worked for 10 straight hours in temperatures, he recalls, near 40 below zero.

Married to his wife Margaret since 1934, the Watters have one son Michael, who is an electrical engineer with Northern Electric in Belleville. They have no definite plans for the future but if the past is any indication, there will be plenty of things to keep Mr. Watters occupied.

Contractors call him regularly seeking advice on construction materials and techniques. He will also, no doubt be invited to come and lend a personal hand to some people's trickier problems. Jim Watters has been coming up with solutions all his life and just because he's approaching 65 is no reason to quit.

Glamor on Trains

Remember those sad, negative, defeatist hearings before the Canadian Transport Commission a while ago when the two major railroads were seeking permission to close various lines for lack of business . . .

We suggested then that the companies might improve the human touch in their service, as well as provide a little glamor, by employing hostesses. True, the airlines are losing passengers too, and stewardesses have long been part of the scene there, but with the railroads their presence would have the advantage of novelty.

At one of the CTC hearings, concerning, as we recall, the closing of a line up Owen Sound way, a woman resident of a community along the route claimed that, given a chance, she would make the line pay. And one of her suggestions, if we remember rightly, was uniformed hostesses.

In any event the message seems to have penetrated into the executive area of one company at least. Canadian Pacific now has hostesses on Calgary-Edmonton passenger trains in a bid to attract more passengers. The girls, who serve light refreshments, wear hot pants or pant-suits during the three-and-a-half hour run.

The Women's Lib people probably would object to this sort of thing. They would call it exploitation of women as sexual objects and all that sort of thing. But that is an extreme view in our opinion. Rather the feminine touch on the trains will afford passengers another dimension to rail travel besides staring glumly out of the window. Moreover, the idea is not entirely new. The Ile-de-France Turbo train had hostesses aboard for the short period it operated between Toronto and Montreal.

Ulster's Plight

"We're you ever in Larne?" This County Antrim port and terminal of the Larne-Stranraer (Scotland) ferry service lies some 20 miles north of Belfast and is the gateway to the fabled Antrim coast road.

The query, "We're you ever in Larne?" is one of those legendary Irish expressions that can grow up with a place and might be likened to the lines? "We're you ever at the fair at Ballycastle," relating to the Lammas Fair in that town farther north.

Now Larne's relative peace and quiet has been shattered by an IRA bomb which wrecked the town's police station, and this in a community which is largely Protestant and free of terrorist influence — a factor however which may be counteracted by republican support among the considerable Catholic population in communities along the coast road.

Larne has significant associations with the early days of Northern Ireland's shaky statehood. It was the port of entry for Ulster volunteer guns to oppose Home Rule for Ireland. Spurred by Edward Carson, the Ulster Covenant was signed in 1912 and a provisional government set up in Belfast the following year. In 1914 the gun-running was at its height. Ironically, by 1921, the country was divided into two political identities.

Today the shoe is on the other foot, with a bloody campaign of terrorism by the outlawed IRA which, as a report in this newspaper from Dublin the other day indicated, is causing consternation even in the republican south. They may well be concerned in the south, for tourists are staying away from there too.

Superficially quiet as it is, in the republic, the IRA are also there in strength, and the objective among some terrorist elements at least is the establishment of a Communist-style "people's government" representing all Ireland.

As Others See Us

Seeing ourselves as others see us was one of poet Robert Burns' celebrated themes and it was interesting to hear NBC reporter John Dancy's observations in Toronto as Soviet Premier Kosygin departed for Cuba.

There was no doubt, Dancy said, that Russia was courting Canada. . . "and the Canadians, who suffer from a chronic inferiority complex anyway, through living next door to the United States, find the whole thing both flattering and fascinating."

This was one aspect of Soviet policy, in Dancy's estimation, which Kosygin would be trying to explain to Cuba. The latter, as a new boy in the Communist orbit, does not encourage any more dialogue with the capitalist world than it deems necessary. Such is the trade for example it conducts with Canada.

We doubt if Canadians were so much flattered and fascinated by Kosygin's presence as intrigued. We are not as gullible as reporter Dancy might suppose. And come to think of it, we cannot recall a single worthwhile statement by the premier while he was here The fact is, his visit was little more than window-dressing.

Farm Payment 'Squeeze Play' Cited

'Government by Opposition' Query Foxes the P M

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Constantly you know, from the look of stunned astonishment that flashed across his face and to a microsecond was gone again, that such a thought never before had crossed Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's agile mind.

But now it had.

With the Prime Minister confronted by a reporter asking the question as to whether what currently was going on in Parliament was not, in actual practical fact, "government by Opposition."

Pierre Trudeau is the one Prime Minister in the last 36 years, from Mackenzie King's day to his own, who, always having the immediate answer, never hesitates.

He thinks with incredible swiftness, on his feet, his mind programmed to parry any thrust.

But now, for the first time in public view, he hesitated.

He had been caught completely by surprise with the question hooking him on a new and startling thought.

"Government by Opposition."

Preposterous, read the flash of amazement that streaked across his face, swift as a lightning flash.

Then he recovered, and for a second or two as he thought, he used the old, familiar despondable and always serviceable time-killing "well . . ."

Maybe the reporter had something with his "government by Opposition," and—the Prime Minister was prepared to discuss it and grudgingly concede on the evidence, it just might be possible.

At least in one sense . . . that of the Opposition digging in and holding a line of legislative obstruction so stubbornly that the Government retreats.

The reporter, supporting his question as to whether...the Prime Minister was presiding over "government by Opposition," cited the administration's withdrawal of its grain legislation, the 86 amendments to the White Paper on Tax Reform bill, and the "re-writing" of Finance Minister Benson's June Budget with the recent emergency tax cuts.

No, protested the Prime Minister, the Opposition really had not "re-written" the Budget, even though the Government had slashed taxes as both Conservatives and New Democrats long had demanded.

"Surely," argued the Prime Minister, "the Opposition always disagrees with Government budgets, always saying it is too little too late, or too much too soon . . . so nothing really has changed there."

Now the withdrawal of the Government's grain legislation, conceded the Prime Minister, was something else again.

(When it was withdrawn, the Prairie farmers lost the immediate $100 million it would have given them plus an annual future $35 million, getting instead, under another grain bill, $20 million plus $20 million next year.)

The Government's withdrawal of the bill was "a serious matter" — especially for the farmers — agreed the Prime Minister.

"It does prove (as the reporter had suggested) that if the Opposition really wants to bog down the House, as the NDP (did) in clearly saying they would never let the legislation through, they can waste a devil of a lot of time."

He went on to say the Government COULD, finally, have jammed through the legislation, if it had chosen.

But the NDP had "squeezed" the Government with the filibuster in the Senate, the court action in Saskatchewan against Finance Minister Benson, compelling the Government to drop the bill.

It was, said the Prime Minister in admission of a parliamentary manoeuvre expertly executed, "a great squeeze play in which the farmer was very badly crunched."

And in that particular case, the Prime Minister said he would "concede," the NDP had managed, in a sense, to work something approaching "government by Opposition."

But as to the Opposition, in demanding White Paper Tax changes, with the Government making 96 of them, again getting the upper hand and "squeezing the whip, the Prime Minister laughed.

It "was not government by Opposition," he insisted, even although the Government had done what the Opposition had demanded.

It was, instead, "the way the Canadian parliamentary system works . . . that people not only in the Commons, but all across the land, various pressure groups, people who think they have a right, and the Government wrong, make their points. And by and large the Government has to adjust here and there to get its program through. And if it does not succeed in doing what the majority of the people want, it is thrown out at the next election."

It might not have been "government by Opposition," as the Prime Minister argued, but it WAS government with the interaction of Opposition.

And if ever a Prime Minister had confirmed the value of Opposition, Pierre Trudeau had managed to do just that, in conceding it had forced a Government withdrawal on one hand, and "to its credit," helped put through a record amount of legislation.

Sunday School Too

Youth Group Conducts Church Service

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Today's youth are doing much more than most of us give them credit for.

The Hi-C group of Eastminster Church conducted the service on Sunday and I am without words to describe the impact it had upon the congregation. It was organized entirely by the young people without adult help. Each member added of his or her part to make it a truly effective service.

My 13 - year - old, along with all the other Junior Sunday School members were in Church because several of these Hi-C boys and girls are their Sunday School Teachers.

They are conducting the service next Sunday at Eastminster Church and I am sure their congregation will be equally impressed.

Napanee Council and the Press

Napanee Beaver

In raising the question of whether or not the press is "in order" in leaving the council chamber to interview or obtain further information from delegations that have appeared before council, Mayor Lorne Smart is taking a peculiar attitude toward the duties and responsibilities of the press.

Contrary to the position taken by Mayor Smart, that the press might secure information which council does not have, the Mayor in particular, and councillors as well, frequently are much more familiar with matters brought before council by delegations than the press, which usually is introduced to the subject for the first time when a delegation appears.

Delegations are informally received at Napanee Council and spokesmen usually identified, making it often necessary for the press to check with the delegations to obtain the right names and background information brought before council by those delegations.

At the October meeting of town council, Mayor Smart put the question directly to the press: "Should the press be permitted to obtain more interviews in the corridor after a delegation has appeared before council?"

The observation of a member of the press, that the press is justified in securing any additional information on the spot that will enable reporters to present a complete report as possible to the public, answers Mayor Smart's question as to whether or not the press is "in order".

The Mayor's assurance that the press is always welcome at Council meetings, despite his objection to reporters leaving council meetings to check out points with delegations, misses the point that the press does not attend council meetings as guests of council. Nor is the press in any way a part of council.

Council meetings are open to the public and the press in a democratic society. It is the duty of the press to report proceedings as accurately and as fully as possible.

So long as there is no disturbance of the dignity or decorum of council proceedings, there should be no objection to a recure as much information about subjects of public concern as possible from delegations or whatever the source may be.

The correct identification of delegation spokesmen and the securing of relevant background information by the press in the chamber is not disruptive of council in the continuing conduct of its business. The press is certainly "in order" in fulfilling its function of providing the public with essential information concerning matters that are brought to the attention of council by interested citizens.

Reflections on Ontario Place

The Globe and Mail

Ontario Place has been swathed off for the winter and we are informed that during the next few weeks a searching analysis of its performance and assessment of its potential will be undertaken. The examiners will be asking how well the place worked, what should be changed, and how it should be presented next year.

A commendable exercise, and one which, in our opinion, could do worse than begin with the question: Why was it switched off for the winter? The most significant changes in any field often proceed from questioning basic assumptions, and the rule can be applied in this case simply by questioning the hibernation habit.

We concede right away that in this part of the world we do tend to have intimidating winters — but it should not come as a surprise once a year to find it snowing. The trick is to learn to roll with winter's punch to use it for our own delight, to exploit it for recreation, to deny it the satisfaction of bullying us. The nature of the Canadian winter is unlikely to change, so the onus of adaptability falls on the country's citizens.

Lacking an intimate knowledge of the engineering details of Ontario Place, we are not able to take inventory of those features capable of dealing with winter; on the other hand, we find it difficult to accept that 96 acres of man-made land and structures should largely be closed down just as the leaves are changing color.

One might add ruefully that, since this was all man-made, it could have been designed for winter playground (among other things) right at the beginning. The ski, the skate and the snowmobile all testify to a general public eagerness to embrace winter rather than run from it — a philosophy which should at some point enter into the considerations of those now taking the measure of Ontario Place.

Perhaps it is an extravagance to think of it as the focal point for an all-winter carnival when we do not even know how many of the ice around it will freeze, or could be induced to freeze(it has to fight the sewage effluent, you know), or whether you could skate and Canoe, toast an ox outside the Mug 'n' Jug.

But we would be comforted to think that at least those studying Ontario Place and its potential for 1972 were not taking for granted that it must go into deep freeze once a year. The farewell fireworks were very nice, but couldn't they be seasonally adjusted?

B. C. Jaycee Group Admits - Women to Membership

Victoria Daily Times

The 33-year-old Junior Chamber of Commerce at one time has scored a first in North America. It has voted to accept women members.

It is not to be thought that this move was taken lightly — the debate included warnings that marriages would be endangered, that meetings would be inhibited, that a fine "just the guys" atmosphere would be dissipated, and one member's declaration that he wasn't going to let his wife join anyway.

There were lively arguments on the other side, of course, and oddly enough the final vote in favor of admitting the ladies was unanimous.

The Duncan Jaycees are to be congratulated on their venture. It could mean a whole new era for the organization, they played safe by limiting the experiment to a one-year trial but it would be a brave Jaycee who would vote "no" next October — with his wife sitting right there.

In fact, there could be unexpected developments from this. If the ladies are members they will have a vote, and they'll want to become officers as well. Could it be that some day, the men having voted them in, they might turn around and vote the men out? That would be a first for North America, but it's a little too awful to contemplate.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Riggs, well-known residents of the city, quietly observed their golden wedding anniversary at their home at 21 Queen St. Due to the indisposition of Mr. Riggs, who is recovering from a serious illness, only a few intimate friends of the family dropped in to offer felicitations. It was 50 years ago that Mabel K. DeGuerre and Leo Riggs took their marriage vows at Uxbridge, home of the bride.

The first of three cooking demonstrations was held in St. Thomas' Parish house under the sponsorship of the Red Cross Society with Mrs. Dorothy Batcheler McKinnon, home economist, as narrator and demonstrator.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Murray, and Robert, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Shay, Port Hope.

Two hundred students for the Ontario School for the Deaf were guests of the manager of the Capitol Theatre to see the currently running feature "Come on George," starring George Formby. W. J. The Statue of Liberty, a gift of the people of France to the United States, was unveiled with imposing ceremonies 85 years ago today — in 1886. Present for the occasion on Bedloe's Island in New York harbor were U.S. President Grover Cleveland and the sculptor, Auguste Bartholdi.

1958—Angelo Cardinal Roncalli was elected Pope to succeed Pius XII. As Pope John XXIII, he was often called the Pope of unity and peace. He died June 3, 1963.

Embarrassment of Riches

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park

Winning isn't all fun. Particularly big wins.

Premier Davis reflecting this week in the sodium sun at times must have wished fate hadn't sent him back quite so triumphantly.

For the premier's first task must be to reorganize his government, and his party in the house.

And the job isn't easy, mainly because of wealth—or say it another way, because he is hog tied with riches.

The premier's job is firstly to reform his government so that it will be an effective machine for a definite Davis stamp. Then he must reorganize them—for them second termers and others new but with outstanding ability to get them in order in the cabinet and if possible fitted into it. And finally there is the task of other members who must somehow or other be kept happy.

With the cabinet, of course, there just aren't enough jobs to go round. And with the backbenchers, particularly with the top-heavy phalanx the premier now has, there just isn't enough work to keep them busy, at least in the house who feels he belongs in the starting line-up.

And having to relegate so many of these to the bench is one of the unenviable tasks of leadership.

One of them in fact he has already partially announced, barring the election he said he intended to establish five more or less super ministries which would be charged with the job of co-ordinating the work of other specified departments. Five of the ministers of these would be given parliamentary assistants.

This will be the first time the parliamentary system followed in Ontario by Tories has existed here and it will provide at least five jobs.

Then in the main house we will probably see stronger emphasis on the committees.

Tois could involve giving the committees some investigative function they haven't had and which the opposition has been demanding. Staffing them with permanent secretariats and making the chairmanships the same as full-time post with a substantial remuneration are also being considered.

This could mean a dozen more good jobs.

But even so there won't be nearly enough to go around. And of course, this means the toughest problem of all. For there isn't a man or woman in the house who feels he belongs in the starting line-up.

And having to relegate so many of these to the bench is one of the unenviable tasks of leadership.

U.S. Will Test Bomb

spread in ocean waters across international boundaries.

Yoshio Okawara, minister at the Japanese embassy here commented:

"I cannot predict what course of action our government may take. We have been very seriously concerned with the atomic experimentation in Amchitka. We are concerned with its effects on the environment, on navigation and on fishing operations."

In Wednesday's news conference, Schlesinger said there was a "virtual zero likelihood of any damage" from the test. He said its shock would not even be felt in the nearest large community, Anchorage, Alaska, some 1,400 miles away.

Schlesinger said "stemming" operations—filling in the 6,000-foot-deep shaft on top of the atomic device—would begin immediately, making "it impractical to recover the device."

Should court actions force cancellation of the test, or delay it beyond the several "safe" weeks remaining, the warhead could be destroyed by conventional explosives underground, without setting off an atomic blast, Schlesinger said.

Questioned on expressions of fear that the blast could set off an earthquake or tidal wave, he said no such underground test had ever triggered an aftershock greater than the test itself. It would take an aftershock "10 to 30 times larger than the original detonation" to cause an earthquake reaction.

While there was "no evidence" that this could happen, Schlesinger said, "that is not to say it cannot happen..."

For a tidal-wave situation, the blast would have, to lift the ocean floor over a distance of thousands of square miles, he said.

If the test went ahead successfully, Schlesinger said, "we anticipate" closing the Amchitka site.

In his formal announcement, Schesinger said:

"Some objections have been raised on environmental grounds. In the careful examination of these issues within the executive branch, environmental damage has been exhaustively considered and overriding requirements of national security have, of necessity, taken precedence."

The defence department is anxious the test be held because of the important role the Spartan missile will play in the ABM network it is building.

This anxiety has been hardened by insistent warnings recently by Pentagon officials, from Defence Secretary Melvin Laird downwards, that the Soviet Union might soon overtake the United States in nuclear "first-strike" capability.

Opponents argue that not only is the test a grave threat to the environment and the delicate physical structure of the Aleutian Island chain, but also that the Spartan missile is already obsolete and the test an unnecessary waste of money and resources.

B. C. Girl Wins Miss Hope Title

Jill, who hails from Lumby, B.C., was selected Wednesday evening at Education Hall in Belleville General Hospital. She now is eligible to compete for the Thousand Islands division title, the winner of which will go on to Toronto for the provincial final. The Thousand Islands competition involving girls from Trenton to Cornwall, will be held late next month in Napanee.

One of nine children, Jill is in the final term of a two-year course and hopes to become a registered nurse. At present, she lives in Mary Ritchie Residence.

The Miss Hope contest, open to nurses only, is sponsored by the Canadian Cancer Society with the intention of utilizing "young, healthy individuals to reinforce the slogan Cancer Can be Beaten". Nursing students and the medical profession in general are made aware of the special needs of the cancer patient, and the problems confronting the Cancer Society.

Deaf Attending Nursery School In Experiment

Ontario School for the Deaf here, after 100 years of educating the hard-of-hearing school-aged child, is moving into the preschool area.

A novel project is now in operation in Kingston, involving deaf and normal children in a nursery school setting.

Purpose is to instruct not only the deaf child, but his parents as well.

The preschool classes are held at R. G. Sinclair Public School under the joint organization of the Frontenac County board of education an OSD.

About equal numbers of deaf and normal children, aged 2½ to 5 years, attend the classes at least two afternoons a week.

A visiting teacher from OSD conducts the classes and instructs both children and their parents. They learn the formation of normal speech in words, phrases and sentences and acquire the basics of conversation. The children learn how to socialize and the parents learn how to manage their children when they are alone and when they are with other children.

Organizers of the classes look forward to initiating research projects through the nursery school classes.

Areas to be explored are communication and behavior patterns of hearing-impaired children, development of play patterns, the effectiveness of special training of preschool deaf children and ways parents can help their handicapped children at home.

The organizers have run into a snag, however. Children from as far away as Perth and Napanee attend the Kingston classes and an appeal has gone out for drivers to get them to the school.

Evening Fire Guts Sidney House

Fire last night completely gutted a Sidney Township home at the corner of Harder Drive and the second concession highway.

Owned by William Bowler, formerly headquarters for Quinte Antenna Services, the dwelling was being used for what neighbors described as a single haven.

Five young men, members of local band Power Unlimited were absent at the time of the blaze. Captain Jack Rushnell of the Sidney Township volunteer fire department, reports the home empty last night.

Shortly after 7 p.m., when the fire broke out, 11 firemen arrived with a tanker and pump truck they found the house "completely engulfed in flames."

Although they were able to leave three walls and much of the roof standing, the interior was completely gutted.

"We couldn't say how the fire started," Captain Rushnell told The Intelligencer, but the blaze appears to have begun at the rear of the home near the chimney.

Firemen were able to pull a large snowmobile and an automobile away from the burning building. Both were undamaged.

Two unusual circumstances arose. Firemen report a garage, five feet from the blaze, remained completely unscorched. They also discovered hidden between the pages of a pocket novel, approximately $70 in bills which can be reclaimed at a bank. Serial numbers were still visible, and these notes can be replaced.

An estimate of building damage places the loss at $10,000 while contents, such as clothing, a stereo and furnishings, have been valued at $4,000.

THIS IS THE END!

Poverty Discussed at Women's Study Guild

The Women's Study Guild met for the October meeting on Monday, October 25 at the home of Miss Josephine Tickell with the president, Miss Olive Elson presiding.

As poverty was the topic for discussion for the meeting, Mrs. Harold Seldon brought a fitting introduction to the subject in her worthy devotions. She read the story of the anointing of Jesus with the alabaster box of ointment, ending with His observation that the poor you have with you always.

Mrs. Seldon stated that as people travel their own Jericho road through life they would like to exemplify the Good Samaritan if only they could recognize their opportunities for service. It is easy to walk through life without seeing those in need of food, clothes or lodging.

Mrs. Ralph Ellis presented a well-prepared study on poverty with material gleaned from special scenic committee reports on poverty. She also gave highlights from the book entitled, "The Poverty Wall."

Her reports showed that in spite of Canada's high standards of living, there are many pockets of misery.

The economic council states that poverty in Canada is very real and that it will be accomplished until the middle and upper classes are somehow touched by that poverty to start doing something about the problem.

Ian Adams is the author of the book The Poverty Wall. His knowledge from his own bitter experiences was his credentials to tell the story of Canada's poverty and to suggest ways to improve conditions. He was appointed to the senate committee on poverty but resigned to tell the story in his own way.

Lack of education, unemployment, very large families, poor health and inadequate housing conditions feature in the poverty story today. Then there are the aged who are outside the labor force who see the value of the dollar shrinking each year in its buying power.

Mrs. Ellis concluded her talk by asking the question Mr. Adams asked in the final chapter of his book.

Who will come forward and speak for the working poor? Who will speak for more than two million kids trapped in poverty's miserable life cycle? and who will speak for the thousands of men and women too old to work?

The meeting closed with delicious refreshments served by the two hostesses, Miss J. Tickell and Mrs. J. Reynolds.

MR. AND MRS. RANDY NAHU

Reid – Lichty

Faith Missionary Church, Kitchener was the scene of a recent wedding when Charlotte Lucille Lichty, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Lorne Lichty, Belleville, Pennsylvania became the bride of Kenneth Richard Wesley Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walton Reid, Ivanhoe. The ceremony was conducted by the bride's father, assisted by Rev. R. Sider. Miss Muriel Rendle, organist and Miss June Pringle, soloist provided music for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her uncle Mr. Lloyd Lichty, the bride was traditionally gowned in peau de soie with the skirt being overlaid with organdy. The bodice and sleeves were fashioned from silk embroidered lace with scalloped neckline and lily point sleeves. Her silk-illusion veil fell from a single chiffon rose headpiece. She carried a lace covered Bible on which rested yellow orchids, bouvardia and fern.

The bride was attended by maid of honor Miss Heather Harris and bridesmaids Sharon Reid and Marlene Lichty all wearing mint green gowns with sheer sleeves, the bodices and sleeves trimmed with Swiss lace. Their shoulder-length veils also of mint green were draped from a softly tailored bow headdress.

The flower girl, Miss Carol Neufeld wore a floor-length gown similar to the bridesmaids with a white and yellow daisy headdress. All attendants carried floral arrangements of yellow daisy 'mums and carnations.

Attending the bridegroom was Ronald Smith of Bloomfield. Honorary ushers were Irwin Post of Thomasburg and Dennis Anderson of Kitchener. Acting ushers were Wesley Holden of Gananoque and Stanley Snyder of Kitchener.

The reception was held in the dining room of Emmanuel Bible College where both bride and bridegroom have been students. Receiving guests was the bride's mother wearing powder blue brocade taffeta dress and a corsage of Sweetheart roses. She was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom who wore copen blue dress with a corsage of pink and white carnations.

The couple will reside in Kitchener.

Black and White Decor Highlights Tea

Silhouette '71 was the theme o' the Holloway St. UCW sponsored fall bazaar and tea held on Wednesday afternoon at the church hall. The dramatic black and white decor, highlighted by silhouettes of faces hung at strategic points in the bazaar hall and tea room, was extremely effective in its startling simplicity. Paper cut-outs of flowers and abstract shapes which were also suspended from the ceiling were eyecatching for their contrasting black and white color scheme.

At the entrance to the bazaar where Mrs. L. Churchill, convener Mrs. Edna Dobbs Mrs. W. Lamb and Mrs. W. Ironside stood in a receiving line to greet guests an arrangement of bare branches painted dazzling white against a black background dramatically announced the silhouettes theme.

In the tea room, the main table was centred by a novel arrangement of crystal goblets arranged in a diagonal line with the smallest at one end and the largest at the other. Each goblet held a piece of black paper deftly twisted to resemble an abstract sculpture. Pouring tea were Mrs. Eva Brown, Mrs. Kilbank, Mrs. I. Knight and Mrs. C. Lowther.

The small tea tables were centred by miniature versions of the black paper "sculptures" in silver holders. Serving the guests were Mrs. D. Robertson, Mrs. J. Dilts, Mrs. Pearl Holmes and Mrs. Jill Empey.

Those responsible for the decorations were Mrs. I. Knight, Mrs. D. Richardson, Mrs. C. Lawler and Mrs. H. Lewis. Conveners in charge of the kitchen and tea room were Mrs. S. Shenebridge, Mrs. E. Vader, Mrs. A. Campbell, Mrs. C. Bird and Mrs. J. Bush.

The conveners of the various bazaar booths were Mrs. G. Watson and Mrs. Doug Thompson (sewing, knitting and needlework). Mrs. T. Post and Mrs. G. Coulter (aprons), Mrs. C. Wannamaker and Mrs. F. Dickens (home baking). Mrs. A. McMillan and Mrs. V. Bailey (country store), Mrs. A. Miller and Mrs. J. Simpson (candy), Mrs. A. Bartlett and Mrs. R. Ross (white elephant) and Mrs. R. Taylor (parcel post).

The general conveners were Mrs. L. Churchill and Mrs. H. Quinglyke. Mrs. K. Parks was in charge of tickets.

Nahu – Johnson

Holy Rosary Church, Belleville was the setting for the wedding ceremony on Saturday, Oct. 16, when Alesta Ann Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnson, Robertson Lane, Belleville became the bride of Randy Nahu, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Nahu of Delhi, B.C. Father Reginald officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by organist Harry Orton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of white lace over white chiffon. Her headdress of white satin was accented with a pearl insert and caught in an elbow-length veil edged with lace to match her dress. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Miss Marina Johnson attended her sister as maid of honor wearing a light blue full-length crepe dress with a blue net headpiece. She carried a bouquet of blue and white 'mums. Bridesmaid was another sister Karen Johnson who was dressed similarly to the maid of honor but in pink.

A reception was held in the Park Dale Community Centre where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a rose lace dress and cost ensemble with a corsage of white and pink 'mums.

For the wedding trip to Comox, B.C., the bride chose a dress of gray crepe with matching cost.

Mr. and Mrs. Nahu will reside in Comox, B.C.

A Handbook on Public Relations for Social Workers and Others

By DORIS CLARK

"Public Opinion is stronger than the legislature, and nearly as strong as the Ten Commandments."

Such is the comment on the front cover of the new Public Relations Handbook for Social Workers. It was prepared by a committee of the Ontario Association of Professional Social Workers, and I confess to having a hand in it.

We wrote it because we thought people in general did not know nearly enough about our comparatively new profession of social work. And that social workers needed some guidelines in how to tell them. There is such a thing as being so close to a story to tell it properly.

So the little handbook urges anyone — volunteer or professional social worker — to try his or her hand at spreading our good news, and in nice easy everyday words we can all understand. Points out some of the ways to do it, with a sample news report to illustrate the idea.

A handy handbook which would help any of the helping professions to get better understanding of what they do. Want one? Sells for 50 cents, in order to get back some of the cost of printing it.

Dear Doris: I have never before taken a guy out on Sadie Hawkins Day and this year I am planning to take my boy friend out.

Ann Landers

Seductive Mom Needs Counselling

Dear Ann Landers: I am 23, my fiance is 24. His mother is the problem. She is 42 years old and looks very good for her age. (She should. She has had everything lifted, and I do mean everything.)

My fiance's mother has a thing about running around half naked. She does her housework in a bikini (winter as well as summer) because she says it gives her freedom. If she is wearing a housecoat for dinner it is never buttoned all the way. She manages to be falling out, just a little. Last night she cooked supper in a bra and half-slip and sat down to the table in that outfit, only she tucked a napkin in her bra.

My fiance has two brothers, one 20, another 17. I've heard them all suggest to their mother that she put some clothes on but she ignores them. Why is she like this and what can be done?

—Skin Flick At Home

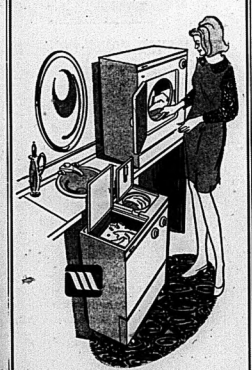
Dear S. F.: She is like that because she is one of those seductive moms who should have had a little counselling a few years ago. What can be done? Nothing, probably, except a concerted effort by the three boys to get Madame Pompadour to cover up at least when guests are present

Dear Ann Landers: My girl friend's parents raised her like she was Princess Margaret. She knows how to dress, look pretty and make social conversation. That's where her talents end. She takes no interest in anybody or anything but herself. No housework, no cooking, no public service, or, heaven forbid, a job.

I think I love this girl and would marry her if I thought she would change and be a helpmate instead of a rock around my neck. I am writing this letter from Vietnam and will send it to the Memphis Commercial Appeal. I hope you will answer in the paper. Mom clips your columns and sends them every week. I'll be home in 60 days and I need to know your opinion before I leave here. What do you think, Ann?—G. I. Joe

Dear Joe: I think the letter was not written by you, but by your mother. It came directly from Memphis.

If your mother has described the girl accurately, you've got some tall thinking to do. Good luck.



Dear Ann Landers: I would like to say a word to friends and relatives who think they are being helpful, but who do more harm than good. After 14 years of marriage my husband and I agreed to a legal separation. In our crowd "legal separation" is viewed as the forerunner to divorce. What our friends do not know is that we are trying for a reconciliation.

If they would leave me alone and not try to "make me feel better by telling me how lucky I am to be rid of the dog—that they've known for years he was a bum—etc.," I'd appreciate it. I am aware, also, that some of my "well-intentioned" friends have been going to my husband and telling him how lucky he is to be rid of me, that everyone has known for a long time we were not making it. Then they offer to fix him up with a sex bomb.

Real friends do what they can to get separated people together —they do not try to finalize the split.—Sour Apples In Appleton

Dear Apples: Solve your own problem by making the subject of your separation "off limits." I suspect you are one of those people who should have heeded the old Scottish proverb: "Don' spit in a well. Ye might wan' to drink from et."

Passing of Miniskirt May Increase Backaches

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — The passing of the miniskirt may be responsible for an increase in backaches among women, says Kenneth Wood of Clinton, Ont.

"With minis they had to bend from the knees to preserve their modesty.

"That's the secret in lifting and carrying. Everyone must be taught to use their legs more and their backs, less because there is more strength in the legs. We bend from the waist which puts a strain do the back.

Mr. Wood is president of the Ontario Chiropractic Association and as such, concerned with the back, with the spine and the nervous system.

He says most people are in bad condition for doing the lifting and carrying chores most people have to do, putting up storm windows, shovelling snow, carrying boats and motors at a cottage, leaning from a badly balanced position to paint or clean an eavestrough.

"It's our way of life. Most people work at sedentary occupations. If they don't drive, they don't go.

"There has been an increase in back problems that I ascribe to our lack of physical conditioning."

He says most people take their backs for granted unless they have a problem. He says they should not do so—here are things anyone can to do to help maintain a back in good condition.

When you sit, use a hard chair and put your spine up against it. If you can, keep one or both of your knees higher than your hips.

When you stand, try to keep your lower back flat. When you work standing up, if you put one foot on a low footrest it can help relieve swayback. When you lean forward, bend your knees.

You should sleep on a firm mattress or put a bedboard under a soft mattress. If you sleep on your back, put a pillow under your knees. If you sleep on your side, keep your legs bent at the knees and the hips. Don't sleep on your stomach.

Lift properly, with your knees bent and your leg muscles taking the strain. Try not to lift anything heavy over your head.

When you carry something heavy, carry it close to your body.

If you work at a desk all day, get up and move around when you have a chance.

Get regular exercise such as walking or swimming, but don't try anything strenuous unless you are in condition. Then give your muscles a chance to warm up and loosen before you start.

Mr. Wood says he is especially concerned about the effects of snowmobiling on people's backs.

"Snow machines are basically badly designed. They're stuck with an old concept, that we're still riding a horse, so you get bumps and bangs on the base of your spine.

"You should ride in a crouched position or on your knees."

Dear Doris: I am at present a university student in education, but I would like to broaden my outlook on life before I go out to teach. I have lived in the city all my life and I am sure my opinions are very narrow.

I am interested in spending about half a year abroad, studying and travelling. Could you please send me the information about the International People's College and about any other international university that a Chinese-Canadian girl could attend for a tuition fee as reasonable as this one?

I have vaguely heard of a fine arts college with a very low tuition fee. If you know about it, could you tell me where and what it is? — J.M.

Dear J.M.: A half-year of travel in Europe including a session at the I.P College at Elsinore and rubbing shoulders with thinking people from many nations, can do worlds to open up your horizons to great things. I am sending you details.

I don't know about the low-cost fine arts college. Does any other reader?

Program Tries to Rehabilitate Retarded

A unique program to successfully rehabilitate the mentally retarded who have been in institutions is now under way through the Mental Retardation Unit of Kingston Psychiatric Hospital.

Called the Advocacy Program, it matches a retardate ready to return to the community with a non - professional person willing to act as a friend, big brother, social worker and legal counsellor.

Begun just this summer, the program has now matched 50 retardates with an equal number of advocates in the communities of eastern Ontario.

But there are still about 150 mental retardates waiting for an advocate before they can leave the institution and return to productive lives in communities.

"It is important that retardates being rehabilitated from the institution into the community have the necessary emotional support, practical guidance and follow-up," says Pat Hunter, the Rockwood social worker in charge of the program.

The advocate may be involved in solving practical and material problems, representing the retardate's interests with the law and other agencies, providing advice and assistance with the practical problems of transportation, clothing, eating, shopping, housing, church attendance, personal growth and development, education and training, helping the retardate with the problems of recreation, social experiences and group membership and providing emotional support during crises.

The rewards for the advocate are personal — the opportunity to learn about the process of society and to achieve more advanced citizenship. Society, through the advocate-program, will gain citizen action necessary for progressive growth.

The Kingston Hospital is developing four types of advocates.

The first is the individual friend, who would give guidance in the problems of everyday living with emphasis on helping the retardate with specific problems.

The second is the group friend, a group: family or club that would provide the same service as the individual.

The family friend advocate would be a parent - like figure to the retardate and would develop a strong personal relationship with the retardate.

The nuclear family friend would also develop a personal relationship, but a club, family or group would be involved instead of one individual.

A member of the Rockwood staff is acting as social worker consultant for the program and a budget of $18,000 has been requested. The money would provide for recreational, educational and transportation expenses for the advocates in their work with retardates.

Anyone in the Quinte district wishing more information on the program may contact Mrs. Hunter at Rockwood in Kingston, telephone 546-7101, extension 400.

Mall Express Buses Running in the Red

Express bus service from the downtown area to the Quinte Mall, introduced on a trial basis in August, will be continued at least until the end of the year.

This despite the fact the service is being operated at a deficit.

City council last July gave permission for an express bus to be operated to the Mall on a trial basis on the understanding that any permanent service would be subject to further approval by council.

This week a report on operations showed that a total of 21,860 passengers had been carried on the express service between August 16 and October 12.

For the last half of August the service operated slightly in the black with a profit of $108.45 being shown.

But with the opening of the fall school term, the number of riders on the mall service declined and the operation went into the red.

To cut costs, the service was reduced to afternoon runs except on Saturday, while the Mall Merchants Association agreed to subsidize the service to the extent of $200 per month.

But even with the subsidy, the operational loss to the transit commission was $304 for September with the October loss estimated at $355.

When the express service is not operating the Mall is serviced by the regular Avondale-Parkdale buses which normally pass North Front Street and Bell Boulevard.

City council Monday agreed to the commission request to continue the express mall service to the end of December, with the understanding that if the financial picture worsens permission will be asked to cancel the service.

But apparently the mall buses have a lower deficit than the regular transit service provided by the commission.

For 1970 the average passenger on the regular service was subsidized to the extent of 7.8 cents per ride.

In comparison the average rider on the mall express bus during October will be subsidized by the city by approximately 2.5 cents per ride, one-half of which is expected to be recoverable from the Ontario Department of Transportation and Communications.

Mayor-of-Week Program Continues

City hall again next year will co-operate with the Belleville Rotary Club in it's "Mayor of the Week" program.

But there will be slightly different format in that the number of "mayors" will be increased to eight, while the period for the program will be reduced to four weeks.

In former years each of the school mayors participating spent a week at city hall attending meetings and generally getting acquainted with the municipal government process. Last year there were seven mayors and the program spread out over as many weeks.

Next year a student from the Ontario School for the Deaf will be invited to participate while the school mayors will do their city hall stint in pairs.

City council this week agreed to continuation of the school mayor program while Mayor J. Russell Scott observed that reduction of the program to four weeks would make it easier for future mayors.

Bancroft Arena May Be Ready by Christmas

BANCROFT (Staff) — North Hastings new $210,000 arena may be ready by Christmas, according to Reeve Jack Brown of Bancroft.

The 100 218-foot structure, containing an ice surface of 80 feet by 180 feet, will be equipped with a community hall, a stage, and a kitchen.

These facilities are intended to provide the north Hastings County communities with an all-year community centre.

Special flooring will be installed in the arena once Broadworth Construction Ltd. of Bancroft, completes the steel work and block installation.

A utility building will contain the ice making equipment, compressor and three furnaces required to heat the new structure. The present ice-making equipment in the old Bancroft Community Centre Arena, will be put into use in the new arena.

Cost of the 1,200 - person capacity project is to be shared by various agencies. The village of Bancroft will donate $40,000 they have saved since 1960.

A grant of $20,000 has been assured by the provincial government. The Kinsmen Club, Lions Club and Royal Canadian Legion, Bancroft, have each pledged $10,000.

North Hastings High School students who will benefit greatly from the new arena, have donated $5,000. Private and group pledges for the entire balance, with the exception of $20,000, have been received.

Bancroft council applied for, and received approval to issue debentures up to $50,000 if this amount is required.

"We do hope to open the new arena near the Christmas season, but a definite date for the opening, cannot be given at this time," Reeve Brown says.

City Still After Trailer Park Site

Lack of trailer park facilities for the immediate Belleville area was again a topic of discussion at city council Monday.

And although a survey by the city parks superintendent indicates there is no suitable city - owned land for a trailer park, council feels that every effort should be made to establish such a facility as close to Belleville as possible.

At an earlier parks board meeting it was recommended that council inquire from the Department of Lands and Forests and Department of Tourism as to what plans each department may have for a trailer camp facility within a 25-mile radius of the city.

Monday Alderman E. A. Orr said he agreed with the recommendation but felt a trailer camp serving Belleville should be closer than 25 miles.

He felt that such a camp adjacent to the city would be of benefit to local merchants.

Mayor J. Russell Scott also felt 25 miles would be too far.

"It's important that it should be in our area," he said.

Alderman Paul Russell said he would be happy to see the radius 'distance for a trailer park reduced to five or 10 miles of Belleville but said a complete investigation was needed. It could be that financial assistance might be received to purchase land for a trailer park within the city, he said.

At the same time, however, he would not like to see a possible site across the bay from Belleville ruled out.

Post Office Property May Become Garage

TRENTON (Staff) — On a recommendation from the towns parking authority, council is now investigating the possibility of turning the old post office property on Dundas West into a parking garage.

The suggestion was made by the authority last week and clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry is now engaged in putting together facts and figures on the scheme.

No decision has been made by council on this proposal other than to ask the clerk to prepare the rough feasibility study. The matter was to be dealt with in considerable depth at Monday's behind - closed - doors committee of the whole session.

Details of the plan, given at the present talk stage, are sketchy but it is known the garage being discussed would be two stories in height with parking spaces for about 33 cars on each level.

Developer David K. Linden of the now defunct post office mall scheme is not involved with the parking garage idea. Linden had told council he would be willing to open discussions on a more modest urban renewal project for the midtown site when he informed the municipality the larger development had run into land acquisition snags.

It is uncertain whether the parking authority would have to purchase the post office property from the town were the garage approved.

Stores are not being considered as components of the parking garage concept but offices are a possibility.

Tree Removal Scheme Revised

PICTON (Staff) — A capital grants program governing tree removal of orchard trees was revised this month according to a bulletin from the Picton offices of the Ontario department of agriculture and food.

The payment basis of grants for fruit tree removal will be either $3 per tree in orchard plantings of 50 trees or less per acre or, $1.50 per tree in orchards of 51 trees or more per acre.

The maximum grant for fruit tree removal will be $1,000, with the maximum grant for all purposes, except elm tree removal, being $1,000.

The method of removing trees can be decided at the owner's discretion.

Farmers who wish to remove orchards under this program are instructed to contact the Ontario department of Agriculture and Food to fill out a pre-cutting form.

When the trees are removed, they should be piled for burning and the grant application completed.

City Hall Repairs Approved

Contracts for nearly $18,000 worth of repairs at Belleville's city hall were approved this week by council.

The tender of Quinte Roofing Ltd. for $5,816 was accepted for installation of built-up roofing, and also that of T.C. Construction Company Ltd. for roof repairs and installation of 21 aluminum windows at a cost of $11,950.

Some Liberals Are Uneasy About Friendship with Russia

OTTAWA (CP) — There is mounting discomfort among federal Liberals over the way the government has apparently held out the hand of friendship to the Soviet Union.

Some predict, off the record, that it will come back to haunt the party—particularly if there are continued uneasy Canada-United States relations.

"There is nothing wrong with developing closer ties with Russia," one senior Liberal MP said Wednesday.

"But in the process of advancing this friendship, Mr. Trudeau went to Russia and made a gratuitous insult about an American military threat to Canada, and then Premier Kosygin comes here and criticizes American economic policy.

"Is that any way to make new friendships?"

Some MPs who stoutly defended Mr. Trudeau's May trip to Russia—along with his speeches there—are obviously edgy now about developments. And most of them relate their concerns to the effects of the new friendship on Canadian-American relations.

"It's already difficult enough, what with economic and income-testing problems," said another Liberal, "It's not going to help matters if we appear to be shifting our affections to Russia."

So far, the rumblings of discontent have been confined to private rooms, offices and lobbies. But several MPs have said they will be discussing this issue in newsletters and weekly newspaper columns which are read by constituents.

One MP, Gordon Blair (C—Grenville-Carleton), has already written about it in a weekly newspaper column published Wednesday.

"We must not permit ourselves to be 'used' by the Soviet or any other government for the purpose of breaking up ancient friendships and important alliances," he wrote.

"We should not become a back-door channel for attacks on the U.S. We should be careful in making new friends that we do not offend our old friends."

The Liberals voicing the greatest concern appear to be those from urban ridings containing a high percentage of ethnic voters. A heavy run of anti-Russian mail is beginning to arrive in their offices.

Aircraft Mechanics

Nine civilians from the Northwest Territories have started training at the Canadian Forces School of Aerospace and Ordnance Engineering at Base Borden, Ont. Successful completion of the course will qualify the northerners as aircraft maintenance engineer helpers.

Kosygin Ideal Guest

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the Toronto hotel where Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin was a guest for 36 hours says the visitor was a "very tidy, clean-living man."

Room manager Chris Davies said Wednesday the Soviet leader left his $160-a-day suite at the Inn-on-the-Park in immaculate condition. "He was an ideal guest."

Mr. Kosygin checked into the hotel in northeastern Toronto late Sunday night and left it to fly to Cuba Tuesday morning.

Canada Might Be Able to Help If U.S. Were Co-operative

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada might be able to help the United States with its trade-balance problem if the U.S. were more co-operative and avoided handing down ultimatums, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday.

Mr. Sharp was questioned in the Commons by NDP Leader David Lewis about a television appearance he made on a U.S. network Tuesday.

The minister said his message in the broadcast had been that the U.S. balance-of-payments problem would not be solved by the U.S. government saying to Canada: "There is a surcharge which will remain on until you do such and such."

Canada has been subject to the 10-per-cent U.S. surtax on imports announced by President Richard Nixon on August 15, despite appeals by the Canadian government for exemption.

Senior U.S. government officials have said that Canada should agree to alterations of the Canadian-U.S. auto pact and the defence-production sharing agreement, among other things, that would shift the balance of trade between the two countries in favor of the U.S.

Mr. Lewis tried to pin Mr. Sharp down on specifically what Canada would be prepared to do to help the U.S.

But Mr. Sharp would say only that it was difficult to resolve economic problems on the basis of an ultimatum—a "sphere of friendship and co-operation" was needed.

LBJ Says War Beat Humphrey

NEW YORK (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson says he believes the decision of the South Vietnamese government to stay away from the Paris peace talks lost the 1968 presidential election for Hubert H. Humphrey and won it for Richard M. Nixon.

The former president writes in his memoirs, the final instalment of which was published Wednesday in the New York Times, that the Saigon authorities interpreted a speech Humphrey made in Salt Lake City on Sept. 30 as a repudiation of the administration's Vietnam policy.

He said they were encouraged in this belief by persons purporting to speak for Nixon.

Johnson said these unidentified men promised that Nixon would inaugurate a policy more to Saigon's liking.

Thereupon, Johnson said, Saigon refused to go to Paris after previously agreeing to do s.

"That, I am convinced, cost Hubert Humphrey the presidency, especially since a shift of only a few hundred thousand votes would have made him the winner," Johnson says.

Electronic Firms Face Difficulty

TORONTO (CP) — Canada will not have an electronics industry 20 years from now if major changes are not made, an official of Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., said Wednesday.

Robert Gillespie, general manager of the materials and electronic-components department, said the "Canadian syndrome" has been to pursue everything in the electronic spectrum. This was no longer possible because of vast amounts of capital investment needed.

"The Canadian electronics market is too wide in scope, diverse in product range, and too shallow in volume to permit Canadian industry to develop and produce all the market needs domestically.

"However, there are specialized markets in Canada which could be identified, where the potential sales base is large enough to support a domestic industry.

"If our national efforts were focused to concentrate on those specialized areas . . . we could then create a competitive industry with a limited product range."

ALMOST DISAPPEARED

MONTREAL (CP) — An inflammatory disease known as sympathetic ophthalmia which 100 years ago affected 16 per cent of people suffering from eye-penetrating injuries has almost disappeared in Canada, says Dr. E. S. L. Liddy. Earlier treatment of injuries and better antibiotics have led to reporting of only 60 cases during the last decade in Canada. The number of eye-penetrating injuries incurred annually totals more than 2,000.

Higher Income Tax Exemptions Given Approval by Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — After 20 days of debate, the government made a little headway with its 707-page tax bill Wednesday as the Commons approved provisions increasing tax exemptions and deductions.

Passage of a sub-clause raising to $1,500 from $1,000 the amount a single taxpayer could earn without paying tax and to $2,850 from $2,000 the exempt amount for married couples followed bitter opposition complaints that the amounts were frugal.

Social Credit members said single Canadians should be able to earn $3,000 without paying tax, married couples $5,000. New Democrats said the amounts should be $2,000 and $4,000. The government has said that would be too costly.

But despite Andre Fortin (SC—Lotbiniere) saying his party would never agree to the government-proposed amounts, the exemption provisions easily passed on a voice vote.

The sub-clause increasing the amount a taxpayer can claim for charitable donations to 20 per cent of his income from 10 per cent and other deductible items passed with only two minor amendments.

One would permit partners in a firm the right to deduct charitable donations made by the partnership. The other would clarify a measure permitting ambulance expenses as a medical cost for tax-deduction purposes.

As debate moved to other parts of the bill, MPs turned to comments on specific allowable tax deductions.

Ness Democrats John Burton (Regina East) and Stanley Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre) said there was little reason that workers should be strapped to the same allowance —$150 or three per cent of total income—for tools or special equipment as those in higher tax brackets.

Workers often have expenses for tools that run much higher, Mr. Knowles said. It was a big joke that deputy ministers and Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, could claim the same deduction.

Social Crediter Roland Godin (Portneuf) said members of the CBC French network were allowed $65 a day for expenses when they travelled.

But a man in his riding near Quebec City, who had to work 265 days a year in Montreal, could only claim $1.70 to $2.60 for meals a day.

Gordon Ritchie (PC—Dauphin) said the proposal to tax individuals on contributions made by employers to medical care plans is discriminatory because it will only apply to some provinces—Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia.

Other provinces, because they covered such contributions through a tax, would not be affected, the Manitoba doctor said.

Debate on the bill, which has taken the lion's share of the 32 sitting days since the Commons resumed Sept. 7, will continue today. The government hopes to have the bill passed by the end of the year.

Publication Is Suspended By La Presse

MONTREAL (CP) — La Presse, Canada's largest French - language daily, suspended publication Wednesday night for "an indefinite period of time."

Pierre Dansereau, president and editor of La Presse, said in a statement the newspaper is "faced with a wave of violence," and "has no choice but to close its doors."

Some 350 stereotypers, pressmen, photoengravers and mailroom employees have been involved in a lockout by La Presse since July.

On Wednesday, the men declared themselves on strike and invited 600 other employees not to cross their picket lines, limited by a court injunction to eight men at a time.

Only a small number entered the building in the evening while police were called to disperse a gathering crowd outside in Montreal's financial district.

Mr. Dansereau listed nine reasons for the shut-down" including damage to delivery trucks and to the homes of management personnel, interference with delivery, bomb scares at the newspaper's offices, and threats and personal assault on La Presse employees.

La Presse had a daily circulation of about 225,000, but has been publishing only one edition a day instead of its usual three since the production employees were locked out July 19.

Paul Desmarais, also chairman and chief executive officer of Power Corp. of Canada, personally holds controlling interest in La Presse. He owns all the preferred voting shares in the newspaper and also has interests in daily newspapers in Sherbrooke and Trois-Rivieres.

The suspension comes during the same week as the final publication of the Toronto Telegram, another major Canadian daily newspaper, which will close down Saturday.

And in Quebec City, the Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph, the city's only English daily, suspended publication Wednesday after typographers walked out to back wage demands in a contract dispute.

Mr. Dansereau said he made his decision to suspend publication "to protect life and avoid injury to our employees and their families as well as to persons directly and indirectly involved in the dispute."

Meanwhile, the city's executive committee placed a 30-day ban on all "assemblies, parades and gatherings" in the area of the newspapers.

Three unions had planned a massive demonstration in support of La Presse employees Friday, which they hoped would attract 20,000 people.

Fernand Daoust, general secretary of the Quebec Federation of Labor, some of whose affiliates represent La Presse employees, said the protest will take place.

A 1964 dispute between typographers and La Presse resulted in a work stoppage that lasted longer than any previous daily newspaper shutdown in North America.

The typographers went on strike June 1, 1964 and the newspaper suspended publication for 214 days—until Jan. 4, 1965.

The shutdown ended after La Presse negotiated three-year contracts with eight unions representing 1,200 employees.

A statement from the journalists union of La Presse Wednesday said journalists and other editorial employees "deplore the company's decision to interrupt production."

The union, which represents 126 journalists at the newspaper, said they will meet with management representatives today.

Current average pay rates of La Presse composing room and mailroom employees are $175 weekly for typographers, stereotypers and pressmen, $150 for mailers and $182 for photoengravers for a 40-hour week.

The newspaper published what it called its final offers Aug 18 providing for $40 weekly increases in a contract to run Jed by a court injuction to of 1973. It also offered lumpsum payments equivalent to $2.50 weekly since the start of 1971.

The proposed work week would be 35 hours for daytime employees and 33½ hours for night workers. Photoengravers would get a 31½-hour work week.

The unions said the effect of technological change on job security was the central issue.

Convict's Release Disturbs Coroner

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — Jean-Louis Taillon, district coroner of nearby Terrebonne, called Wednesday for an official investigation of the release of convicts prior to parole.

"I think it's time someone found out on what grounds 'experts' base their decisions in releasing people potentially dangerous to society."

Coroner Taillon was speaking just before ordering Real Chartrand, 25, held criminally responsible for the killing Oct. 12 of a Ste. Therese, Que., police constable.

Chartrand, on a day-to-day experimental leave basis at the Pinel Institute for the criminally Insane in Montreal, is charged with the killing of Constable Gabriel Lafleur. The constable was pursuing a man after a bank robbery.

After the shooting the man, chased by police, entered a private home and held a 13-year-old girl hostage for nine hours before releasing her unharmed. After being taken to a Montreal hotel will three persons who negotiated the girl's release, the suspect gave himself up to police.

Wage Freeze Unlikely

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — William Dodge, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress, said Wednesday he does not expect Canada to adopt a wage-and-price freeze similar to the one adopted in the United States.

A freeze "certainly would not be acceptable to the union movement," he said during a press conference, prior to addressing the Windsor branch of the Canadian Club.

He added that the Canadian union movement is "categorically opposed to any wage-and-price freeze because we do not see anything like what's happened in the United States happening in Canada."

Amchitka to Go Ahead

Canadians Outraged at Bomb Decision

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Outrage and dismay was the general Canadian reaction to the United States decision Wednesday to go ahead with its proposed nuclear weapons test on Amchitka Island.

President Nixon made the announcement in a White House communique the same day a full-page advertisement was published in the Washington Post pleading with him not to approve the test.

The advertisement was purchased by a group of 66 Canadians in the hope of dissuading the U.S. government.

Stuart Keate, publisher of the Vancouver Sun and one of the 66 sponsors of the advertisement, said the U.S. decision was "a great disappointment to all of us."

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons he had expressed the "deep sense of disquiet among Canadians" in a personal telephone conversation with U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers on hearing the news.

In Washington, Canadian Ambassador Marcel Cadieux reacted with "a sense of dismay" when informed of the decision 90 minutes before the official announcement was made.

Not a voice was raised publicly in Canada to applaud the U.S. decision to detonate the five-megaton test device 6,000 feet under the barren rock of the desolate island.

It is one of the Rat Islands of the Aleutian chain that curves across the entrance to the Bering Sea between Alaska and the Soviet Union.

Asked outside the Commons how the U.S. decision would affect already-tense Canada-U.S. relations, Mr. Sharp said "it doesn't help them."

He told the Commons Canada would hold the U.S. responsible for "any short- or long-term effects of this test."

It was noted that nuclear dust from an underground test in Nevada last December finally settled on the Thunder Bay area of Northern Ontario.

A Canadian spokesman in Washington said Mr. Cadieux also raised this point.

"The ambassador also invoked the question of international principle—whether one country has the right to engage in experiments which could endanger the environment of another country," the spokesman said.

In Edmonton, the Canadian Coalition To Stop the Amchitka Nuclear Blast has proposed that all churches in Canada hold a day of mourning, tolling their bells, in protest over the blast.

Rev. Robert Pearson, coalition president, also said the group had sent a telegram with 55,000 signatures to President Nixon opposing the blast.

Despite his upset at the U.S. decision, Mr. Sharp told the Commons the decision by the U.S. was irrevocable.

"We can only accept it."

Prime Minister Trudeau, also in the Commons, had the same reaction when he replied to pressure from Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield to make a personal heads-of-state plea to President Nixon to veto the test.

Mr. Trudeau said the president already is well aware of Canada's position and a personal appeal would only be a form of grandstanding on his part.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver, a second Greenpeace vessel was preparing to travel to the Aleutians in an attempt to either delay the blast or monitor its affects on the immediate area.

The original Greenpeace mission was returning to Vancouver from Prince Rupert, B.C., not having time enough to return to Amchitka in time for the blast.

So, a second, faster boat—the former navy minesweeper HMCS Fortune —was being prepared for the trip.

Greenpeace Two Chartered

The new protest group hopes to meet the original Greenpeace mission aboard the 71-foot halibut boat Phyllis Cormack, at Alert Bay to take aboard some of its crew.

The first mission, which sailed from Vancouver Sept. 15, was short of fuel and provisions and turned back when it became apparent that the blast would not be set off in October.

Effects of Interest Cut Will Soon Be Felt

TORONTO (CP) — Interest rates continued to edge lower Wednesday and individuals will soon notice the effects as savings-account interest and mortgage rates are cut.

The trend towards lower rates started with reductions in the chartered banks' prime lending rates—the rate for low-risk corporate borrowers.

All the chartered banks lined up with a six-per-cent prime rate, effective Monday. The latest cut was by one-quarter of a percentage point and it follows by one week a reduction to 6¾ from 6¾ per cent in the prime rate.

The prime rate is a key to the rest of the interest-rate structure and the first reaction outside the banks came Wednesday from two trust companies.

Canada Trust of London, Ont., reduced its prime rate for residential mortgages to 9¾ per cent from 9¾, and Royal Trust of Montreal cuts its rate to 9¾ from 9¾.

Most chartered banks reduced the interest rate on non-chequable savings accounts to four per cent from 4¼ and the rate for chequable savings accounts to 3¾ from three per cent, both changes effective Monday.

The latest downward move in rates was the latest in a series that began early in 1970.

At the start of last year, the chartered banks' prime rate was 8½ per cent and the central bank rate was eight per cent. The bank rate is the rate the Bank of Canada charges for loans to chartered banks.

The central bank does not make frequent loans to chartered banks but changes in its rate are prime indicators of government fiscal and monetary intentions.

The Bank of Canada reduced its rate to 4¾ per cent from 5¼ last Friday. The central bank's move came after announcements by the chartered banks that they would cut prime rates to 6¾ per cent effective last Monday.

Historically, the prime and central bank rates have been within one percentage point of each other and the latest Bank of Canada move was seen as a go-ahead to easier credit conditions.

There was no announcement from the chartered banks on personal loan and mortgage rates in conjunction with the changes in deposit rates.

Winter Work Wages To Go to $100 Week

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will pay up to $100 a week in wages to persons employed in locally-promoted winter works projects for six months this winter, Manpower Minister Otto Lang announced Wednesday.

He tabled in the Commons a 18-page summary of the criteria to be applied by the federal government in making grants of up to $100 million to local-improvement groups and through the provincial governments to municipal councils for community projects.

The projects, he said, might run from winter recreation facilities to child day-care programs and expansion of community "store-front" services, such as legal and other professional aid.

He said the projects should employ a minimum of five persons for six months between Nov. 1, 1971 and May 31, 1972. The work involved should be employment which would not otherwise be given this winter, and the projects must be of a non-profit nature.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson announced the $100-million "local initiatives" program on Oct. 14, along with other spending and job-making plans to give the economy a boost and fight unemployment during the coming winter.

Half the money is to go directly to local public service and private agencies. Half is to go to municipal government projects which must be channelled through the provincial governments.

A maximum of $500,000 will be spent by the federal government on any one project. It will cover the labor costs based on prevailing wages up to a maximum of $150 per man per week. It will also cover up to 17 per cent of labor costs for materials, supplies, equipment rentals, and employer contributions to unemployment insurance, the Canada Pension Plan, and the Quebec Pension Plan.

Mr. Lang also announced criteria for a $35-million supplement to the federal government's manpower training program for on-the-job instruction, and $15 million for trades training courses and allowances for some 10,000 trainees.

The on-the-job training must cover a period of three to 12 months, averaging six months, and be provided by employers for workers in addition to their regular work force. The federal assistance will be by tax incentives or direct payment from the manpower department.

Police Probe Asked

TORONTO (CP) — The Ukrainian Canadian Committee of Toronto says it will press for a public inquiry into allegations of police brutality during Monday night's demonstrations against Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin at the Ontario Science Centre.

At a news conference Wednesday, the committee said that a minority of the hundreds of policemen rode down men, women and children, with horses and beat demonstrators without provocation.

Committee president, Robert Macsymek, said in an interview: "... anybody who was in sight, well beyond the line of action, got it over the head, over the back, in any way the police could do it. ...

"We will be asking for a public inquiry and we will be asking to bring to justice all those police officers who used excessive force. ... This did not include all the police."

The incidents allegedly occurred across from the science centre among 2,500 of 12,000 to 14,000 demonstrators.

Meanwhile, Toronto city council has formally asked the Metropolitan Toronto Police Commission for a "complete and comprehensive report" on the incidents at the centre which resulted in the arrests of 20 people, including two juveniles.

Three Men Admit Role In Fraud

TORONTO (CP) — Three Toronto men who admitted defrauding the Metropolitan Toronto welfare department of $10,831 were ordered Wednesday to repay their shares of the money.

Geoffrey Peter Williams, George Miller and Salvatore D'Alry testified they gave two thirds of the money they obtained to two welfare department employees: Robert Herrold, 28, and Percy Syme, 71.

Williams, a $150-a-week draftsman, told Judge E. E. Smith that Herrold duped him into allowing himself to be listed on welfare records as an unemployable moron with an invalid wife and eight children. He said Herrold had suggested he work part-time for the department.

Williams said he became suspicious when he began to receive cheques but was afraid that both he and Herrold would be sent to jail if he exposed the scheme.

Williams was placed on one year's probation and ordered to repay $1,330.

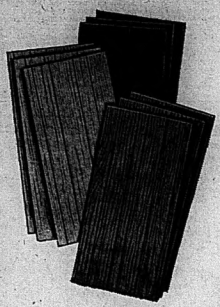
Miller, 37, a $140-a-week sign erector and father of five, was sentenced to nine months in jail, placed on one year's probation, and ordered to repay $810. He testified that he met Syme in a tavern and was advised to fill out a form in Syme's office after he spoke of having little money.

D'Alry, a 29-year-old barber, was sentenced to three months, placed on probation for a year, and ordered to repay $1,470.

Harold has pleaded guilty to charges of fraud involving $30,000 and is to be sentenced Nov. 17.

Syme, a former deputy reeve of Toronto Township, was sentenced Monday to nine months in jail on a fraud charge.

British Air Firm Asked To Explain



OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission has told a British charter air service that it must satisfactorily explain why two of its flights to Canada in July were overdue and why one of them was illegally sub-contracted to another company.

Until the company, Dan Air Services Ltd. of London, offers acceptable explanations, the transport commission says it will not entertain any of the company's applications for flights into Canada.

In an order dated Thursday, Oct. 21, the commission says it has received numerous complaints about service on the two July flights.

One, on July 9, originated at Manchester, England, and arrived in Toronto 54 hours behind schedule.

The other, on July 30, originated at Prestwick, Scotland, but the airliner used belonged to Trans-European Airways. The transport commission says it had previously forbidden Dan Air to sub-contract the flight to Trans-European.

Hockey School Has Ellis Rink Buzzing

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

The world's largest power play line-up? The Japanese national team's second squad zooming over the boards? No, those 80-odd bodies you can see bobbing and weaving around the ice surface of the Dick Ellis Arena this week are participants of the Belleville Minor Hockey School.

The school has been in operation for three years now, attempting to provide the ground work for minor hockey participants before the regular season gets under way.

"The biggest change in the school this year is that we've got all of the instructors teaching the same style of play in the instruction periods, so that it's uniform throughout all of the groups," informs organizer Robb Burrowes. "But we'll still be placing most of the emphasis on skating."

A total of 176 boys ranging in age from seven to 14 years are enrolled in the school. The enrolment represents a drop of about 100 from last season, and gives school officials a highly workable number of boys.

Each individual in the school receives an hour of ice time instruction each night with another 45 minutes of hockey theory.

Working as instructors this season are Lionel Botly, Floyd Crawford, Lou Smrke, Moe Hunter, Dave Jones, Gord Bell, Doug Murray and Claude Carr, as well as midget all-stars Paul Ackerman, Darrell Brown and Peter Smrke.

Helping improve skating techniques of the future Orrs and Espositos are six members of the Quinte Figure Skating Club, which also lent its assistance at last year's school. Olivia Weese, Roberta Driscoll, Joe Calbary, Ian Hayman, Angus MacKillican and Al Reid are all lending assistance.

The school will continue through this week, finishing Saturday with scrimmages taking place to test the basics that have been taught for the previous five sessions.

Coach So Happy He Could Cry

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

Many a football coach has been so happy he could cry, but very few have felt like laughing and crying at the same time. Gord Smith, however, felt like doing a little of both after his Bayside Juniors scored a tremendous 7-1 upset over Moira, the team that he coached to a Bay of Quinte championship last year and a COSSA title the year before that.

"I can't really describe how I felt," admitted the Bayside coach. "I was kind of mixed emotions. I was happy because we won, but at the same time it was sorry that they had to lose."

Did he feel that knowing the Moira team as well as he did gave him an advantage when preparing Bayside for the game? "It probably frightened me more than anything else," countered Smith.

Bayside scored the upset in dramatic fashion, erasing a 1-0 Trojan lead with only five minutes of play remaining in the game. The big play came when Larry Doucette broke loose for a 40-yard reverse that carried the ball to the Moira four yard line.

Halfback Keith Vogle hammered over from the two-yard line for the touchdown that gave Bayside the lead. Al McIntosh later kicked a single for the winners, while Bob Bernier booted the lone Moira point.

The winning coach credited his defensive team with much of the responsibility for the upset of Moira, who had not lost to a Bay of Quinte team in three seasons. This season the Trojans had piled up 258 points and allowed only 14 while remaining unbeaten in in six league contests. Bayside, on the other hand had lost one game and been tied in another.

Minor Sports Asks More

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Minor sports is still big business in Belleville, but city council's recreation - arena committee is asking the shareholders to increase their investments.

Increased sponsorship and registration fees were the chief means used by the eight member bodies of the Belleville Minor Sports Association to decrease projected deficits by all but one of their number.

While the cost of operating the eight affiliated minor sport bodies will be an estimated $56,695 in 1972, compared with 1971's expenses of $38,104, the recreation - arena committee learned in Thursday's initial minor sport budget submission that receipts will show an anticipated increase from $18,000 to over $21,600.

The minor sport deficit, projected at about $20,000 for 1971, is covered by grants from the United Community Services and the city. This year, the split worked out to about 50-50.

Despite the increased revenue, minor sport's projected deficit for 1972 was set at $25,681, or more than $5,000 above this year's forecast.

The culprit is minor hockey, whose deficit minor sport predicts will jump from about $8,100 this year to $15,570 in 1972.

Recreation director Lorne Williams reminded committee members of the burgeoning participation in minor hockey — there are 20 more teams this winter than last) — and that house league ice rental alone accounted for $13,000 of the projected 1972 expenses of $31,320.

Committee member Joe Orr said he felt the city should take a second look at its contribution to minor sports. "Maybe we're doing too much for people."

Mr. Williams said a personal poll he conducted at a hockey convention revealed Belleville gave more financial participation to minor hockey than even of eight communities he contacted.

Most of the eight participating city sports bodies will be asking participants and sponsors to pay a greater share of future costs.

Minor baseball, for instance, will be seeking a $25 jump in house league sponsor fees, from $50 to $75; a $300-to-$500 boost in all-star sponsorship, a $* an extra dollar for house league registration, from $2 to $3.

Similarly minor softball, despite projecting a decrease in registration of 100 to 400 boys in 1972, will be seeking $1,445 in sponsorship revenue, double the 1971 estimate, and $1,200 in registration fees, $250 more than projected for this past year.

Minor hockey is aiming to collect $7,450 in house league and all-star registration fees, against the $4500 for the 1971-72 season, and $7,700 in sponsorship, some $4,000 above the last budgeted figure.

Following is a list of the participating minor sport bodies, their projected 1972 expenses, and receipts to be covered by the city and United Community Services:

	Expenses	Receipts
boys' softball:	$6,321	$2,386;
baseball:	$7,018	$2,693;
girls' softball:	$1,695	$735;
soccer:	$3,384	$784;
lacrosse:	$2,540	$840;
track and field:	$1,355	$755;
weightlifting:	$2,071	$1,827;
hockey:	$31,720	$15,570.

Activity Costs Napanee

(JAPANEE (Sp e cial) — Most people collect time-and a-half for overtime, Napanee High School collects wins — and injuries.

"Three games in a week is really too much," advised Napanee coach Eric Bartlett, whose team took a 24-8 sudden death decision from BCI yesterday to earn a spot in the Bay of Quinte COSSA senior football semi-finals.

"We played last Thursday, then Monday, Wednesday and now we have to play again Friday. It's just too much for-thall, the bruises from Monday's game are just starting to catch up to them," he added. His team lost Clar re-ceiver Raymond Lee with a broken hand Monday, and substitute flanker Tim McPherson, yesterday, with a broken shou-lder.

For a long while it appeared as though it might have been the Collegians who would catch the streaking Napanee squad as they trailed only 10-6 and had possession of the ball with five minutes left to play. Corner linebacker Larry Garrison squelched any BCI victory hopes, however, when he picked off an interception and raced 30 yards for a touchdown.

"It was our defence that won it for us," acknowledged Napanee coach Eric Bartlett. They've scored 18 points and had only 20 scored against them in our last three games."

Pete Weese added a safety, and touchdown for the winners with Ralph Myers booting two field goals, two converts and a single.

BCI coach Bill Miller wasn't disheartened by the loss. "I thought that all of our team played a good game," he commented. John Rose scored the for Collegian touchdown, while quarterback Peter Le-Baron came up with a strong performance?

Napanee now meets Trenton in a-8 p.m. Friday game at Memorial Arena's south side field. The winner plays Quinte Tuesday for the Bay of Quinte senior title.

"I could probably get more strikes. But I don't want to knock up my ball before the big office tournament!"

Whips Stay Put

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Mayor Erastus Corning said Wednesday he has told Montreal Expos it would be impossible for their International League farm team to play next season in Bleecker Stadium here.

The proposed move of Winnipeg Whips never had been firm, sources said.

Corning cited "a number of reasons" for his Wednesday call to Expos general manager James Fanning in Montreal.

He said money was one of them. Estimates for refurbishing the stadium and adding parking were set at about $300,000.

DETROIT (CP) — Detroit Junior Red Wings extended their Southern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A winning streak to 11 games Wednesday night with a 6-2 victory over Chatham Maroons.

Bill Barber of Kitchener Rangers jumped from sixth place last week to take over the lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series scoring race. The league's weekly statistics, issued Wednesday, showed Barber on top with 11 goals and 12 assists for 23 points, one ahead of Dennis Ververgaert of London Knights and Don Lever of Niagara Falls Flyers. Gilles Gratton of Oshawa Generals is the leading goalie with a 3.2[illegible] goals-against average in 10 games played.

Hershey Bears haven't been hibernating in the American Hockey League this season and they emphasized that point Wednesday night. The Bears mauled Baltimore Clippers 8-3 and moved into first place in the West Division, one point ahead of Cincinnati Swarts. The Clippers remained in a third-place tie with Cleveland Barons in the same division.

MONTREAL (CP) — Trustees of the Jean Beliveau Fund announced Wednesday that donations to the fund have reached $184,763.13, while expenses have been limited to $6,361.76. The fund was founded last March when Beliveau, former captain and centre of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, was honored with a special night for his 18 outstanding seasons with the club. Beliveau asked at the time that donations be used to assist Canadian children less fortunate than he had been.

Seals' Turn to Collect From Montreal Trades

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Sammy Pollock has been called many things around the San Francisco Bay area, not the least of which would be the great assassin of California's Golden Seals.

Pollock, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, did little to endear himself to Californians during the early years of National Hockey League expansion.

There were a number of ex-Canadiens in the Seals' lineup at one time, but they came dear. In exchange for the expendable Montrealers, Pollock extracted so many of the west coach club's future top draft choices it was questionable the Californians would survive.

But these deals haven't all been damaging. Former Montrealer Carol Vadnais, California's captain, is one of the league's outstanding defencemen.

Two of the more recent Canadien rejects have played key roles in California's recent resurgence.

Bobby Sheehan snapped in two goals Wednesday night and Lyle Carter backstopped the Seals to a surprising 6-4 win over Pittsburgh Penguins.

Sheehan moved over to California in the off-season and Carter arrived more recently as owner Charles Finley made every effort to bolster his anaemic goaltending.

In other games, Bernie Parent of Toronto Maple Leafs and Dune Wilson of Vancouver Canucks exchanged shutouts in a 0-0 tie, New York Rangers dropped Detroit Red Wings 7-4, Montreal topped Boston Bruins 5-2, Minnesota North Stars tripped St. Louis Blues 2-1 and in Los Angeles, the Kings were stopped 3-2 by Buffalo Sabres.

Sheehan, from Weymouth, Mass., now has scored seven goals in nine games. He scored just six in 29 starts with the Canadiens last year.

Carter, from Brookfield, N.S., has been the goalie for both California victories this year, including Sunday's 6-3 win over Detroit.

He was the outsider in Montreal's pro system and played for some years in the International League where he was voted the outstanding performer last season.

The Seals, on an extended road trip, will try to make it three straight tonight in Boston while Vancouver moves over to Philadelphia and Pittsburgh into Minnesota.

At Toronto, the goaltenders held the spotlight although they were saved on occasion by erratic shooting and the goal posts.

The Leafs, however, carried much of the play and tested Wilson from close-in several times, only to have the Canuck goalie make the big stop.

Bobby Rousseau scored twice for the hometown Rangers, as did Rod Gilbert whose line, of Jean Ratelle and Vic Hadfield, picked up nine scoring points. Rousseau, with four goals this season, equalled his entire 1970-71 output with Minnesota.

Montreal Canadiens got two goals from defenceman Guy Lapointe and had little trouble against the Bruins, who they eliminated from the playoffs last year en route to the Stanley Cup.

Second-period goals by Frank Mahovlich, his 10th, Henri Richard and Lapointe opened a 4-0 lead the Bruins were unable to make up.

Goals by J. P. Parise and Deane Prentice in the first period at St. Louis carried the North Stars into second place in the West, three behind Chicago Black Hawks and two in front of Pittsburgh.

Buffalo rookie Richard Martin continued his early season scoring spree with two second-period goals as the Sabres opened a 3-1 lead over Los Angeles. The former Montreal Canadiens junior star now has six goals.

Hadfield True Captain

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vic Hadfield of New York Rangers is showing the leadership and ability expected of the captain of a National Hockey League team.

Hadfield paced the Rangers to a convincing 7-4 victory over Detroit Red Wings as he scored one goal and added three assists. He now has a total of seven goals and seven assists for 14 points and a share of third place in the NHL scoring race with Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins.

Phil Esposito of the Bruins maintained the lead as he picked up one goal and one assist Wednesday night to give him 18 points, one ahead of New York's Rod Gilbert.

Queen's Fields Double-barrelled Threat Against Mustangs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Queen's University Golden Gaels will field the Ontario Universities Athletic Association's most dangerous double-barrelled scoring threat against University of Western Ontario Mustangs in football playoffs Saturday—halfback Brian Warrender and Gord McLellan.

Warrender, 22-year-old third-year medical student, and McLellan, 23-year-old arts student, have scored 12 touchdowns each for 72 points during eight regular season games.

Warrender picked up 809 yards in 127 carries while McLellan raced for 713 yards in 97 carries. The two halfbacks finished tied for the OUAA scoring title.

Gaels, winners in the Eastern Section's Capital Division, will also have the advantage of home turf over Western, who won the Western Division championship in the Western Section.

The other semi-final will see University of Ottawa Gee Gees, winners of the Northern Division in the Eastern Section, travel to Hamilton Saturday to meet McMaster Marauders, Central Division champions in the Western Section.

Both games will start at 1 p.m. EDT.

Kicking specialist Doug Cozac, also from Queen's finished third in scoring behind Warrender and McLellan, with six field goals, 35 converts and two singles for 55 points.

Als Prepare for Key Game

MONTREAL (CP) — The injury bug continues to plague Montreal Alouettes as they prepare for Saturday's game with Ottawa Rough Riders that could decide the final Eastern Football Conference playoff positions.

Rookie quarterback Jim Chaney is sidelined with a dislocated elbow; veteran quarterback Sonny Wade, who suffered a shoulder separation two weeks ago, is throwing passes sidearm because "it hurts a little less;" place kicker Justine Canale is hindered by a bad leg and now centre Gene Ceppetelli is on the limp.

He strained his left knee and sprained his left ankle when end Tom Pullen collided with him while trying to recover a loose ball during Sunday's 19-18 loss to Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Ceppetelli said after Wednesday's practice he will be ready for Saturday's game. "It improves a little each day. There won't be any trouble."

His team-mates hope not. "It isn't just with he does as a centre," fullback Bruce Van Ness said, "it's the leadership on the field."

Head coach Sam Etcheverry is trying to get his charges ready for Saturday's contest which looms as an especially tough game for the Larks because they have not won a game in Ottawa since 1963.

Wally Gabler, on the second day of his five-day trial with the defending Grey Cup champions, saw a lot of action in Wednesday's practice.

The 27-year-old signal caller has seen service with four Canadian Football League clubs in the last six years. He will probably be backup to Wade for Saturday's game because the doctors have vetoed the idea of letting Chasey play even though the plucky Dartmouth College graduate is willing.

Lion Laid To Rest

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Chuck Hughes of the Detroit Lions, who died after collapsing in the game he had known since a schoolboy, was buried here Wednesday.

A wreath in the shape of a football helmet rested beside his casket as the entire Detroit team attended the solemn graveside service.

His pretty widow, Sharon, mother of a 22-month-old son, kept her head bowed as a Roman Catholic priest said the final rites.

A tiny woman, she looked even smaller as Hughes' husky team-mates lined up afterward to offer their condolences.

The Lions' next 40 men, including all 40 players, to pay their last respects to Hughes. Head coach Joe Schmidt said it was "the least we could do" for the young player and his family.

Hughes died at 28 Sunday of a heart attack due to undetected arterial disease. He collapsed before more than 54,000 spectators as he returned to the huddle during a game against Chicago Bears.

A wide receiver, he had caught a pass only three plays before he fell to the field.

Clark Leaves Doghouse

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Archie Clark, who missed two games earlier this month after being obtained from the Philadelphia 76ers, scored 25 points to help Baltimore Bullets beat Detroit Pistons 128-98 in the National Basketball Association Wednesday night.

Clark, playing before the home fans for the first time, also had nine assists.

In other NBA games Wednesday night, the 76ers tripped Cleveland Cavaliers 12-16, Atlanta Hawks beat New York Knicks 119-96 and Boston Celtics bounced Houston Rockets 108-97.

Results in the American Basketball Association included: Pittsburgh 131, Carolina 123; Virginia 118, Kentucky 107 and Utah 104, Memphis 98.

Clark was fined and suspended by the Bullets after he and backcourt team-mate Earl (The Pearl) Monroe disappeared simultaneously. After his trade for two players and a draft choice, Clark asked Bullets management to renegotiate his contract. When they balked, took off "to think things over."

Detroit was led by Jimmy Walker's 19 points and Bob Lanier's 18.

Billy Cunningham and Fred Foster sparked a hot fourth period as Philadelphia rolled away from Cleveland at the end. Cunningham and Foster both scored 19 points in the final period as the 76ers raced to their sixth victory in seven games. Cunningham wound up with 31 points and Foster, 18.

Mik Williams sparked a 15-point Atlanta string in the fourth quarter that helped the Hawks stop the Knicks.

Jo Jo White scored 31 points and Boston Celtics held Houston's high-scoring Elvin Hayes to three field goals for their victory over the Rockets.

Fergy Should Get His Wish

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — He'll be a year late achieving the goal he set out to accomplish last spring, but Ferguson Jenkins doesn't think he'll have too many problems negotiating a $100,000-a-year deal with Chicago Cubs for next season.

Jenkins, 26, chosen the right-handed pitcher and The Associated Press' major league all-star team last week, reached a personal high 24-13 won-lost record, with the National League Cubs this season.

It was his fifth consecutive 20-game season and Jenkins is on record as saying he wants to become the Cubs' first $100,000 pitcher.

He was late getting to training camp last Year and was believed to have been seeking $100,000 at that time before settling for about $75,000.

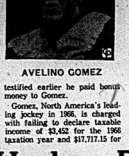
Sports on All Fronts

ANAHEIM (AP) — Harry Dalton, given much of the credit for building Baltimore's American Baseball League dynasty, has accepted the task of lifting the California Angels out of the rubble of a disastrous season.

Dalton, 42, the Orioles' vice-president in charge of player personnel since 1966, was given a five-year contract at undisclosed salary Wednesday to become the Angels' general manager and executive vice-president.

Dick Walsh was fired as the American League club's general manager a week ago.



Dalton said in Baltimore he was "unhappy to leave the Orioles" but added, "I sincerely believe that we have a chance to make this (the Angels) one of the strongest franchises in the American League."

He is joining a team that started the 1971 season with high hopes and ended up a distant fourth in the AL West, torn by dissension and playing to sparse crowds.

TORONTO (CP) — Counsel for former jockey Avelino Gomez said Wednesday there is no evidence that Gomez received bonuses from racehorse owner Saul Wagman or Wagman's Willow Downs Farm.

Peter Brodey said Gomez did not plan to suppress income and offered to pay the authorities amounts in dispute. Wagman

Gomez, North America's leading jockey in 1968, is charged with failing to declare taxable income of $3,432 for the 1966 taxation year and $17,717.15 for the 1967 taxation year. He also is charged with suppressing income of $21,169.15 for the 1966 and 1967 taxation years, thereby evading payment of $10,277.04 in taxes.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canada's Jim Day paced Sun Dancer through a fault-free performance Wednesday night and captured the Ringmaster Challenge trophy in the Washington International Horse Show.

Day, a Hornby, Ont., car dealer, ran the 13-hurdle event in 45.8 seconds to edge Anthony D'Ambrosia Jr. of Summit, N.J., who rode Act I in 46.3.

TORONTO (CP) — Wendy Weber, 22-made her Canadian debut as a jockey Wednesday at Greenwood racetrack, and narrowly missed out on winning her first race.

Miss Weber, a graduate of the University of Toronto, finished second by half a length in the second race aboard Cindy Rose. Jockey Hugo Dittfach was first on Saint Acro.

In the United States, Miss Weber rode 39 races and won two.

Team Ran Together

MADOC (Special) — Quinte Secondary School runners fell individually but as a united front, they proved almost invincible at the Bay of Quinte cross country championships Tuesday.

Despite failing to capture a single individual title, Quinte walked away with the team award, totalling 40 points as compared to 58 for Centennial and 84 for Centre Hastings. The winners took four of the five divisions contested in the meet, which included 11 high school teams from the district.

Centennial had the inside track on individual titles with Mike Schreiering the midget section, Ron Brown taking junior honors and Jim Thompson collaring the senior event.

Thompson's victory was the most startling of the meet as he upset Gerrard Farrell of Quinte by over 20 seconds. The Centennial runner covered the 3.5-mile course in 21.57 minutes.

Other individual wins were garnered by Mike Logan of Centre Hastings in the bantam section and Albert College's Pat Goraswoski in the girls race.

Dock Ellis Feels Illness Hit Arm

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pitcher Dock Ellis of world champion Pittsburgh Pirates told a Senate subcommittee Wednesday his poor record in the last half of the baseball season may have been caused by sickle-cell trait.

Ellis won 14 games and lost 3 before the All-Star Game. In the last half of the season, he was 5-6.

"It's pointed out that I have a chronic arm problem," Ellis said.

"I don't know if it can be caused by sickle-cell anemia."

The genetic disease, which occurs predominantly among negroes, is characterized by, among other things, weakness, fatigue and recurrent episodes of pain, said Dr. Roland B. Scott of Howard University.

"If you look back over the record, you'll find I didn't finish very many games," Ellis said.

Ellis appeared before the subcommittee on public health as a member of the board of directors of the Black Athletes Foundation.

"When I signed a professional baseball contract in 1968, the team ran tests that showed I had sickle-cell trait, not anemia.

The trait represents inheritance of the disease from one parent. Those with trait are basically carriers. The anemic form represents inheritance from both parents.

Heavy Vote Expected in Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S Nfld. (CP) — A heavy turnout of voters was expected today for Newfoundland's seventh election since becoming a Canadian province 22 years ago.

Both major political parties said they expected a heavy vote because of anticipated favorable weather. A good turnout at advance polls last week was also seen as an indication of a heavy vote today.

The weather forecast for the entire island called for cloudy weather but no precipitation. Some sunny periods were expected with temperatures in the mid-50s.

It was wet and foggy Wednesday, the last day of a three-week campaign leading to today's election with 253,000 voters registered—an all-time high. For the first time, 19- and 20-year-olds have the vote.

Polls open at 8 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

There are 108 candidates seeking the legislature's 42 seats, with both incumbent Liberals and opposition Progressive Conservatives offering full slates.

The New Democratic Party, which has never elected a member to the provincial legislature, has 17 candidates in the field. The New Labrador party has three candidates and there are four independents.

In the last election five years ago, the Liberals under Premier Joseph Smallwood nearly obliterated all opposition, winning 39 of the 42 seats. The PCs won the other three as the Liberals posted their sixth straight victory since joining Confederation in 1949.

In the 22 years since union with Canada, Newfoundlanders have averaged about one election every 18 months—eight federal elections and seven provincial elections. Until 1968 the Liberals were predominant in both. That year, however, the PCs won six of the province's seven Commons seats in a general election.

Mr. Smallwood, 70, has predicted as many as 36 seats for his party.

The Conservatives, led by 38-year-old Frank Moores, have fought a quiet but tough campaign and Mr. Moores says he is confident of victory.

NDP leader John Connors, at 25 the youngest party leader in Canada, says he expects to win three to six seats and the New Labrador party, headed by former Liberal Tom Burgess, says it will win all three Labrador seats.

Other personalities:

—John Crosbie, former Liberal health minister who lost to Mr. Smallwood for the party leadership two years ago, now running as a PC in a St. John's seat.

—Andrew Crosbie, younger brother of John, serving as campaign manager for Mr. Smallwood.

—Dr. Noel Murphy, PC leader in the 1966 election, now running as a Liberal candidate.

Although the Liberals won 39 seats in the last election, their strength in the house by dissolution this fall had been cut to 25 by defections, resignations, deaths and byelections. The PCs had seven members, there were three independents and seven vacancies.

Police Say 'Celebration' Minimized by Officials

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The city's Fraternal Order of Police accused city officials Wednesday of trying "to minimize the seriousness of what actually occurred" during the postWorld Series celebration here Oct. 17.

Sgt. Francis W. Quinlan, president of the local chapter, said an association investigation of the celebration, which followed the victory of Pittsburgh Pirates over Baltimore Orioles, had determined that:

—It caused serious injuries to two policemen.

—There were numerous crimes against persons and property.

—Damage would approach $250,000.

Quinlan said there were no official complaints filed on rapes or public sex. But the report listed several indecent assaults that were reported to police but on which no complaints were filed.

U.S. Reaction on Costs Worries UN Delegates

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Delegations from around the world are studying with quiet concern the possibility of a reduction by the United States in its contributions to this near-bankrupt world organization.

There have been some expressions of anger and shock but the majority of delegations apparently are waiting to see whether the American outrage over the expulsion of Taiwan from the UN will cool with time.

Despite disclaimers from U.S. officials, there seems to some to be a genuine threat that the organization's largest contributor will dry up some of its payments to the UN and its agencies.

Delegations are well aware that the campaign for the 1972 presidential elections is not far off. If the Nixon administration comes to the conclusion that it would be good politics to go along with right-wingers who are criticizing the UN it may cut funds, they reason.

In the General Assembly's budgetary committee, which is considering Secretary-General U Thant's request for $213 million for 1972, a U.S. delegate declined to give a scheduled speech Tuesday in view of the Monday night China vote.

The delegate, Representative Edward Derwinski, an Illinois Republican, said the U.S. would speak when "the dust has settled."

Thant has repeatedly said the UN is in a "state of near and hopeless insolvency." The UN's ability to continue current activities was seriously in question. The UN was living "from hand to mouth."

Edvard Hambro of Norway, last year's General Assembly president, has worked all year seeking a way out.

He hoped to pick up $52. million either in cash contributions or be written out of UN obligations by creditor countries.

He has been meeting with the Big Four but there are no reports that he is making any headway.

Now the idea of the U.S. making a major voluntary contribution is considered questionable.

U.S. officials put out figures Tuesday showing that their country carries about 30 per cent of the budgets of the UN and all is agencies.

It pays slightly more than 31 per cent of the UN's regular budgets compared with Canada's 3.08 per cent.

This shows that in terms of assessment, at any rate, about 27 million Canadians are paying almost as much on a per-capita basis as the more than 200 million Americans. Both countries are heavy contributors to various agencies.

The $30 million debt being left behind by Nationalist China is a matter of serious concern to Thant.

One Western official expressed hope to reporters this week that the People's Republic would pick up some of that debt.

It is assumed here that the People's Republic will eventually have a higher assessment than the about four per cent of the budget that the Nationalists should have paid. The Nationalists had not paid their full assessment for a couple of years.

Canadian Mission Gets Bomb Threat

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Canadian mission to the UN was hastily evacuated Wednesday after a bomb threat was received.

The mission said that a caller who seemed to have an Oriental voice and who said he represented Nationalist China warned a bomb would go off at 5 p.m.

The caller protested Canada's vote in Monday's China representation debate in the General Assembly. Canada voted at that time for the Albanian resolution calling for the expulsion of the Nationalists and the seating of the People's Republic.

The mission and offices on five floors of the building across the street from the UN were evacuated for about an hour. Police found nothing.

Deckhand Says Money His Savings

KINGSTON, N.Y. (AP) — A tugboat deckhand said Wednesday that $100,000 in partially-decayed currency found in his car is his life savings which he had tucked away in a pillow case.

State police, however, said the money, found in a waterfront box during a routine check Tuesday on a state highway, appeared to have been buried under ground for some time.

Michael F. Cahill, 43, was stopped when one of his tires appeared unsafe, police said.

Cahill, who did not produce a driver's licence, was searched and arrested on a charge of illegal possession of a dangerous weapon, a switchblade knife, police said.

Laboratory officials said distinguishable serial numbers on the currency would be sent to Washington for positive identification.

Police said Cahill was held pending a hearing on the weapons charge.

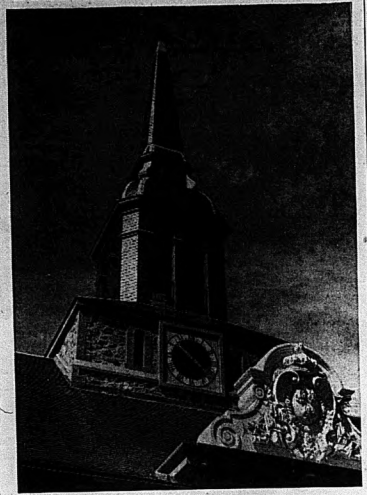
Kitchener's Experience Outlined

Hospitals Told Long Waits in Emergency Could Be Avoided

TORONTO (CP) — Hospitals can eliminate long waits for doctors in emergency rooms by special hiring plans, Kitchener hospitals have found.

Dr. R. M. Kilborn, medical director of the Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital, said Wednesday that emergency physicians, sometimes called casualty officers, reduce night calls to local doctors and provide better service to patients.

He was speaking on the final day of the annual meeting of the Ontario Hospital Association.



Dr. Kilborn said that in seven years the number of emergency-section patients at Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital and St. Mary's has increased by 14 to 15 per cent a year.

Because neither is a teaching hospital they do not have interns.

Eight physicians were hired, for six-month periods, under a plan which guaranteed them $10 an hour for an average of 56 hours a week. The hospitals agreed to bill patients and collect for the doctors.

In another speech, the executive director of the Addiction Research Foundation said his group has proposed that detoxification centres be set up near hospitals but not in them.

H. David Archibald said the foundation estimates units are needed in Toronto, Middlesex, Wentworth, Thunder Bay, Sudbury, Lincoln, Essex, Kenora, Carleton, Renfrew and Waterloo.

This 45-foot tower is the most striking feature of the king's bastion barracks at Louisbourg Fortress national historic park on Cape Breton Island in Nova Scotia. Lower Level Forecast For Pollution by Cars

OTTAWA (CP) — Auto pollution by 1976 should be at least 60 per cent below 1966 levels if new transport department regulations work as expected.

But the department presumes the steady increase in the car population will require even more stringent regulations by then.

Eventually, a non-polluting source of car power will have to be found or society must drastically alter its way of life, says Dr. Gordon S. Campbell of the department.

A director of the road and motor vehicle safety division, he commented in an interview on new auto-pollution regulations announced Monday.

These cover new cars and light service vehicles under the Motor Vehicle Safety Act in force since last Jan. 1. They are another in a series of amendments announced since then.

They require a two-thirds reduction of hydrocarbons lost by evaporation from automobile fuel tanks and carburetors, following up regulations that severely restrict the hydrocarbon flow from auto exhausts.

Other regulations have eliminated—on paper at least—the crankcase emissions once seen as black wisps under almost all cars, new or old.

The department has also reduced by 60 to 70 per cent the amount of carbon monoxide emitted in exhausts.

These substances, plus some other less significant ones, have been blamed for 60 per cent of all air pollution on this continent.

In concert with pollution controls dating from 1966, Dr. Campbell says, the new package of regulations has already started cleaning up the air—"there's no question about it."

In the long run, though, much of the responsibility rests on the shoulders of the automobile owner.

He has an obligation to maintain the mechanical condition of his car in accordance with the manufacturers' specifications, Dr. Campbell said. Without such maintenance, pollution-control devices soon become useless.

The real pinch, however, is expected in six or seven years.

Most cars, then on the road will have pollution-control devices, but there will be more and more cars, each adding small amounts of pollutants.

Regular modification of pollution controls will be necessary to maintain the quality of the air, Dr. Campbell says. But eventually, there will come a time when either a pollution-free engine will have to be developed or when society will have to give up its automobiles.

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mrs. Kenneth Bush was delegate for Sidney South Women's Institute convention at Club Canara, Belleville on Thursday and Friday.

On Monday, October 25 Westminster Church UCW hosted the regional fall rally of United Church Women.

Ability to Prevent Pollution Is Limited

TORONTO (CP) — The ability of science and technology to solve national and international problems—including pollution—is limited, Alastair Gillespie, minister of energy, science and technology, said Wednesday.

There is a point—he told a symposium on meteorology, where science policy merges with public policy.

"Ultimately the political process must make the final decisions."

Balancing acts will be necessary to meet the needs of industry as well as the need to protect the environment, Mr. Gillespie said.

But the solutions, just as the problems, would consist of a complex mixture of economics, law, politics and other ingredients as well, he said.

"The basic need is to see our problems in total, with all their interacting components, and to attack them with the full weight of our total resources."

A text of Mr. Gillespie's speech was released in advance of delivery.

New Postal Service Will Tell Senders When Mail Reaches Its Destination

REGINA (CP) — Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote announced four new postal services Wednesday night, including a method of informing senders that their mail has reached its destination.

In a speech to the Canadian Postmasters' Association, Mr. Cote said the post office will soon introduce a new form of correspondence, a new courier-type service, expansion of the new Postpak system by which mail is shipped in bag lots, and a confirmed-delivery program.

The text of his speech was released prior to delivery.

Mr. Cote said the new aerogrammes—an envelope, letter and stamp all in one piece—will come in "five beautiful designs" and will be sold in plastic packages.

"It offers the souvenir value of a postcard, the privacy of a letter and the time-saving feature that the letter can be sent short."

He did not go into detail on the new courier-type service, which he said would allow the post office to compete with private courier organizations. He said only that it "will be a premium service at a premium cost designed to provide reliability and speed in transmission."

The Postpak service now is being used on a limited scale. It provides for mail to be shipped by bags, instead of by individual pieces, and the shipper pays for each bag depending on the distance involved. Mr. Cote said that 75 centres will soon be involved in the system, and eventually it will be expanded to all offices.

"The fourth new service is a system in which the customer, on payment of a fee in addition to postage, receives confirmation that the item mailed reaches the addressee." The receipt with the addressee's signature will be returned to the sender.

Sunday Hallowe'en Provides Puzzle for Children, Police

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The trick for children in some Canadian communities this Hallowe'en will be deciding which night they will go out for treats. Police and municipal officials have been bewitched, bothered and bewildered by something which occurs only once every several years—Halloween falling on a Sunday.

The last time was in 1965.

Many cities have declared Saturday as Halloween and instructed their young residents to trick and treat then.

Others have set Sunday for the annual door-to-door children's crusade.

And a few cities have decided Halloween is unimportant and children should either take their pick of days or stay home.

A police spokesman in the Montreal suburb of St. Lambert said:

"We just hope everyone forgets about it. We are a quiet community."

In Victoria, Police Chief Jack Gregory said he would like children to stay home on both nights as it is "a good way to stay out of trouble."

A survey by The Canadian Press shows that Halloween will be observed Saturday in the following provinces:

Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

In the other three provinces, not all cities are in agreement.

Mount Royal, a Montreal suburb, has chosen Sunday.

In Ontario, Sarnia, Ottawa, Thunder Bay and Toronto will observe Halloween Saturday, but Windsor and Sudbury have selected Sunday.

In the Vancouver area, six of 11 municipalities say Saturday will be Halloween, two say Sunday, two are undecided and one municipality says it expects trick-or-treaters on both nights.

Court Settlement Is Reached In Farmers' Suit Over Wheat

REGINA (CP) — A settlement has been reached in the court proceedings initiated by four Saskatchewan farmers against federal Finance Minister Edgar Benson.

Derril McLeod, lawyer for the farmers, said agreement has been reached concerning payments under the Temporary Wheat Reserves Act. The federal government also agreed to pay court costs.

The action was for a writ to force Mr. Benson to make payments to the Canadian wheat board under the act. The payments had been deferred since last year.

The court action was blamed by the federal government for withdrawal of its controversial Prairie grains income stabilization bill. The bill was intended to repeal the Temporary Wheat Reserves Act and make a lump-sum payment of $100 million to the grain farmers.

Immediately after the bill was withdrawn, the government made the long-deferred wheat-storage payments to the wheat board for distribution to farmers. Those payments amounted to slightly more than $60 million.

Waffle Plans Action In Labor Federation

TORONTO (CP) — The radical Waffle wing of the Ontario New Democratic Party announced plans Wednesday to form a Waffle labor caucus within the Ontario Federation of Labor.

Spokesman Joe Flexer, provincial organizer for the Ontario Waffle, said in an interview details of the new labor group would be spelled out at a news conference today.

The labor federation holds its annual convention here late next week. Mr. Flexer said the new Waffle labor caucus "plans to challenge the present policies of the OFL on a number of key issues."

Russia Sends Mission To Study India's Needs

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Soviet Union, in an apparent attempt to strengthen the Indian armed forces in their confrontation withPakistan, is sending a high-ranking military delegation Friday to study India's latest defence requirements, authoritative Indian sources said today.

They said the delegation will be headed by Air Marshal P.S. Kotakhov and also will include representatives from the Soviet navy and army. It is expected to remain about a week.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
Is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation.

Opening Day Brings Familiar Face

Falk's Columbo Appealing

NEW YORK (AP) — It seems fairly certain now that the biggest hit among this season's new series is NBC's Mystery Movie, with the segment starring Peter Falk coming on particularly strong.

Between Falk's scrubby, cigar-chomping detective and Eddie Albert playing a sleek, elegant heavy, Wednesday night's Columbo episode was one of the best shows in the series to date.

Once the viewer gets accustomed to the untidy appearance of Lieut. Columbo—Falk isn't exactly a romantic hero—the format of the show works well. The viewer is a witness to the crime at the opening of the 90-minute program and follows along as the clever policeman puts together the pieces of his case.

The killing this time was of a corrupt colonel by a retired general—Albert—who was involved in shady deals and feared exposure. The shooting was seen from a distance by a young divorcee.

The most interesting part was watching the cool military man put into operation a plan to cover his crime. He courted the girl and attempted to pull rank on the police.

Albert, after all those bucolic years in Green Acres, had a nice change of pace as the arrogant, wily war hero.

With its weekly rotation of three shows—Columbo, McCloud and McMillan and Wife—the series averages out as pretty satisfactory escapist entertainment, usually more concerned with puzzles than blood and guts.

South Vietnam Announces Largest Prisoner Release of War

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government announced today its biggest prisoner release of the Vietnam war, risking cautious hopes that the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong would reciprocate.

The defense ministry said 618 repentant Viet Cong will be freed outright. It said another 2,230 are being accepted into the government's "open arms" program for a brief period of political indoctrination after which they can return to their villages or work for the government in police fields as propagandists, psychological warfare and intelligence gathering.

A communique said the prisoners are being granted amnesty to mark the inauguration Sunday of President Nguyen Van Thieu and South Vietnam's independence day anniversary Monday.

Sources at the presidential palace said earlier that Thieu would make a new appeal for peace Monday. Some reports said this would be a new initiative, while other sources indicated it would consist of a newsl of earlier calls for an immediate ceasefire as the first step toward a settlement.

The South Vietnamese hold about 36,000 prisoners of war, a little more than 8,000 of them North Vietnamese. The U.S. defence department lists 462 known American prisoners of war—378 in North Vietnam, 79 in South Vietnam, three in Laos and two in China. Another 1,776 Americans are listed as missing in action.

Hopes for prisoner exchanges were given impetus three weeks ago when the Viet Cong released the first American to be set free in nearly two years. Sgt. John C. Sexton Jr., of Warren, Mich. The Viet Cong indicated they would welcome reciprocal action, and three days later South Vietnam freed a North Vietnamese.

The Saigon defence ministry said 462 of the prisoners to be released Sunday are "in good health" while 178 are classified. They will be freed in small groups all over the country.

Evacuation Said Unlikely

OTTAWA (CP) — It is not realistic to expect that Russia will agree to evacuate its forces from Eastern Europe under any East-West agreement on troop reductions, informed Canadian sources say.

In their view, the most that can be expected is that the Kremlin will agree to trade off a proportion of its troops in East Germany, Hungary and Czechoslovakia against a proportion of Allied forces in West Germany.

As for lifting Soviet control over the Baltic republics of Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania—forcibly incorporated into the So-viet Union in 1939 and re-incorporated when the Germans were driven out in 1944—the possibility simply doesn't exist, say the informants.

For the Soviets, the question of the Baltic states doesn't exist, they explained. The Kremlin therefore refuses to discuss it.

Some Canadian officials are sceptical that proposals for talks on troop cuts in central Europe will lead to any concrete result.

So far, they say, the Kremlin has refused to give any details of what Communist Party Leader Leonid Brezhnev may have had in mind when he suddenly began championing the idea of force reductions in a series of speeches earlier this year.

Conference Supports Indians

MARCY, N.Y. (AP) — The International Conference on Racism and Discrimination passed a resolution Wednesday supporting the Onondaga Indians in their dispute with the New York state transportation department over Interstate Route 81.

The Onondaga Indians are trying to prevent the department from constructing a slow-traffic lane along the highway crossing Indian lands near Syracuse.

The resolution states: "We firmly support the just claims of all the Indian peoples of North America in their current struggle to retain the integrity of their culture, land and reservations as enunciated by the Onondaga nation's determination to resist the state department of transportation's encroachment of their land."

Mitusuwy Shunatona Hines of the Association on Community House, who presented the resolution, said: "Give them an inch and they'll take our whole reservation."

The conference here is sponsored by four United States and Canadian human rights organizations.

George Hees Explains Reason His Election Prediction Wrong

OTTAWA (CP) — On June 20, bouncy George Hees predicted a fall federal election.

"If you don't get the feel of the game after 20 years, you're awfully stupid," he told reporters then.

What happened?

"Trudeau wanted to go but he just couldn't dig out an issue to justify an election," the Conservative MP for Prince Edward-Hastings-Lennox and Addington, ebullient as ever, said Wednesday.

Prime Minister Trudeau encouraged everybody to bet Mr. Hees about the election prediction.

Mr. Hees offered bottles of whisky as wagering coin.

"I have to pay off only one person," he said in an interview, "and he will get two bottles of Scotch-Chivas Regal —on Monday."

"Ambrose was the only one who offered to bet against me," Mr. Hees said.

"He's got two bottles of Scotch."

How about a new prediction?

"Sure," said Mr. Hees, "The fall of '72."

I'm willing to make the same bet. Glad to do it, glad to do it."

Driver Found Shot After Fatal Crash

MOUNT FOREST, Ont. (CP) — Ronald Glenn Philp, 20, driver of a school bus involved in a fatal accident Tuesday, was found dead Wednesday of gunshot wounds near the barn of his farm home at nearby Moorefield.

Mr. Philp was driving a school bus carrying 45 children which went out of control about 12 miles south of here and struck two power poles. Seven-year-old Patricia Mitchell of Moorefield was killed and eight other children were injured.

Provincial police said Mr. Philp's wife and a neighbor were standing about 100 feet from the barn when they heard shots. They rushed to the barn and found Mr. Philp dead and a revolver nearby.

Three Convicts Win Their Court Appeals

KINGSTON (CP) — Men from the penitentiaries near here had their day in court Wednesday.

It was the regular day for prisoners' appeals, their chance to say how they believe the courts had mistreated them.

Three were successful.

Paul Minchella, 42, was sentenced to three years after an eight-day spree in Sudbury last spring when he stole three cars, broke into four separate premises and, carrying an unloaded gun, stole a bag of money.

He told Chief Justice G. A. Gale and two colleagues of the Ontario Supreme Court that he wanted a reformatory sentence, somewhere he could be rehabilitated, away from the federal prison system.

His sentence was changed to 14 months less a day definite and 18 months indeterminate in a reformatory.

Roger Brenner and Vernon Finley, convicted jointly of breaking and entering and attempted breaking and entering, won new trials on the grounds that their judge had not properly instructed the jury.

Jurors Picked

KINGSTON (CP) — Nine jurors were selected Wednesday in the Ontario Supreme Court trial of 11 convicts jointly charged with non-capital murder in the death of two Kingston penitentiary prisoners.

Selection of the remaining three jurors was to continue today.

High Heels Can Have Lot to Do with Muscle Spasms in Legs

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What are muscle spasms, and what causes them? What can be done for relief?—Mrs. B.

In the case of women, relatively high heels can have a lot to do with it, the spasm occurring when changing from heels to low slippers or going barefoot.

Speaking for the moment just of leg cramps, faulty circulation in the legs can be a factor. So can lack of sufficient calcium in the diet, which is why a glass or two of milk a day, in one form or another, can be good for adults. Sometimes medication to promote circulation is helpful.

Many a backache is the result of nervous tension being reflected in muscular tension. This is not to say that every backache necessarily deserves to be called a "muscle spasm," but there's a similarity, and it comes down to a matter of degree: how tense, how cramped must a muscle be before we accord it the "honor" of calling it a spasm?

Anyway, a good back-rub by your spouse can do a lot to relax the muscles, and can help with aching backs and necks, and sometimes relieve certain kinds of headaches.

This does not exhaust the causes of muscle spasms. Chemical changes in the muscle occurring during exercise can be responsible. Faulty posture or a skeletal defect of some sort can subject certain muscles to enough tension to cause them to go into spasm.

Now, Mrs. B., whether I've given you any help on the particular type of muscle spasm you had in mind, I don't know, but "muscle spasm" is really a pretty broad topic, and the right solution for one type may be utterly wrong for another.

But that at least will give you some understanding of what we mean when we talk about muscle spasm.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What danger would there be to the baby if one should unknowingly become pregnant while using a foam contraceptive and has continued to use such a contraceptive?

Also what risks are involved if one should become pregnant a few weeks after a miscarriage, and before the first menstrual period has occurred?—Mrs. P. M. P.

First question: No danger.

Second: No special risk. If the factors, whatever they were, that caused the miscarriage are still present, then another miscarriage could occur.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Do polyps in the rectum ever grow back once you have them removed?—C. W. C.

Such polyps don't usually grow back, but there is no guaranting that new ones won't appear in the general area.

Athletes, after a strenuous race or game, may have such painful spasms, the muscles rebelling at the strain under which they have been.

For immediate first aid, standing barefoot on the floor to stretch the muscles of the calf or feet can relieve the spasm. Vigorous massage also tends to loosen a tense muscle by stimulating the circulation there.

I dare say muscles of the neck and back come second in being subject to muscle spasm, and in this case nervous tension has a lot to do with it, even though it may not be the whole cause.

Opening lead — jack of diamonds.

The nature of the game is such that you can sometimes make a loser disappear into thin air.

For example, look at this hand where it would seem you must lose a diamond and a club to go down one. But if you handle your cards right, you can bring home the slam in a perfectly logical fashion.

West leads the jack of diamonds, which looks suspiciously like a singleton because you have the ten, so you go up with the ace and draw three rounds of trumps ending in dummy.

You then play the four of diamonds, hoping that East will go up with the king. In which case you would follow low and later discard the queen of clubs on dummy's queen of diamonds.

But East plays low on the diamond and you win the trick with the ten. West showing out.

Since you still have a diamond loser, it might seem that the final outcome will depend upon the success or failure of a club finesse. But actually you can tell by this time that the slam is in the bag, and it does not really matter where the king of clubs is located.

You play a spade to the king and return a club from dummy. When East follows low, you finesse the queen.

If the finesse succeeds, you have twelve tricks then and there. If it fails, you still have twelve tricks, for whatever West returns you will get rid of your diamond loser on dummy's jack of clubs.

No matter how East-West slice it, there is no way for them to stop she of your two losers from simply melting away.

Tomorrow: Response to an overcall.

What The Stars Say

Friday, October 29

General Guide—Research results will be released now that sternly caution the public against the consumption of a popular and well-distributed item, probably a common remedy or patent medicine. These frightening reports may cause more physical upsets though than this supposed cure-all.

Aries—(March 21-April 19). The best line of defense to protect your savings and security lies in remaining silent. Anyone who makes a big show of his wealth is open to treachery.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). All financial interests, particularly those that combine your funds with someone else's, are subject to losses. Steer clear of dubious offers or proposals.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). If highergus must be approached today, do your own talking, rather than sending an ally to represent you. Well-intentioned help from partners is liable to blow your case.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). People can always find something to complain about, even when the job is first rate. Don't let a lack of appreciation deter you.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). Someone close to your heart knows just how to pull the strings that make you jump. It will be extremely hard to resist the requests of loved ones today.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). On the surface, agreements with mate seem to be unqualified. There's a deceptive element in effect, however. Partners have entirely different things in mind.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). You're only kidding yourself by insisting that everything at work is fine and dandy. Rumors that bolster this false belief increase your poor judgment.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). Before you go overboard spending on new fashions or some self-improvement treatment, be sure such changes can complement or enhance your physical type.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). If you can't make up your mind, say yes to both sides. It'll be easier to cancel one set of plans than it will be to recreate the same opportunity in the near future.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Honesty is the only remedy for your most irresistible problem. Better start telling the truth before you're hopelessly trapped in your own lies.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Don't add the possible gains from risky speculations into your column of assets. Spending should be budgeted solely on the cash on hand now.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Be extremely careful in choosing an authority to counsel your next move. Empty heads make the most noise, so beware of boastful claims from so-called experts.

Today's birthday—Increases in income can cancel out expenditures until March. Thereafter, the flow reverses drastically and, unless you count every penny you could be in the red why early summer.

Upset Win Is Scored By Newfoundland PCs

Half of Seats Won by PCs

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Progressive Conservatives Thursday scored a narrow upset victory in the Newfoundland election, winning half the 42 seats in the legislature and reducing Premier Smallwood's Liberals to second-party status for the first time since Confederation with Canada in 1949.

With winners declared today in all 42 ridings, Frank Moores's Conservatives had won 21 seats, the Liberals 20 and the New Labrador Party one.

Recounts were expected in several close ridings.

Final standings:

	1971	1966
Prog. Con.	21	3
Liberals	20	39
New Labrador	1	—
Total	42	42

With the Conservatives never attaining more than also-ran status in previous Newfoundland elections, the result was an historic victory for them and a crushing blow for the 70-year-old premier, who went to the people seeking a seventh straight mandate since leading the province into Confederation in 1949.

The question of whether the Conservatives will have a working majority in the legislature hinges on the only third-party member of the new house—the New Labrador Party leader, Tom Burgess.

Mr. Burgess, who split with the Liberals following the 1966 election which they won with ease, says he will side with the party which offers Labrador the best deal.

Mr. Smallwood, interviewed at his home 40 miles from here shortly after the final result was announced, said there would be a number of recounts.

There was also the possibility of court action. He did not say what court action he had in mind.

In the meantime, the premier said, he played "to carry on the business of government."

There were 150,000 voters registered for the election, and about 87 per cent cast ballots, probably the largest vote in any Canadian election.

It was the first Conservative victory in Newfoundland's history as a province and the first time any opposition party had elected more than seven members in the Liberals steamrolled through one provincial election after another climaxed by a 1966 vote in which they won all but three of the 42 seats.

which superseded

The first pieces of Mr. Smallwood's once impregnable political fortress fell when Conservatives won six of the seven Newfoundland Commons seats in the 1968 federal election.

At that time, he said the tide had gone out for Newfoundland Liberals but "the tide will come in again." It didn't come back Thursday.

The Conservatives, who had never received more than 37 per cent of the popular vote, had about 39 per cent of the votes counted Thursday with the Liberal share cut to about 37 per cent.

An extremely heavy turnout of voters gave all parties a gain in votes over the last election, the Conservatives more than doubling their 1966 total.

Special polls, which could prove crucial in close undecided seats, were set up for students and others who were out of their ridings when held the advance and regular polls were held.

Counting of these votes was incomplete Thursday night. With less than 100 votes separating many candidates several changes could develop.

British House Okays Entry Into Market

LONDON (CP) — Supported by Labor rebels, a delighted British government appears supremely confident that entry into the European Common Market in 1973 has been assured by a decisive display of parliamentary approval for the principle of membership.

Britain's 630-seat Commons voted 356 to 244 in favor of entry Thursday night in what was seen as a clear victory for Prime Minister Heath and his governing Conservatives. The 112-vote margin was much higher than Tory managers had anticipated.

While Opposition rebels handsomely boosted the Conservative margin, the Tories mustered enough votes to win on their own as Heath hoped they would do.

The House of Lords approved membership by an overwhelming 451-to-38 margin, although this was widely predicted in advance.

Heath, beaming and jubilant after the vote and a six-day debate which preceded it, told reporters the victory was "clear-cut and the result of years of work by various governments."

In fact, Heath himself opened the initial entry negotiations when he was a Tory cabinet minister in 1961. British applications suffered two French vetoes and a series of other setbacks in the intervening years.

In his Commons victory, Heath received support from 69 Labor MPs rebelling against the Opposition party's official anti-Market line. The question now seems to be how many of these MPs will continue to support the government when the clause-by-clause battle on the legislation begins.

Opposition Leader Harold Wilson, who has promised that his Labor party will fight enabling legislation clause by clause, said on television after defeat on the Market issue: "This is not the end—it is the beginning."

Decision Problem For Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — The majority decision of British MPs to go ahead with entry into the European Economic Community underlined for their Canadian counterparts the increasingly-isolated position of Canada in world markets.

Comments from Canadian politicians stressed that the British decision, while expected here, dramatized growing pressure on Canada to search out and nail down markets for its products.

"Coming on the heels of the U.S. protectionist measures," said Max Saltsman, economics spokesman for the New Democratic Party, "it looks like we're being buffeted from all directions.

"On balance, it makes it more difficult for us and we've now got to work harder to exploit other possibilities in the common market as a whole." Robert Stanfield said at a news conference in Fredericton.

He described the common market as "quite protectionist" in terms of agricultural products and indicated Canada would find it more difficult to sell commodities such as wheat.

Revenue Minister Herb Gray said the British decision "poses a new challenge to Canadian exporters."

However, he added, an expanded common market also could provide new opportunities to meet the challenge of exporting.

Site of Nuclear Test

This is a view of the site where the government plans to set off a five-megaton nuclear device underground on the island of Amchitka in the Aleutians. The U.S. Court of Appeals denied Thursday an injunction against the nuclear test but upheld a lower court order directing the government to produce secret documents in connection with the potential environmental impact.

Commons Vote Best Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons vote against the proposed underground nuclear blast in Alaska was the best representation possible and Prime Minister Trudeau is not considering any other protest move, the Commons was told Thursday.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp made the reply to questions about the underground test, scheduled for Amchitka in the Aleutian Islands early in mid-November.

Outside the Commons, Mr. Sharp said Mr. Nixon is fully aware of Canadian views, which have been presented "in every possible form."

Skid Row Fire Takes Five Lives

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five men died and five other persons were injured late Thursday night when fire raced through the upper floors of a skid road rooming house.

The victims were trapped behind a wall of smoke and flames as firemen fought to gain entry through the one ground-floor door of the Skylight Hotel, a narrow, five-storey building on East Hastings Street.

Fire department officials said three of the victims were dead on arrival at hospital. Two others died later. One woman was believed to have been among hundreds of spectators.

Police said firemen carried the dead and injured out of the hotel while the fire burned on the fourth and fifth floors.

New Ship Sets Sail For A-test

VANCOUVER (CP) — A converted minesweeper nicknamed the Greenpeace Two sailed late Thursday night for Amchitka Islands in a protest mission against this detonation next week of a five-megaton nuclear device on the Aleutian island of Achitka.

The Edgewater Fortune, the former Canadian minesweeper HMCS Fortune, did not make a scheduled stop for fuel at nearby Steveston but sailed directly into Georgia Strait where it was to meet a fishboat carrying the original Greenpeace mission today. The fuel stop would be made later.

The Greenpeace missions, sponsored by the Vancouver-based Don't Make a Wave Committee, have been the focus for mounting West Coast opposition to the United States underground explosion, which the Atomic Energy Commission plans to set off no later than next Thursday.

Three Die When Hit By Auto

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Three pedestrians were struck and killed by a car as they attempted to cross a downtown intersection early today.

Dead are Sandra Hill, 8, Alice Alexis, 57, and Emanuel Spinos, 26, all of St. Catharines.

Injunction Request Is Renewed

WASHINGTON (CP) — Environment groups prepared a new request today for a court injunction against a planned United States atomic blast on Amchitka Island, after the government agreed to show the court secret documents on the test.

An environment lawyer said the U.S. District Court would be asked to rule immediately on the groups' still-pending motion for a preliminary injunction.

Meanwhile, preparations for the underground detonation of a five-megaton hydrogen warhead continued on remote Amchitka, in the Aleutian Islands.

A justice department spokesman said the government will not challenge a U.S. Court of Appeals decision Thursday putting the disputed reports into the hands of Judge George L. Hart of the U.S. district court.

He said the material will be cleared of any information affecting national security and turned over to the judge probably later today. That means Hart's courtroom probably will become the arena for a fresh challenge by seven groups of environmentalists on whether the blast should go off at all.

President Nixon authorized the explosion earlier this week in telling the Atomic Energy Commission to go ahead.

Seven conservation groups are any seeking to halt the blast, claiming it might cause earthquakes, damage wildlife or allow radioactive materials to leak into the air.

They say the government suppressed official reports proving their contention of potential environmental damage. The government argued that President Nixon had a right to keep certain information secret under the legal doctrine known as executive privilege.

The three judges of the appeals court denied Thursday a request by the environmental groups for a temporary restraining order.

In the meantime, dissent spread through Canada and Alaska over the test with demonstrations being planned in many areas.

George Kerr, Ontario minister of energy and resources management, sent a telegram to President Nixon Thursday protesting the nuclear test as "an affront to humanity."

At the United Nations, Canadian delegate Paul St. Pierre of Vancouver told the main political committee Thursday that the superpowers "are engaged in a contest poisonous, dangerous and in the ultimate, futile,"

Industrial Amity

Industrial agreement at McFarlane Gendron was formally recognized yesterday at signing of three-year labor agreement. Representing both sides were (left) Reginald Lander, international representative, Amalgamated Silver, Jewelry and Allied Workers and Alan Kotlar, company president.

Union Contract Signed

One of Belleville's oldest industries yesterday signed its first union work contract — giving its employees pay increases of more than 21 per cent over three years.

The agreement was signed between McFarlane Gendron Manufacturing Ltd. and the Amalgamated Silver, Jewelry and Allied Workers Union.

The union's local was certified last summer as bargaining agent for 70 workers of the company, now 96 years in operation.

Certification came around the time when the company — which also operates a Toronto plant — changed executive and bargaining began shortly after.

"I'm very pleased the company and union came to a satisfactory agreement. The whole problem has always been an important part of our company," said owner and president Alan Kotlar.

Among McFarlane Gendron products are pool a n d games tables, nursery furniture and high chairs.

Interest regarding a formal contract signing Mr. Kotlar indicated plans were in the offing to broaden activities at the Belleville plant.

Union president and international representative Reginald Lander expressed satisfaction, both with the contract and relationships during negotiations.

"We didn't have to go to conciliation which on a first contract is exceptional.

Although neither side revealed the exact pay raise produced by the agreement the contract gives:

Increases to seven-to-10 per cent as of November 1971 and increases of seven per cent at the same time in 1972 and 1973.

Annual vacations are based on length of service and holiday pay on earning previous years.

These are: One week and two per cent for employees of up to a year; two weeks and four per cent after one year; three weeks and six per cent after eight years; one month and eight per cent after 25 years.

The company will pay all premiums on a weekly indemnity (for employees unable to work because of illness) and prescription drug plan; 50 per cent on single Group Hospital Plan and $3.35 monthly on medical services.

UNICEF Goblins Out Tomorrow

The last few days before Halloween in city schools are UNICEF days, when pupils focus their attention on their counterparts in underdeveloped countries.

The UNICEF boxes that children take out on Halloween for collection of pennies are distributed through the schools.

This year 10,000 have been distributed throughout the county, courtesy of the school board courier system. The boxes are picked up at the schools and returned after Halloween for counting.

Bernard Wright, principal of Park Dale School and chairman of this year's UNICEF campaign says collection boxes for trick and treaters have been distributed to about 40 schools in the county for use Saturday night.

Last year, county children collected $5,300 in pennies at Halloween. This year in some schools the boxes have been given out in advance so youngsters can contribute some money of their own to the cause.

Safe Cracker Foiled

A safe cracker was at work overnight but his attempts were to no avail.

Police report thieves broke into EMCO Kawartha Ltd. on Moira St. West some time overnight and went to work on a safe with a saw.

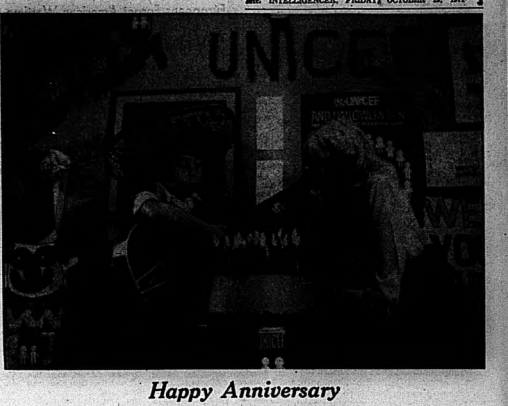
However they were unable to gain entry to valuables inside although they cut through the hinges.

From there they went to the soft drink machine and obtained an undisclosed sum of money after forcing it open.

A second overnight theft occurred at College Hill United Church on North Park St.

A phonograph of undetermined value and two microphones were refused.

Evans Protests Vote Procedure



Harry Evans, the Cherry Valley farmer, defeated in his bid to win a seat on the Ontario Milk Marketing Board last Tuesday, now claims the election was "null and void" because of a 60-minute extension of its polling period.

In a letter to J. F. Jewson, secretary of the milk commission there was "a complete foul-up" in polling hours because of the difference between Eastern Standard time and daylight saving time.

He insisted polls closed either one hour late or opened one hour early at 9 a.m. during the election and added the official act, regulating the election, specifies 12 polling hours.

The irate farmer was beaten at the polls by incumbent board member for zone four Allan Ketchenon of Madoc.

Mr. Evans, in his letter to the milk commission secretary, said the error was the fault of the Department of Agriculture and Food and demanded another election. "Civil servants are fooling things up all the time," said Mr. Evans to the press.

Provincial-Municipal Partnership Only Hollow Echo Says Hepburn

POINT EDWARD (Staff) — Bernard C. Hepburn, former reeve of Picton and president of ACRO (Association of Counties and Regions of Ontario) addressed the organization's 12th annual convention this week claiming a government promise of provincial - municipal partnership carries "a hollow echo" in current practices.

Mr. Hepburn told delegates to the four-day convention in Lambton County that he is unhappy with the "Great White Father" attitude he feels is evident at Queen's Park.

"If the provincial government means partnership, then where is it when new legislation is being introduced," demanded the speaker.

He added the theme of this year's convention, "Forward Thru Partnership" was jokingly dubbed at a recent board meeting as "Partnership. My Foot."

Mr. Hepburn said partnership was first promised between the province and its municipalities by ex - premier John Robarts in the spring of 1970.

"How can there be partnership without consultation? Why aren't we involved in the discussion and planning stage of programs concerning municipal responsibilities?" questioned ACRO's retiring president.

Mr. Hepburn observed, "We have been asked to name appointees to many ministerial committees. We welcome such opportunities to work together for the good of Ontario municipalities. But why were we not consulted regarding Bill 121?"

He said partnership faltered in still another direction when the municipal liaison committee, partially initiated by ACRO, this year ground to a halt.

The committee, in Mr. Hepburn's opinion, held great promise as a vehicle for cooperation and co-ordination for the four municipal associations.

Since Dec. 17, when the four organizations made their first joint presentation to the Ontario cabinet, the group has met only twice.

"This year's prolonged courtship has occupied the mayors and reeves and OMA, but with the marriage now slated for next spring or early summer there may be renewed interest in the liaison committee. I wish both organizations success in their proposed merger. I know ACRO will be willing to co-operate with the new association," declared Mr. Hepburn.

The ACRO president reviewed his term of office with reference to partnership in action.

"I feel that all of us connected with ACRO can share in some pride of accomplishment. It has meant a lot of work. It has involved many county and regional people, both elected and appointed. If, in my opinion, has been partnership at work," he said

Mr. Hepburn stated this year could have been a difficult one for him personally since he was not re-elected as reeve of Picton but added that excellent backing from Prince Edward County prevented problems.

This year's ACRO convention opened at the Village Inn, Point Edward, on Oct. 25 through Oct. 27.

HELP FOR MIDDLE-AGED MEN AND WOMEN

Are you on the verge of middle age or have you reached it? Do you find everything is an effort, that the old zest just isn't there anymore? You may be suffering from middle-age blues.

For women they usually arrive around the age of 35 to 40. They may not hit men until 45 or 50. But they come to all of us, and it helps to be aware of them so nobody escapes them.

Nobody.

Halloween SAFETY MESSAGE!

Dear Parent or Guardian:

The Belleville Jaycees offer the following suggestions in the hope that in so doing, our children will have a safe and happy Hallowe'en.

—Accompany small children on their rounds.

—Dress them in brightly colored costumes. Remember that poorly fitting masks often obscure vision. If is often safer to simply use make-up. Dress your kids in costumes and footwear that fit snuggly to lessen the chance of tripping.

—Beware of wrapped candies and treats. Check apples, oranges, popcorn balls, homemade treats ,etc. for glass, pins, needles, razor blades, etc. before allowing a child to eat these.

—Check the taste and smell of homemade treats for substances added which would cause sickness, poisoning, etc.

—If you discover irregularities, attempt to remember where the treats were received and inform the police immediately.

—Keep children from committing vandalism. We sincerely hope that this advice will make the Hallowe'en a happy one for you and your children.

Provided by the Belleville Jaycees as a public safety message.

A Strange Land

Perhaps the major irony of Red China's admission to the United Nations and Nationalist China's expulsion is that the U.N. resolution to bring about this development was proposed by Albania which has a population of little more than two million and is undoubtedly the most backward nation in Europe.

Only recently has Albania been opened up to a modest number of Western tourists and what they find is a nation no longer dependent, in its postwar form, on the Soviet Union but rather on Communist China. Paradoxically, busts of Stalin and Lenon adorn the capital city of Tirana's main, broad boulevard, and newly-minted stamps include portraits of Stalin. As one party official explained recently, "our quarrel is not with the Russian people but with their leadership."

These were some of the things gleaned by a U.S. newsman, Kenneth Ames, during a recent visit. Ten years after its break with the Soviets, Ames writes, Albania "remains the most starkly austere country in Europe, a nation of two million people curiously proud of their modest achievements. . . ."

Chinese assistance which now predominates (from the West there have been Swedish and Danish trade missions) is being given at present in some 33 industrialization projects under the current five-year plan. The Russians, complained one Albanian technician "seemed always to be drunk," but he had never seen a drunk Chinese.

Writer Ames adds this significant passage: "Other Albanians expressed admiration for Chinese disciplined precision and their devotion to work. "We have much to learn from them.'

"Certainly when it comes to devotion to work, the Albanians have much to learn from almost anybody. The overwhelming impression in any urban area at any time of the day is one of stupendous idleness.

"Cafes are crammed with men who can stretch a doll's cup of Turkish coffee throughout a whole steaming morning. They stand in their hundreds at street corners idly gossiping for hours on end, presumably waiting until their women get through doing the work."

The textile factories have almost 90 per cent female labor and in the fields there is a preponderance of women and old men. One attributes the profounder mysteries of this mysterious land, Ames concludes, is how it survives at all as an economic entity. Strange indeed.

Amchitka Bomb

The United States is planning to go ahead with its controversial nuclear blast at Amchitka Island in the Aleutians.

And this despite widespread opposition, including a newspaper advertisement appeal in The Washington Post by a "group of concerned Canadians" who describe themselves in part, as follows: "We are not radicals, 'eco-freaks' or do-gooders but (we hope) thoughtful citizens of many different religions and political persuasions. We act independently, have no formal committee, and raised the money for this advertisement by personal appeal."

The group expressed itself against any further nuclear testing, whether by the U.S., the Soviet Union, the French or the Chinese. They pointed out that after a similar blast at Amchitka in 1965 there was experimental evidence of strontium 90 radiation in milk.

There is of course concern also that the explosion could trigger earthquakes in a region of known geological weakness.

The United States could have won itself respect had it decided to call off the test. After all, testing over the years has been extensive — and surely, by now, productive of required scientific knowledge and nuclear expertise. As Walter Lippmann has pointed out: " - - - the capacity for over-kill around the world is an established fact- - -"

The U.S. says the experiment is in the interests of security. This is difficult to believe in the light of the "overkill" capability already possessed by the U.S. and the Soviets.

Deterrent?

Much is said today of the permissive society, and of increasing leniency in the courts which reflects that state of affairs. Now we have a further classic example: two young "Princess Edward Island" bank accountants who recently made off with more than $400,000 from a Summerside bank where they worked, have been sentenced — to a mere two years in jail.

This is not much of a price to pay for a betrayal of public trust, or a theft of funds of such magnitude. Nor is it a deterrent to others who might be so inclined and, moreover, not so to come within the law. Even the music which perhaps was the only redeeming feature of this whole affair. The pair had returned from the United States.

Europeans Forget American Wartime Generosity

Why Canada Also Cannot Get Along Without U.S.

From an address in The Senate by Senator Gratien O'Leary

The story of our generosity, and of our friends and allies, over the public room of the United States is appalling. I have read again and again cartoonings in Canada and in foreign countries, President of the United States and calling him "Tricky Dick".

Hon. Mr. Martin: A sport with that.

Hon. Mr. O'Leary: You agree with that. Well, that is not all. Do you think the American people have not noticed that? Do you thing they are stupid?

But there is more than that. Do you know the sort of people in Canada who have been referring to the President of the United States as "Tricky Dick"? I will tell you who they are. They are the people who have never forgiven Mr. Nixon for exposing Alger Hiss.

We tell ourselves that the American people do not know us, but how well do we know the American people? Do you get to know the American people by going to play golf in Miami? Do you get to know the American people by taking a room at the Waldorf Astoria? No, but you do get to know the American people by reading American publications, which incidentally, are the best published in the English-speaking world.

Our young men in the Department of External Affairs think that the beginning and end of everything is the State Department. Honorable Senators, let me tell you that the State Department has political appointees over to do with this matter. They are ignored completely by the President. Mr. Connally is a politician, and we should talk to Mr. Connally.

We did not do anything to cause this crisis in the United States. We are right in doing what they are doing generally, but they are not living up to their remedies to us. They are not right in hurting us.

Mr. Nixon said that Japan is their best customer. Do you know, honorable senators, that last year, 1970, we bought one-fourth of all American exports?

I ask you to consider that one-fourth of all their exports. We bought more from the United States in 1970 than did Britain, France or West Germany, or all the Common Market countries combined. That is a fact not known to the American people, that we bought from them more than did all the Common Market countries combined. We bought more from them than England, France, Germany or Japan. I found that when very well-informed men in Congress did not know this. Are we telling them about these facts?

We hear talk about retaliation. Retaliation against the United States? You might as well talk about the Leader of the Opposition retaliating against Muhammed Ali. It is all nonsense. We hear people say, "Why don't we tell them that we won't give them wheat if they don't buy from us, and we won't give them oil?" Let me remind people we can ask themselves where we would sell these resources if they did not purchase from the United States?

We are the best customer of the United States but we must not forget that they are also our best customer. The United States is our market. We have no other markets. Look at the sales last year, and the year before, and the year before that again, of our manufactured goods. These are the goods that produce jobs. Where did we sell them? Did we sell them to the Common Market countries? Did we sell them to England, France, West Germany, or Japan? We did not. Our products manufactured goods, our refined goods, were bought by the Americans. They bought more from us than all other countries put together.

Let us be honest about this: that is the only place we can sell them, let us not become complacent and arrogant and think that the world must beat a path to our doorstep. The world does not have to do so, and the world will not do so. The world can get along quite well without us, but we cannot get along without the United States.

Honorable senators, let us keep in mind that we are North Americans. Geography dictates our future, and there is no arrow against it. What do other countries do? What is England doing at the present time? England is going into the European Common Market next year. Why? Because it's Europe, because it's necessary for survival. And she is right in doing so.

England has been telling that to farmers — looking after the interests of England. But here in Canada recently our leaders seem to think it is their job to look after the rest of the world. Oh, yes, we must look after Rhodesia, we must look after Cyprus, and so on and so forth. If Mr. Wilson tells us we have to have sanctions against Rhodesia, then we have sanctions against Rhodesia.

In recent years we have had these Europeans coming over here and telling us Canadians that we should do about the United States. There were some here three or four months ago, representatives of France, West Germany and so on, and I happened to see some of their working papers. In these working papers they told us, "You Canadians have much more in common with us than you have with the United States". This is the burden and the tenor of all their stuff—snide remarks and criticisms of the United States.

Well, honorable senators I want to that meeting. I knew this was coming up, so I put down my name and asked if I would be allowed to say something. The two chief speakers, of course — and this should never happen — were members of the one political party, namely the Liberal party. So I called out: No; I did not belong to the chosen people. So, I was ignored and I did not get back. But had I gone back, I would have said: Look, you people who are here from Ottawa, you have said about the United States, You don't seem to like the United States. Well, I think we ought to remind you that had it not been for the United States and what they did for you people after the last war, you might not be here at all.

This is what the world expects. The world forgets what Winston Churchill once said, that not in human history has there been a single case where any nation acted with such generosity as the United States has done with the Red States did with the Marshall Plan.

I remember once going to Rome, where I arrived at a magnificent station. I asked, in the name of Heaven, when did they build this station, who did build a station such as this? The bland reply was "Oh, Marshall Plan." Marshall Plan? Well, you, this money was coming from the American taxpayers. Now after all those years, they have all turned against the United States and want us to join them.

The Americans are our best customers. They are going to be our best customers. Our destiny is with them, and with this North American continent. For Heaven's sake, let us tell these Europeans where they get off when they come over here trying to drag us away.

What did they buy from us last year? Remember the figures I have of those purchases: 85 per cent of all our manufactured exports went to the United States. Actually, the latest complete report standing there ahead highly finished industrial products worth $5,600,000,000.

Of that total, 90.8 per cent went to the United States. The next largest buyer was the European Common Market which was 3.4 per cent. That was followed by U.K. with 1.6 per cent. Then came Japan, which bought 0.3 per cent.

Exclusive of the United States market, we have been selling to the rest of the world only 13 per cent of our products manufactured for export —products which we have to offer. The simple fact is it has been the United Kingdom, the Commonwealth, Europe and Japan which have been obtaining our materials for their industry without providing any outlet for our finished industrial goods. It is they, not the United States, which have been trying to make us hewers of wood and drawers of water.

Thanks to the initiative and willingness to work on the part of over 200 volunteers in the Sheffield township district, the village of Tamworth, 30 miles north of Napanee, is to have a modern covered arena. This year, 900 volunteer labor added in, the cost of the new arena will be approximately $40,000, and already over $16,000 has been raised by contributions.

About 10 years ago he was a young man in Mexico with just $25 to his name. Now he is the millionaire president of two air lines. Recently in Toronto he did not think this remarkable. He said "It is just taking advantage of opportunity and working hard." His link with Belleville goes back many years. His father, George M., was remembered by many here for he taught school at Plainfield about the same time as Gilbert Parker (who later became the novelist and member of the British Commons and was knighted for his services to the Empire) was teaching at Marsh Hill near Foxboro.

Reflections on Ontario Vote

Ottawa Journal

In the more leisurely reflection days of a weekend after the Ontario election emerged these thoughts:

The NDP put useful vim and bite into the campaign and should remain incendiary lest the Tories and the public dose.

But its brand of socialism has more thoroughly thrashed than it admits when it boasts of a gain of one per cent in popular vote.

A "swinging" party that couldn't gain more than that against the weak Liberals and what it asserted as a 30-year - old "ancient regime" swung only down.

The "youth" vote may be long on hair but it is also long on voting with caution, obviously it likes the fun of the NDP's irresponsibility but doesn't want irresponsible government.

Governments and preachers and editors and old fogies should remember this next time they judge youth by its hair.

A Legislature that loses such as Tim Reid (Liberal) and Walter Pitman (NDP) loses too much — a costly lesson to their parties and all of us that exaggeration in attack can defeat itself.

Four Eastern Ontario Tories with a sum of 30 years in the House take with them into retirement a lot of experience, but the six new faces in the area should bring welcome new ideas and energy.

That 71 per cent of eligible voters turned out is in some ways the most heartening thing of the election: apathy, indifference, cynicism and sheer bone laziness are not among characteristics of Canadians in this province, despite the Gloomy Guses.

Ulster Builds on Scarred Sites

Ulster Commentary

"Spend as much money as you can to brighten up Belfast" — that was the offer which the Government made to Belfast Corporation and a number of voluntary bodies at a June. One hundred per cent grants for approved projects started before 31 August.

The scheme — the first of its kind in the United Kingdom — produced remarkable results. Work commenced on a number of projects on the day on which the scheme was announced. And many "closed sites", resulting from the demolition of burned houses, have been transformed into mini - playgrounds, small soccer pitches, and "target" areas with seats and flower boxes. Twelve new playgrounds, throughout the city, were started and a street cleaning exercise was carried out. Extra workers were recruited for deprived areas.

"One of the aims of this project", said the Prime Minister (Mr. Brian Faulkner) when he announced the scheme, "is to restore normality to the social scene. The Government and Corporation are determined to eradicate the scars of strife from the city and to turn them to good account".

"Doomed to failure . . . Illtimed . . . It should be postponed . . . Nobody wants it . . . These were among the things said about Ulster 71 in the months before it opened in May last.

The attendance figures, however, reveal a considerable success story. Inside the first month, the 250,000th visitor had been recorded. At the half-way stage the figure was 400,000. Fifty places in the district had passed the half - million total before it registered. The Exhibition draws to a close, the attendance figure could well exceed 750,000.

Nor has it been only Ulster people who have flocked to the colorful 27-acre site in Botanic Gardens. Americans, Dutchmen, Germans, South Africans, Spanish and Russians were among the nationalities who passed through the entrance doors of an Exhibition that visitor after visitor described as a "real eyeopener".

The success of the Exhibition with children has been one of its outstanding features. Altogether more than 200 schools were represented in the parties which passed through the Exhibition Hall. In one day alone there were 30 school parties with their teachers. Schools in the Irish republic were also represented.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 29, 1971 . . .

Opposition Leaders' Future at Stake

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park

Perhaps few leaders ever really do quit politics and whole-hearted support from their party membership but there will be times when the division has been exceptional.

At the time of their conventions there were considerable segments of their parties which felt strongly that they were not the men to lead. And subsequently rather than dissipate, as had normally been expected, this feeling actually increased.

With the Liberals, at the start of the campaign you heard party people say they couldn't win with Nixon. And though the leader did put on a good performance, when it was over more than ever were they convinced that he just wasn't the man for them.

With the NDP a good many NDP'ers were blaming Lewis personally. They said that the public didn't trust him and just wouldn't vote for him and candidates he was selling.

Walter Pitman's people in Peterborough, however, refused to let defeat directly involve Lewis personally.

Will these feelings crystallise and grow? May they perhaps mellow as the party rank and file look back on the strong campaigns which each leader waged? Again, with any potentially bitter leaders come to the surface?

Time has to tell about these and various other questions. And with it the future of the two party leaderships and also, of course, to some degree the future of the parties themselves.

Smallwood Defeated By PCs

sume chasing the uncounted polls today.

Mr. Moores welcomed the outcome but said it was "fluid-cross" that the Liberals could possibly continue in office with a smaller share of the popular vote than the Conservatives. He said he felt whichever party formed the next government should "go to the people for a vote of confidence," meaning another general election.

If the final standings turned out as projected Thursday night the results would be closer than the 1970 Nova Scotia outcome and almost as tight as the 1966 Prince Edward Island election. The latter ended in a 15-15 tie and was not settled for two months, when a deferred election in one two-member riding gave Liberals the win.

The 1970 Nova Scotia election ended with the Liberals winning 23 seats, the PCs 21 and the NDP two, creating a minority situation for Premier Gerald Regan.

Mr. Burgess, a former Liberal and one of several Newfoundland politicians to switch party colors in recent years, could hold the balance of power in the next legislature if the final outcome is 21-20-1.

"I'm the guy that's going to call the shots," Mr. Burgess said in an interview from his campaign headquarters at Labrador City.

The "shots," he said, included new highways and other facilities for Labrador. The party which offered the best concessions to Labrador would get his support.

UIC Employee Richer For Cost-saving Idea

By BRIAN AMARON
Staff Reporter

Governments are not popularly known for their generosity but Mrs. Biruta Landins will have nothing but kind words to say about the authorities in Ottawa from now on.

Earlier this week she was the recipient of a $500 cheque which she won for her suggestion of a method of saving the Unemployment Insurance Commission money and facilitating quicker payment of claimant's benefits.

The prize compl under the federal government's Suggestion Award Plan, a scheme conceived to encourage employees in all government capacities to offer ideas "which would reduce cost, increase efficiency, improve effectiveness or improve service to the public."

Mrs. Landins' proposal was.

Frankford

FRANKFORD — An 85th birthday party to honor Rev. A. Carson was held on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Radford in Smithville. Rev. Carson, accompanied by Mrs. Carson, was greeted with congratulations from his daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Reynolds, Darla and Cheryl of Madoc, Mr. Carman Grass of Frankford and friends from Ballenia and vicinity.

she says, "a matter of common sense." It involved claimant's reporting forms which must be submitted every two weeks. The forms are actually computer cards and contain such information as periods of time worked, earnings, wage loss insurance, and activities during the period of unemployment.

Although a warning "Do not damage, mutilate or fold" is issued with the reporting form, the Belleville UIC office receives 2,000 cards each day which have been sufficiently damaged so as not to fit into the computer.

Part of Mrs. Landins job as supervisor of the key punch unit is to see that these cards are repunched. Her suggestion was to have the 24 girls avoid typing out the name of the claimant and thus save a few precious seconds. She estimates seven hours in punching time will be saved each day.

The name is required on the card for identification by the claimant. If he has previously filed a claim, however, his name will be recorded in the computer and therefore available for returning on the new card.

Now that Mrs. Landins' suggestion has been implemented, it is the computer that is doing the work and not the key punchers.

The estimated government saving is $4,100 but most of the benefits come from the expediting of payments which the time-saving device renders possible. The change has been implemented right across Canada.

The idea occurred to Mrs. Landins last February and was immediately put into practice at the UIC regional office in Belleville. She estimates seven hours in punching time will be saved each day.

Her first reaction upon hearing of the award was to "jump for joy. I was thrilled and so was my family". She was referring to her husband Vadins and son Edgar.

An immigrant to Canada in 1958 from her native home in Latvia, Mrs. Landins has been with UIC for seven years. She and her family came to Belleville when the head office moved here from Toronto two years ago.

She is undecided at the moment what to do with her but may put it toward a trip to Florida in February if her job permits. As supervisor, she is responsible for hiring and training key punch operators, maintaining control of the four payment systems used by UIC and keeping a lookout for errors.

The suggestion was the first ever submitted by Mrs. Landins but if her ideas could be assured of similar responses in the future, she might inspire a new generation of innovative government employees.

A Winner

Mrs. Biruta Landins displays one of the computer cards she revised which resulted in her winning a $500 jackpot under the federal government's Suggestion Award Plan.

NDP Planning Ahead

Many thinkers in political circles are claiming there will be a federal election by the spring and the New Democratic Party for Hastings has already started making its election plans.

The Hastings NDP Association is made up of several areas around the Bay of Quinte including Quinte, Hastings, Prince Edward-Lennox and Northumberland.

At a meeting members of the association set up their federal co-ordinating committee, and while no candidate has been made public, spokesman for the party claims "it is only a matter of a very short time."

This federal co-ordinating committee is responsible for the nominating of the official candidate and, on a provincial level is much the same as the nominating committee.

Eager to re-inforce the ground they covered in the past provincial election, the NDP spokesman claimed "we are getting stronger slowly and all must be done to ensure that this growth continues."

From the same committee setup, nominations will be heard for Prince Edward - Hastings riding.

Members of the NDP association claim for two reasons it will be the only wise move for the prime minister to make, to call an election before the winter following this one.

"With the unemployment situation critical, and the imposition of the U.S. surcharge on Canadian exports, it is probable that by that following winter (1972-73) the unemployment picture will get much worse," said Ian Reilly, spokesman for the party.

He could hold an election this spring, and while the memory of the winter works program is still fresh in the minds of the voters, he would have a stronger chance of winning," he said.

Experimentally tried last year, winter works programs are to be instituted by the federal government only on an expanded scale.

It is hoped through these programs that seasonal employment will relax the pressure on welfare and assistance funds.

Mr. Reilly and the NDP party do not say Trudeau's Liberals will win the election in the spring because of the winter works, but they do claim. "he won't stand a chance if he waits another year."

Forming the committee for NDP nomination is Ian Reilly as chairman, Hugh E. Jenny as treasurer, Lynne Gotfried as secretary.

A spokesman for the group claimed, "it will probably be sometime in the coming month that a candidate is announced for the two ridings.

Your'e leaning toward a compact this time but you need power for expressways...

Plymouth's got the answer.

VALIANT '72 DUSTER

Driving's not what it used to be...

Traffic is a lot heavier today, than a dozen years ago when the compact car was introduced. Merging with fast-moving expressway traffic takes power, not to mention nerve. But power was never really part of the compact idea. At least not until Plymouth came up with Valiant Duster—the compact that can pack plenty of punch.

Duster is the one compact that lets you pick your power to match the kind of roads and traffic you have to face. The standard Six is the 198 CID. If you need a little more, but want to stick with a Six for economy, you can get the big 225 cubic inch CID Six.

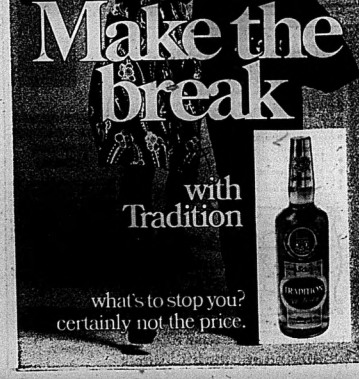
Duster also gives you a choice of V8's. The standard one is the 318 CID. And the top choice is the 340 CID.*

Bucket's more than just an engine option. It's a special model all by itself called—appropriately enough—Duster 340, and it includes special trim, heavy-duty suspension and floor-mounted shift.

The concept works better than ever

The compact car idea is more important today than it ever was. Perhaps that's why Duster and its running mates—the Valiant 4-door sedan and Valiant Scamp, a 2-door hardtop, are the top-selling compacts in Canada.

They'll seat 5 adults, carry their luggage and do it all economically. And most important of all, they fit into today's crowded streets and parking spaces.



Compacts made to order—at the right place

Before you make any decisions about a compact car, head for your local Plymouth dealer and check out all the Plymouth compacts: Valiant, Scamp, Duster and the new lower-priced Scamp special. Then sit down with a sales representative and figure out exactly what you need on your car in the way of optional or special equipment. He can tailor the car to your exact requirements. It's like having a car customer-made.

Medal of Merit Presented To Area Guide Commissioner

At a special after dinner program following the 14th annual dinner of the Quinte area Guiders (adult leaders of Girl Guides) Miss Eva M. Baker, area commissioner, was presented with a medal of merit awarded by the National Executive committee of the Girl Guides of Canada. The presentation, which was one of the highlights of the event which took place at Centennial Secondary School on Thursday night, was made by Mrs. D. E. Fox, commissioner for camping of the province of Ontario. Miss Baker is the second Guide leader in this area to be awarded this honor, the only other holder in Belleville is Mrs. Marion Heig.

The guest speaker at the dinner which was attended by over 230 Guiders from Napanee to Brighton and from Prince Edward to Peterborough was Mrs. D. E. Fox. The theme of her talk was based on changes in our society in general and how these changes have caught up with the Girl Guide movement.

She pointed out that the radical changes in present-day world were due to many causes, chief of which are, the concentration of people in large cities rather than in small communities, the tremendous strides made in technology during the last few decades, the increase of knowledge in every field, and the increased leisure time available to all.

She continued that these changes have permeated every aspect of our lives, including the Guide movement. Quoting some rules from the first handbook ever written for Guides, including the admonition to young ladies not to speak to strangers, Mrs. Fox asked her audience to imagine the reaction of the present-day Girl Guide to such an attitude.

Referring specifically to camping which is an integral part of every Guide's training, she advised Guiders to dispense with some of the outmoded camping programs, and above all to listen to the girls in their charge. She warned that this may not be easy since change is not people out of their comfortable ruts.

She stated that now a new set of camping badges have been instituted to replace the old ones and explained how these may be won. The first badge could be awarded to any girl after her first camp, provided she spends a minimum of six nights at the camp and the camp fulfills the requirements of the badge. The camp leader badge she said can be compared to the old camper badge but is not a duplicate of it. The wilderness camp badge is for the girl who can look after herself in the wilderness.

Touching on the new Ranger program for Rangers (girls between 14 and 18 years), Mrs. Fox said that there had been many protests because much of the red tape had been cut for Ranger camping. She said the program had been made more flexible, with much more left to the girls' own initiative, in the hope of making a more independent, responsible individual of the Ranger. She pointed out that the Ranger has to be a special type of girl and personally responsible, so it is not always necessary for them to be accompanied by a leader while in camp.

In conclusion Mrs. Fox referred to the writings of Mary Edgar, who at the age of 83 remains young in spirit. She challenged her audience to remain young like her, because Guiding is a youth movement and they are youth leaders, to retain their sense of humor, their desire to gain new knowledge, and to understand and communicate with young people.

Earlier, Miss Baker presented a long service award to Mrs. D. W. White, division commissioner, Peterborough. Mayor Russell Scott extended greetings to the guests on behalf of he City of Belleville and commended them for their work in moulding young people into good citizens. A message of greeting and appreciation were also given by Canon R. B. Wright on behalf of the clergy and by Arnold Welsh on behalf of the Scout movement.

At the end of the program, each of the four divisions presented a skit, pertaining to some aspect of Guiding. All four produced gales of laughter from the audience.

Surprise, Surprise!

Miss Eva Baker, area commissioner, exclaims in pleased surprise when she receives the medal of merit from Mrs. D. E. Fox, commissioner for camping of the province of Ontario. Awarded by the National Executive committee of the Girl Guides of Canada, the medal which recognizes exceptional service to the movement, was presented at the annual Quinte Guider's dinner at Centennial Secondary School on Thursday night.

Local WHA Represented

Representatives from 218 affiliated hospital auxiliaries across Ontario are meeting in Toronto this week. Topics for the workshops and panel discussions range from drugs to fund raising. More than 600 delegates are attending the three-day convention at the Royal York Hotel. In the picture Mrs. A. G. Edmunds of Palmerston, Ontario, president of the Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario, chats with Mrs. J. Nelles, right, of the Belleville General Hospital Auxiliary.

New Challenge for Volunteers

Extension of hospital services throughout the community will provide an exciting challenge to volunteer workers says Mrs. Charles K. Morningstar, new president of the Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario.

"Auxiliary members will have to adapt to new ideas and different methods as hospital services move outside the four walls into the community," she said.

Mrs. Morningstar told the Toronto Bureau of The Intelligencer in a special interview, involvement of hospitals in home care, meals on wheels, and social service programs will raise community standards.

She said the hospital services are needed in the community as patients are discharged earlier than in past years. People are sent home as soon as possible because the bed space is needed," she said.

"The program of hospital participation in the community is to prevent the discharged patient from having to adjust alone. Hospitals do not want to forget the patient," she continued.

The new president, who was elected Tuesday, said there are more than 62,000 members. Membership, particularly among the younger men and women of the community, is increasing rapidly, she said.

She said the auxiliary members, she calls them auxilians, provide transportation, entertainment such as concerts, games nights, and visits. Last year more than $2 million was raised by the volunteers to purchase additional hospital equipment not included in regular budgets.

Each of the 218 auxiliaries in Ontario follows programs established by professional people at the hospital.

Mrs. Morningstar and her husband, recently retired as general manager of the London, Ontario Transportation Commission, are active in community work. Mrs. Morningstar says her main lobby is transcribing Braille for secondary and university students in London. The couple have one son, Peter, a teacher.

Casual Elegance Is Note of Night and Day Fashion Show

In a tea room setting at the St. Joseph's Public School auditorium, McIntosh Brothers Store, Ltd. presented Night and Day Fashions which was sponsored by the St. Joseph's Catholic Women's League.

Not all the treats were on the tables, as the remarkable combination of elegance and a casual carefree lifestyle in the world of fashion was portrayed before a capacity audience.

Following a welcome by CWL president Mrs. Albert Eves, the buoyant mood of the show was established by Mrs. Peggy Loder who wheeled the child stars before the audience in the original pickle advertising display wagon.

The Douglas brothers, Greg, Bradley, Jeff and Larry, smartly attired in easy care wear for young men, were accompanied by young ladies, Sheila Morton in a gold hot pant skimmer; Mary Theresa Twiaish wearing knickers while Margo McNiosh chose a laced vest.

Modelling a full range of night and day wear Marie Bell, Arlene Granger, Elaine Douglas, Margaret Doyle, Joan Kruger, Nancy Soden, Denise Stansfield and Elaine Van de Water treated the fashion viewers to the mini, midi and maxi look.

Commentator Sheila Hush remarked that the bemline hassle has settled for at, or just below the knee for daytime wear and for the evening, ankle length. Background music was by the Doug Aselstine Trio.

At midpoint, aides showing lingerie and loungewear modelled by Peggy Loder, who also gave the commentary provided a break for the busy models.

Few in Liquor Stores

REGINA (CP) — Although Manitoba has just started hiring women to work as cashiers and clerks in liquor stores, Saskatchewan's liquor board appears a little more oriented to women's liberation.

Saskatchewan has employed women in liquor board stores for a number of years, said L. S. Moyer, board chairman. Four women are working in stores in Regina and Saskatoon and women are employed on a part-time basis in some country stores.

"The doors certainly aren't closed to women. It's just that we don't get many applications from women."

No Federal Law Broken in Guest Making Long Distance Calls

Dear Ann Landers: Give her advice or give us. I refer to your answer to the woman who lamented that her bill-saving guest used her phone to make 25 toll calls to relatives in Venezuela, Honolulu and Geneva, Switzerland.

It reaches phone companies very, but we have Southern Bell here in Dallas and it's a federal offence to "misuse" another person's phone. If the phone company can't collect from the person who received the call (they try), then the person who made the call is in big trouble. I don't think the federal government would have a law just for one state, so it must be nationwide.

When the drunk and cocktail party practical jokers (ha, ha, ha) find out that they are messing around with the Feds they quickly wait until they get home to make their long-distance calls.—Dial 9

Dear Dial: Sorry, Mr. Joe O'Brien of Illinois Bell in Chicago tells me that in this particular case, no federal law was broken. The person who made the call was an invited guest and there was no fraud involved. Ma Bell will not sue.

Ma Bell will do everything she can to help the host collect the cash, but they invest in time and documentation—pictures of the rude, discourteous wronged party written to testify legal proceedings. Ma Bell will not sue.

Dear Ann Landers: I have done quite a lot of babysitting and can't recall having invested as much time in any one person as I did in Mrs. Jones' two-year-old daughter. Of course, I'm glad I did it because she was the only one who fell into the habit of not paying me the night of the job because she never had anything smaller than a 20-dollar bill. Usually she paid me the next time, and although I didn't think it was fair I never said anything.

Three months ago I sat for this woman and she didn't pay me. My bill was $14.50. She said: "Next time." Well, the next time the bill was $4.00 and she didn't pay me then, either. I have not had a call from her since. I just found out that she is using another girl. I think this is unfair. How can a sitter protect herself against being taken advantage of in this way?—Beat Out By A Deadbeat

Dear Beat: Of course it's rotten. The way to protect yourself against such low-lifers is:

1. Make it clear when you accept a job that you would like to be paid that evening.

2. Bring along change for $10.

3. If you are not paid that night, tell her you will be back the next day—then go back the next day. If she doesn't pay you, open both the following day, and the day after, until you get paid. If you've been to make three trips to get your money, be busy the next time Mrs. Generosity asks you to sit.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 27 and about to marry a man who is 12 years my senior. The problem isn't his age, but his two daughters. They are 11 and 14. I know they hate me because they believe I broke up their mother's marriage. The marriage was dead when I came along. All I did was bury it.—

Harry is a wonderful person and I would go to the end of the earth for him. I am converting to his religion and I'm learning how to keep a Kosher kitchen so his mother can eat with us.

Please, April tell me how to win his daughters over?—Want It To Work

Dear Want To: Don't try too hard. Play it low-key, in time, if you give the girls a chance to get to know you—and if they see you are making their father happy, they may come around. It could take years, so be patient—and good luck.

Colorful Gelatine Salad Geared to Seasonal Produce

By ALICE DENHOFF

It's always the right time for a festive, colorful gelatine salad geared to seasonal produce. As a highlight for a family meal or as a centerpiece for a party luncheon, a gelatine salad provides an easy-to-do menu addition. Right for now, is:

APPLENUTBERRY SALAD

2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
½ cup cold water
2¼ cups cranberry juice cocktail, divided
¼ cup lemon juice
½ cup chopped pecans
2 cups chopped peeled apples
1 cup thinly sliced celery

Sprinkle gelatine over water in saucepan. Place over low heat and stir until gelatine dissolves, 2 to 3 minutes. Remove from heat; add sugar and stir until it dissolves. Add next 2 ingredients. Chill until the mixture is slightly thicker than the consistency of unbeaten egg whites.

Fold nuts, apple and celery into gelatine mixture. Turn into a 5-cup mold; chill until firm. Unmold.

Garnish with salad greens. Serves 6 and is a beauty.

CRANBERRY BONANZA SALAD

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
¼ cup sugar
1½ cups cranberry juice cocktail, divided
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup chopped unpeeled apple
½ cup chopped celery
1 pkg. (3 ounces) cream cheese
Finely chopped pecans (about ¼ cup)

Apple Dressing

Mix gelatine and sugar in saucepan. Stir in ¾ cup of the cranberry juice cocktail. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatine dissolves. Remove from heat; stir in remaining cranberry juice cocktail and lemon juice. Chill until slightly thicker than consistency of unbeaten egg white. Add chopped apple and celery. Cube cream cheese in ½-inch squares; roll into balls and then roll in finely chopped pecans. Fold gently into gelatine mixture. Turn into 5-cup mold or bowl. Chill until firm. Unmold. Garnish, if desired, with salad greens. Makes 6 servings, but recipe may be doubled and turned into a 6-cup mold or bowl. Salad is extra special with:

APPLE DRESSING

¼ cup applesauce
½ cup sour cream
½ cup salad dressing
1 teaspoon celery seed

Combine all ingredients; chill. Now, for something special for dieters:

DELICIOUS DIETERS' DESSERT

2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
2 cups low-calorie cranberry juice cocktail, divided
4 cups sliced tart apples
4 teaspoons non-nutritive sweetener
4 tablespoons lemon juice, divided
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon red food coloring
½ cup non-fat dry milk
½ cup ice water

Sprinkle gelatine over ½ cup cranberry juice cocktail in a 2-cup blender container; allow to soften while assembling other ingredients.

Heat remaining 1½ cups cranberry juice to boiling and pour into blender. Cover, process at low speed until gelatin is dissolved. (If gelatine granules cling to container, use a spatula to push them into the mixture.) Turn to high speed and add apple slices, sweetener, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, food coloring and nutmeg. Process until apples are pureed. Turn into large bowl and chill until mixture is cool when dropped from spoon.

Beat non-fat dry milk solids with ice water and remaining 2 tablespoon lemon juice until soft peaks form. Fold into cranberry mixture. Turn into a 5-cup mold. Chill until firm. Unmold to serve. Recipe yields 8 servings.

'Age Is A Quality of Mind:' Unknown Author

By DORIS CLARK

Age is a quality of mind.
If you have left your dreams behind,
If hope is lost;
If you no longer look ahead,
If your ambition's fires are dead —
Then you are old.
But if to life you give the best,
And if in life you keep the jest,
If love you hold,
No matter how the years go by,
No matter how the birthdays fly,
You are not old! — Author Unknown

Dear Doris: Is there anything I can do about the way my feelings change toward things? For one or two months I will feel great with my children, loving them very much and meeting their needs happily. Then all of a sudden I get off the track and can't seem to do anything right, can't discipline them right, or love them even.

They want so much the very best for them, but it doesn't seem to work. I feel very mad at myself at this time, which lasts for two or three months.

My childhood was very bad; father was, and is, an alcoholic. I had frightening experiences. Could this be the cause of my disrupted feelings? — Up and Down

Dear Up and Down: Most of us have mood swings, to some degree. Most of us can think of times when we are sitting on top of the world; other times when we are down in the dumps. An upsetting childhood doesn't help.

Usually we can make some connection between our situation and the way things are going for us, but then there are times when there seems no rhyme or reason to the changes. Might be related to physical well-being or fatigue, at times.

When you are depressed, worrying about it makes you more so. Roll with the punches; pamper yourself a little; get frequent changes to relieve the boredom of homemaking. You'll find that you can, after all, take a hand in changing those down to ups.

Dear Doris: You wrote, "Don't get sick; get creative." That is so true!

It was not funny what came to my mind when I was mentally ill, but the only cure that really did work well for me

HAPPIER LYING DOWN

wes to cry everything out, and when I was sure I would not do anything wrong. I would get up and take a pie or a cake. I would even be singing the blues away!

So, please, mentally ill patients, take your doctor's advice and do something creative to take your mind off yourself. — Mentally Well Balanced Now

Dear Well Balanced: Congratulations and thank you!

Do you wonder why the people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that stamped envelope.

Government Will Allow Sale of Supertest Ltd.

OTTAWA (CP) — The government cleared the sale of Canadian-owned Supertest Petroleum Corp. Ltd. to British-owned Imperial Oil Ltd. "in terms of the national interest," then decided against intervening.

Allen Sulatycky, parliamentary secretary to Energy Minister J. J. Greene, announced in the Commons late Thursday night the government's intention to stand aside.

The government told the companies earlier in the day that it did not intend to intervene in the planned merger.

The announcement came in the form of a reply to former NDP leader T. C. Douglas, who urged the government to retain under Canadian control part of the oil and gas distribution system in Canada before it was too late.

The British government has majority control of BP.

Mr. Douglas commended the government for stepping in last spring to prevent the sale of Home Oil Ltd. of Calgary, Canadian-owned producing oil company, to U.S. interests.

He gave Mr. Greene "full marks for the courage and vision" shown in blocking the Home Oil sale. The government at one point offered to buy control of Home Oil. It was purchased finally by Consumers' Gas Co. of Toronto.

In the case of Supertest, however, shareholders will meet Tuesday to discuss the merger, Mr. Douglas said. "This is Canada's last chance to get a bit of the action."

Mr. Sulatycky said Mr. Greene wrote to the two companies after they announced plans July 29 to merge, advising them of the government's desire to review the transaction "in terms of the national interest."

Senior officials of both companies met with government officials and studied "relevant material on the proposed takeover merger" before making a final report to the government about Oct. 7.

Mr. Sulatycky said the government will not intervene in the companies' plans, adding that both "have been advised of the importance attached to maintaining a fully competitive market."

The government is relying on assurances by the two firms that the merger "is likely to enhance this fair competition in the interest of the consumer."

Sharing Stops Monday

Trenton High School and Bayside Secondary have managed to share a number of facilities this season, but one thing they don't plan on sharing is the Bay of Quinte Junior football championship.

Because construction on the new Bayside school has not been completed, their students have been forced to share classroom and athletic facilities at Trenton.

But the Trenton junior footballers are in no mood for sharing the Bay of Quinte COSSA junior championship. Thursday they came up with a 21-20 decision over Napanee for a berth in Monday's title bout against Bayside, who defeated the previously unbeaten Moira Trojans 7-1 in the other semi-final series.

In a regular season meeting between the two clubs, Trenton emerged with a 5-8 victory.

The junior Tigers took a 25-14 lead to the dressing room at half time in their semi-finals bout, only to see Napanee narrow the margin to 25-20 before Trenton could add an insurance marker.

Spread Sought

The Blake Kerr Imperials hope to lay a high price spread of goals on the opposition this weekend, but it won't be easy.

The Belleville midget all - stars, who have won two exhibition contests in as many outings this season will meet Peterborough in a regular schedule game at the Belleville Memorial Arena Sunday. Last year Peterborough captured two of three meetings between the two teams.

'Fire One'

Quinte Curling Club publicity chairman Nev Burroughs gives the firing [illegible] Dave Brown to get things under way for another season. Action will begin for real Saturday with the Golf and Curling Bonspiels, while the season will be officially opened Monday with the Opening Mixed event. The Belleville club, which has been operating since 1957, has a current membership of 400.

Surface Changes in Evidence At Opening Quinte Spiel

By ERIC EMERSON
Sports Staff

On the surface, things will be a bit different at the Quinte Curling Club this season, the ice surface, that is.

Because of a problem with frost upheaval and loss of brine in the cooling system, the Belleville club has added 2¼" of foam insulation and an entire new system of pipes.

"Those were our two major problems," said club president Dave Brown of the upheaval and faulty cooling system. "Late in the season the surface would heave as much as 1½". The insulation should keep the ground from freezing under it, and prevent this problem."

One result of the new $30,000 installation is that local curlers will lose the slight advantage they held in open bonspiels. "Because of the uneven surface, it took awhile for players from out of town to adjust to it," admits publicity chairman Nev Burroughs.

The bonspiel schedule will get under way this weekend with the Golf and Curling club event to be held Saturday. Monday will mark the first open spiel as the Opening Mixed event commences at 5.30 p.m., with the finals taking place Saturday afternoon.

A total of 28 bonspiels are slated for this season in addition to a two - day competition Nov. 20 - 21st when officials from the American Grand National curling association and the Ontario Curling Association will compete in Belleville. The local rink is expected to be entered in the event.

The Quinte club is operating at capacity, as far as member ice concerned with 400 current active participants. The number includes an increase of 30 members from last season in the club, which has an approximate turnover of 25 per cent each year, because of members moving out of the area and new ones taking their place.

The breakdown on membership is 185 in the men's section, 145 competing in women's events, and 75 juniors. The junior membership is made up of Belleville's secondary school students, students from OSD and members of Loyalist College. The complete three days a week from 4.15 - 6.15 p.m.

Among the major bonspiels to be held this season are the Ladies Pepsi Bonspiel (Nov. 18), Mixed Open (Nov. 27), Carlings Men's Open (Jan. 8), Molsons Ladies (Jan. 22), Ladies Intelligencer (Feb. 5) and Bay of Quinte Men's (Feb. 25).

Quintes Have Duel Tonight

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Whatever the score of tonight's 9 o'clock Memorial Arena senior A hockey game between Belleville Quintes and Galt Hornets, it's going to be a goaltender's duel.

Sonny Pennington, who has been in the Galt nets since veteran "Boat" Hurley broke his ankle opening night, leads goalkeepers in the eight-team OHA Senior A league with a 2.20 goals-against average as the defending Allan Cup champions have permitted only 22 goals in seven games.

But their hosts have been no slouches defensively, either. Steve Rexe sports a 2.33 goals-against average as the Quints have given up 20 goals, fewest in the league.

The reason Rexe is not the league's leading goalkeeper is that the Quintes have played only six games in compiling their 4-2 record, with a game in hand over the league-leading (5-2) Hornets.

That game could loom large tonight. A win would give the Quintes first place, a rarity at any stage of the season for a Belleville entry.

One factor that has helped put the Quintes in second place has been their homeice performance. Going into tonight's game, the Quintes have recorded three wins in as many Memorial Arena appearances. Saturday night, the teams return to Galt.

In addition to Rexe, the Quintes have been getting some good production from their lineup, George Godson, Al Ferguson, and defenceman Greg Marchen are all included in the league's top 13 point-getters.

Queen Vic Kickers Number One

Queen Victoria's number one team was indeed, number one as the public school played host to the Junior Boys' Invitational Soccer Tournament yesterday.

The top Queen Vic's team went through four games undefeated to win the five-team tournament. Also competing in the event were teams from Stirling, Hillcrest, Queen Elizabeth and a second entry from Queen Victoria.

The champions set the tone for the tournament in the opening game as they blanked Hillcrest 5-0, getting a superb netminding effort from Ken Bonisteel and key goals by Bruce Bateman and Doug Campbell.

They scored their toughest win in the tourney's sixth game, when they managed to blank Stirling 3-0. It was the only loss for the tournament runners - up. Peter Hall counted two goals for Queen Victoria in that contest.

Seals' Goalie Comes Off Bench to Frustrate Bruins 2-0

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's possibly a little early to speculate, but if California Seals continue showing their amateur finds at National Hockey League opponents, they could find themselves suddenly in playoff contention.

Gilles Meloche, an unknown 21-year-old from Montreal, came off the bench Thursday night to blank the high-powered Boston Bruins 2-0 to stretch the Seals' win string to an unheard of three straight.

They now find themselves in unfamiliar fourth place in the West Division, tied with Philadelphia Flyers, each with eight points. The Flyers tripped Vancouver Canucks 3-2 in another game, while Minnesota North Stars extended their win streak to six, trimming Pittsburgh Penguins 2-0.

Saturday Detroit Red Wings visit Montreal Canadiens, Minnesota is in Toronto against the Maple Leafs, Pittsburgh entertains New York Rangers, Vancouver is at home to Buffalo Sabres, Los Angeles Kings entertain Chicago Black Hawks and Philadelphia is at St. Louis against the Blues.

Meloche had two previous NHL starts—both victories—with Chicago last year when they called him up on an emergency basis from Flint of the amateur International league.

The two earlier games in California's absence were played by Lyle Carter, the International League's outstanding player last year.

"The kid looked like he's been in the league 10 years," said Seals coach Vic Stasiuk. "He took the heart out of Boston."

"We had our scoring chances, ample chances," said Boston coach Tom Johnson of the slumping upset. "It's the first time I've seen the kid, but he looked for real."

The Bruins, who rattled in 399 goals during the 1970-71 campaign, continued to be dogged by rookie goaltenders. They ran up against a hot Ken Dryden in losing to Montreal in last year's Stanley Cup playoffs. Dryden, still a legitimate rookie, stopped them again early this season.

Goals by Norm Ferguson and Dick Redmond supported Meloche's heroics for the Seals, who finished last in the expansion division two years running.

The former goaltender for Verdun Maple Leafs of the Quebec Junior League turned aside 34 Boston shots, so frustrating the Bruins that as the game ended Bruins' superstar defenceman, Bobby Orr, got into a fight and team-mate Wayne Cashman had to be restrained from going after "referee Wally Harris.

Although he has yet to lose in the big leagues, Meloche doesn't sport credentials that make him a world beater. He had a 4-10-1 won-loss-tie mark at Pilot last year with a 3.35 goals-against average.

He was still Black Hawk property until a week ago when they shipped him to California to clear up an earlier trade that was voided when the Black Hawk goalie, Gerry Desjardins, was ruled medically unfit to play hockey.

Meloche stopped 15 Boston shots in the first period and declared his first stop off Bruin centre Phil Esposito "made me feel real good."

"As long as I stop the first shot, it's all clear after that," he said in a dressing room interview. "But I just do my best.

"I get the call-up, then I'm ready. I also try to grab a bit of shots in my pads to prevent rebounds," added the 21-year-old Meloche as the Seals became the first team to blank Boston since last Nov. 5.

Simon Nolet's second goal of the game snapped a 2-2 tie midway through the third period, enabling the hometown Flyers to keep a share of fourth in the West while preventing Vancouver from grabbing sole possession of fourth in the East.

Veteran Cesare Maniago weathered 35 Pittsburgh shots, leading Minnesota to within one point of Chicago's West Division leaders. Fred Goldsworthy and J. P. Parise supported Maniago's shutout, his second of the season and 13th career whitewashing.

Reed Leery

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I'm not discouraged yet," said Willis Reed. "But I sometimes get to the point where I wonder if it's worth it."

The New York Knicks' star centre appeared to be considering a premature retirement from basketball Thursday night.

Bothered by an increasingly painful knee, he said he contributed much less than 100 per cent this year to the Knicks' getaway in the National Basketball Association.

And Thursday night was no exception. Reed played 36 minutes but scored only three points and had six rebounds as New York defused Houston Rockets 113-94.

In the night's only other NBA game, Seattle SuperSonics whipped Buffalo Braves 106-96.

Ottawa Loses Shutout in Second

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Bryan McSheffrey scored four goals as Ottawa 67s defeated Peterborough Petes 7-1 Thursday night in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game.

Ottawa goaltender Bunny Larocque had his bid for a shutout when Petes Doug Gibson scored with one second to play. Larocque protested the goal saying the red light did not go on. He was assessed a 10-minute misconduct.

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Peterborough Petes traded defenceman Tom Thomson Thursday to Kitchener Rangers for that team's second-round midget draft choice.

Thomson, in his final year of Ontario Hockey Association Junior A play, was tied with Doug Gibson as Petes' top scorer. Both have 15 points.

He came to Peterborough last November with forward Paul Raymer in a trade with Toronto Marlboroughs. He asked to be traded to Kitchener because he was not getting enough ice time.

CORNWALL (CP) — Two goals by Blair McDonald and Yvon Blais led Cornwall Royals to a 3-1 victory over Verdun Maple Leafs in Quebec Junior A Hockey League action here Thursday night.

The Royals came from behind a two-goal deficit to score nine goals in a row before Verdun scored their third.

Gary McGregor, Gary Runnings, Bob Murray, Ron Smith and Brian McCullough scored the other Royal goals while Richard Grenier scored two for Verdun and Jules Blivin added another.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Sarnia Bees built a 4-1 lead in the first two periods and then hung on to defeat Windsor Spitfires 4-3 in a Southern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game here Thursday night.

Snow Bonus For Ski Team

MONTREAL (CP) — Nineteen members of the Canadian Alpine ski team vying for positions on Canada's 26-member team for the 1972 Winter Olympics in Sapporo, Japan, will get an early start on snow training at home this year.

In a statement released Thursday, a spokesman for the Canadian Alpine Ski team said the team is usually forced to begin early snow training in Europe or the United States but a $10,000 donation this week dumped three feet of snow on British Columbia's Whistler Mountain. Training will start there this Saturday.

The team will also be training for their first race of the season, to be held at St. Moritz, Switzerland, on Dec. 3.

Newcombe Netted

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash., powered his way into the men's semi-finals, and Yaveni John Newcombe fell before Elie Nastase of Romania Thursday in the $50,000 Embassy Tennis Tournament.

Gorman, the tournament dark-horse and last American survivor, rallied for a 3-6, 6-3, 6-3 triumph over Fred MacMillan of South Africa.

Newcombe, Australia's Wimbledon champion and No. 1 seed, went down before the long-haired Nastase 9-7, 6-3 in a turbulent match in which the Romanian constantly berated linesmen and spectators.

"I'm too good for these guys," the 24-year-old Nastase boasted after taking the final game without loss of a point.

Newcombe said he pulled a ligament in his right knee in the third game of the second set.

Gorman and Nastase were joined in the semi-finals by Bob Hewitt of South Africa, who scored over Ray Ruffels of Australia, 6-4, 6-2.

The remaining quarter-final duel matched Rod Laver of Australia, the game's leading money winner, with Cliff Drysdale of South Africa.

Did you say COLD DUCK? Is this a name for a good Canadian wine? It is. It's a name for a crazy blend of red and white sparkling wines. It's very, very pink. Very, very sparkling. It comes in a very champagne bottle. Chilled then opened, it won't stay long in the bottle.

Riders Helped by Hamilton

By STUART LAKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa Rough Riders didn't know Gerry Organ existed until they opened in Hamilton Tiger-Cats' new stadium Saturday night.

The big game to cover, understandably, caught players, coaches and fans tickled pink. Even sportsfolk who see the show from the stands, all this—along with a late surge by play-by-play — says the Ottawa press today of the Georgia University graduate.

Organ won the Rider kicking job from Ivan Mackenzie, now a Toronto Argonaut, mostly on his ability as a wide receiver. MacMillan wanted the best when he is not trying for converts or field goals.

The Rideau will be looking for another big performance from Organ Saturday against Montreal Alouettes. They must beat Montreal to get into the Eastern Football Conference playoffs.

Organ also will be gunning for the individual scoring championship of the East. He now has 73 points, 12 more than Hamilton's Tommy-Joe Coffey and 13 more than Montreal's Justin Canale.

In the other weekend game that marks the end of the regular IFC schedule, Hamilton is at Toronto.

Hamilton, Montreal and Ottawa are in contention for the last two playoff spots. Ottawa and Toronto wins would leave the Riders, the Alouettes and Tiger Cats tied behind the league champion Argos.

Gabler Leaves Alouette Camp

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes search for quarterback help for their all-important game against the Rough Riders in Ottawa Saturday received a blow.

Veteran Wally Gabler, dropped earlier this season by Eastern Football Conference Hamilton Tiger-Cats after previous seasons with Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Toronto Argonauts, left the Alouettes on Thursday in the midst of a five-day trial.

A club spokesman said Gabler had been ready—and the club was agreeable—to sign a contract. But Gabler asked that the option clause be deleted so he could become a free agent at the end of the season.

Did Mosca Forget Where He Was?

HAMILTON (CP) — Angelo Mosca, 34, all-star defensive lineman with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference, was charged with assault Thursday after an incident on a downtown street the previous night.

George Rose, 25, of nearby Waterdown, filed the charge after he suffered a bump on the head, a torn shirt and jacket in a scuffle.

The club maintained this was contrary to Canadian Football League regulations.

As a result Jim Leclair was scheduled to return here. He had been here earlier on a five day trial but left one week ago.

The Als have designated Sonny Wade as their starter against the Riders Saturday, and Gabler, if he had stayed, would have been backup man. Leclair now will assume that role.

Wade suffered a shoulder separation almost three weeks ago and has had trouble throwing the ball since. Rookie Allan Chasey suffered a dislocation of his left elbow here last Sunday as the Als dropped 19-18 decision to the Western Conference Bombers.

If that happened, the tie would be broken by the number of points each had scored against and gave up to the other club.

The scramble for playoff positions could end abruptly Saturday with a Montreal win. The Riders would be out and the Als and Tigers in.

"That's all we want, a chance to do it ourselves," says Ottawa coach Jack Gotta. Those team are coached not early in the year.

But the addition of former Edmonton Eskimo fullback Bob Houmard and Rick Cassata becoming No. 1 quarterback brought the Ottawa offence to life with a bang.

Quarterback Jim Chaney has an arm in a cast and is out for the season. Sonny Wade has a bad shoulder injury but is expected to start.

If he falters, the Als are expected to have Jim Leclair in the Wings. He once played for Montreal Beavers of the old Continental League after a brief fling with New York Giants of the U.S. National League.

Canada's best all-time placekicker, has a bad limp and centre Gene Ceppetelli is also on the limp.

But because of the importance of the game, all Montreal wounded, with the exception of Chasey, are expected to play.

Sport Briefs

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Quarterback Joe Kapp says he will "retire" from the New England Patriots' training camp this summer and did not walk out in a contract dispute.

"I'm not walking out," he said. "I walked out, but that's not true," Kapp said. "I was thrown out... I'm not walking out."

"The only reason I'm not playing football right now," the former National Football League commissioner Pete Rozelle is not allowing me to." he told a news conference.

Kapp said he signed a three-year contract with the Patriots in 1970 and was anticipating a routine playing with them, but Rozelle had interfered in his negotiations with New England's management.

He declined to elaborate, saying the case is in his lawyer's hands.

The NFL had asked him to sign a player's contract which he refused to do.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Bob Dickson held the first-round lead Thursday as golf's touring pros battled through the most severe weather conditions this season in the first round of the $135,000 Sahara Invitational.

Dickson, a former American and Canadian golfer, who is seeking his first pro title since 1968, emerged the leader with a brilliant, four-under-par 68 on the 7,143-yard Parade Valley Country Club course.

Lee Trevino, emerging from a slump that has dropped him since his victory at the American Canadian and British Open titles, this month, was two shots alone in second with a 69.

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Shadow Star, two-year-old son of Hoagy Hanover, came charging to the wire and breezed to a length and three-quarter victory over Jerry Hanover in Thursday night's non-betting pacing feature at Yonkers Raceway.

Time for the mile was 2:02.

Owned by Dr. George Boyce of London, Ont., and driven by Jack Kopas, the sixth Canadian-bred pacer picked up his 10th triumph in 18 starts and raised his earnings to $56,957.

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Le Bel, president of the Quebec Junior A Hockey League, handed out a total of $70 in fines Thursday to four players and ordered Laval National to post a $100 bond to keep the peace. Denis Gagnon of Sherbrooke Beavers received the largest fine, $25, for his conduct in the Laval-Sherbrooke game on Oct. 23 and also for having accumulated a total of four major penalties and two game misconducts since the beginning of the season. The Beavers have played 10 games.

Game Club Moves Meetings

By GEORGE H. CARVER

Tired of pillar - to - post activities to obtain a permanent locale for the regular club monthly meetings, directors of the Belleville District Fish and Game Club moved Tuesday night to hold future get-togethers in the spacious building of an east-end bayfront organization.

Previously meetings had been held in the building of the Royal Canadian Legion, Pinnacle Street.

Recently the club had been advised by the Legion management that future rentals would be high on an evening. This figure, president George Hammet told his directors, was beyond the financial limits of the club.

Director Ken Helm told the meeting he had been in touch with officials of Club HUNDOF 111 Bay Drive, and had reached an agreement which calls for a rental of $20 per month.

This figure, with other details, such as banquet night, etc., met with the approval of directors as a whole. Director Helm was given authority to enter into yearly contract negotiations with Club 21.

The first meeting there will be held on November 24. Plans call for meetings to be held on the second Tuesday of the month starting January, 1972.

The club will again, single-handed, operate hunting - dog pounds in the northern hunting areas of the district. Efforts to obtain financial assistance from the Eastern Central Ontario Sportsmen's Association's eight - club membership by mail, had elicited no response.

It was stated that pounds will be in operation at the home of Doug Donaldson, RR 1, Eldorado or Highway 13 at Hillsdale, phone 473-2741; Garry Twinde, Gunter, Ont., phone 474-3214 and John McLean, RR 1 Deloro, phone 332-3211. Where to establish another at Northbrook are under way.

"If we had the co-operation of the Lands and Forests Dept., and other clubs, we could operate twice as many pounds, "Director Helm told the meeting.

It was pointed out that the dog nuisance to the winter deer population is a serious one and a concerted effort by sportsmen's clubs with government aid, is necessary to reduce, if not entirely eliminate, the menace.

President Hammet said the club had purchased 1,000 canine identification neck-strips which will be given to hunters free of charge via sports shops and gun stores this week.

In appreciation, the directors honored Mr. Fred Hosking with a life membership for his co-operation in tiney shoots and a suitable gift and three club memberships to Glen Wardell for his club efforts.

Soft Spot No Cause to Worry

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son is 18½ months old and as yet his "soft spot" has not completely closed up.

When I asked our pediatrician about it, all he said was that we'll have to watch it. I couldn't get a direct answer from him and this alarms me. Should we be concerned?—Mrs. P. T.

At birth there are for fontanelles, or "soft spots," in a baby's skull. The skull, to begin with, is not a solid piece of bone, but forms in segments which later fuse together. The places where the bones will fuse are the "soft spots."

There is one on each side of the head, one in back and the largest one in front.

Those on the sides and back of the head close by about the second month, but the one in front, to which I am sure you refer, may not close until the 20th month.

So, no, I don't see any reason for you to be alarmed at this stage of the game.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When a person has leg cramps and has to get out of bed several times each night to walk them out, does it indicate faulty circulation? If so, can something be done to improve the circulation and should that provide at least some relief?—L. W. M.

It may indicate faulty circulation—and may not. Lack of calcium in the diet is another possibility. Faulty foot structure is another. Also excessive use of the muscles by exercise.

When poor circulation is the essential cause, medication often helps. So can exercises that stimulate circulation in the legs. In a few specialized cases, surgery sometimes is possible. Sometimes a combination of exercises and medication is the best answer.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Over a year ago I had a ganglion removed from my wrist. The surgeon said there was probably a 50-per-cent chance of its coming back in a year or so. It did, and I've had it removed again by another surgeon who said there was a 75-per-cent chance of return, and I should not have the operation again unless it was very necessary.

I would very much like to play tennis for another 20 years, but it seems this ganglion bit will interfere. Is there anything that can be done to prevent continuing growth?—G. B., F.

They told you the truth: there's a strong chance of a ganglion's recurring. A ganglion is a cyst or herniation in a tendon sheath.

There is no way of preventing recurrence, but usually a ganglion is not large, and I'm not clear as to why you feel it would prevent tennis.

Dear Doctor: You mentioned that potassium can be replaced in the form of a pleasant-tasting drink, but you forgot to mention what the drink is or what it contains. Please elaborate.—B. J. B.

I didn't forget. I didn't mention the name on purpose. There's no point in taking extra potassium unless you need it—and if your doctor sees that you need it, he will tell you what you need and how much. There are different ways of giving potassium, but the simplest and most pleasant is a fairly new product which comes in wafers that dissolve in water and taste something like lime pop. By "fairly new," I mean it has been in use for three or four years now, and by now is familiar to your doctor and others.

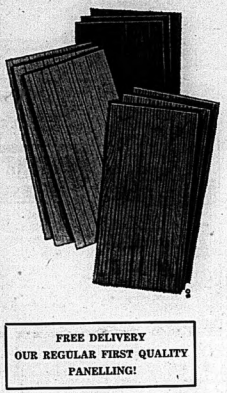
Paul Rose Trial Adjourned

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Rose's kidnapping trial was adjourned Thursday until Tuesday to allow him to complete testimony at the trial of Claude Morency, facing charges arising from a holdup in May, 1970.

Rose, 28-year-old former school teacher, made a brief appearance in Court of Queen's Bench at his own trial for kidnapping Pierre Laporte, late Quebec labor minister, last October.



He is serving a life sentence for the murder of Mr. Laporte, whose strangled body was found Oct. 18, 1970, in the trunk of a car parked at the nearby St. Hubert air base.

Morency is standing trial on charges arising from a holdup, including armed robbery, conspiracy and wearing a disguise.

Rose said he plotted and carried out the robbery along with Marc Carbonneau and Jacques Lanctot, two of seven persons flown to Cuba last Dec. 4 in exchange for the life of British envoy James (Jasper) Cross who was abducted from his Montreal home five days before the kidnapping of Mr. Laporte. The FLQ claimed responsibility for both kidnappings.

Labor Still Firmly Opposed To Price and Income Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — The president of the Canadian Labor Congress wanted to get one thing straight: "There's not been a damn thing to show we're softening up on controls."

Contrary to press speculation, organized labor in Canada is not prepared to discuss creation of the sort of price- and income-control system being tried in the United States, he said in an interview.

That said, Donald MacDonald, official voice of some 1.7-million organized workers in Canada, bit down on his pipe and disappeared briefly behind a cloud of smoke.

Mr. MacDonald has no doubts his stand is correct, that controls are unworkable and inequitable, and that the rest of organized labor in Canada is in agreement.

His position, however, appears to be the hard, leading edge of labor's response to the threat to the Canadian economy posed by U.S. initiatives.

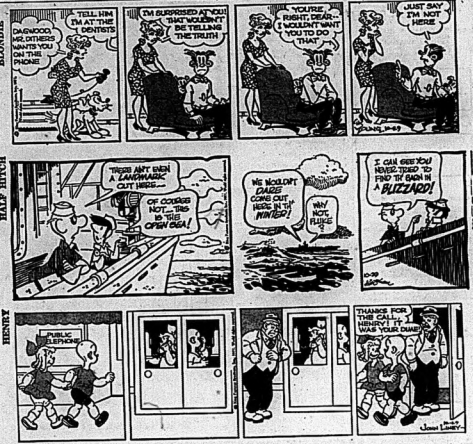
Other labor leaders opposed the idea of controls and they take comfort from the belief that the U.S. experiment is doomed to failure.

But they also agree Canada has to watch the U.S. developments and that it may be necessary eventually for labor, business and government to discuss survival measures.

This was suggested in a speech last week by the CLC executive secretary, William Dodge.

All elements of the economy may have to co-operate in a study of costs of production in Canada and agree on appropriate moves to keep down the prices of Canadian exports, he said.

Mike Rygus, the outspoken Canadian president of the International Association of Machinists, added in an interview that labor would not reject an invitation from the government to review national economic strategy.



"There's no question that if the U.S. measures do work they will have an impact on Canadian labor settlements," he said.

"But it would be the height of folly to be trapped into something and then find their program doesn't work."

The pressure on labor in Canada to take part in some form of wage restraint program has subsided from a 1970 peak when inflation was the main government concern.

Now the leading issue is unemployment and the CLC has been left free to continue its running attack on federal economic policies.

Still, the question of whether Canada should have an incomes policy has been sharpened by the measures adopted by President Nixon.

U.S. Tax Shows Independence of Canadian Branches of Unions

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian spokesmen of the North American union movement tend to skirt the subject when it is suggested that United States action in the interprovincial struggle ties between labor in the two countries.

At best, there is the reply that nothing has shown better the independence of international unions in Canada than their response to the 10-per-cent surcharge on imports into the U.S. announced Aug. 15 by President Richard Nixon.

The surcharge won at least tacit approval from a number of U.S. unions, and few unions, if any, have opposed it.

The Canadian Labor Congress —with a majority of the workers it represents being members of the International, U.S.-based unions—has meanwhile denounced the surcharge as short-sighted and reactionary.

"If the international unions were as monolithic as people say they are that stand shouldn't have been possible,"

CLC President Donald MacDonald argued in an interview this week.

But Mr. MacDonald couldn't say what might happen to the position of the international unions in Canada if U.S. labor supported protectionist policies through a second four-year term as president for Mr.

If there is to be a growing strain on across-the-border labor relationships, it comes at a critical time for international unions in Canada.

They long have been accustomed to the suspicions of middle-class Canadian nationalists. More recently, the challenge has come from members who feel the internationals are too big and only secondarily interested in Canadian needs.

Inroads have been made by converts to the nationalist Waffle wing of the New Democratic Party.

A demand that Canadian unions have greater independence from their U.S. parents won a favorable hearing at the 1970 convention of the CLC and it will be repeated next week in Toronto at the annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Labor.

Alberta Unhappy

Tax Reform Delay Is Asked

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta will ask for a one-year delay in the federal government's proposed tax reform bill, Premier Peter Lougheed said Thursday.

Mr. Lougheed told the Alberta Urban Municipalities Association the province will get less benefit from the tax reforms than any other province.

However, Mr. Lougheed said, Alberta may be forced to accept the income tax bill—with all its inequities—to avoid the expense of collecting its own income tax.

The premier said he will attend a meeting of finance ministers in Ottawa Nov. 1-2 and a meeting of the 10 premiers with Prime Minister Trudeau in Ottawa Nov. 15-17.

Turkeys Bought for Poor

OTTAWA (CP) — Turkey breeders are the first to benefit from government plans to offset the adverse effects of United States trade restrictions on exports of some agricultural goods.

And, informants say, egg producers will be next.

Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson announced in the Commons Thursday that 3.6 million pounds of turkey will be bought by the government at prices between 33 and 40 cents a pound.

The freshly-killed, gutted birds will be purchased by his department's agricultural products board, canned and given to the world food program run by the United Nations.

Purchase details followed announcement by Mr. Olson Oct. 12 that turkey producers would be given "some form of aid because the 15-per-cent U.S. surcharge on dutiable imports made preceded Canadian turkeys harder to sell on the American market.

All Jurors Now Chosen

KINGSTON (CP) — The final three jurors of a 13-man Supreme Court of Ontario jury were selected Thursday in the trial of 13 Kingston Penitentiary prisoners charged with non-capital murder in the deaths of two fellow prisoners.

Brian Ensor, 26, and Bertrand Robert, 34, were killed during riots at the penitentiary last April.

Mr. Justice William Henderson told the jurors the trial will be one of the most complicated ever held in Canada and that their task "will be a long and tedious one."

What the Stars Say

General guide — Except for the wee small hours this a.m., the moon is void of course, making no major aspects for the day. Positioned in Pisces, this lunar influence adds an extra amount of confusion and deception in the interpretativity of this condition. Don't count on anything going out right.

Aries (March 21—April 19). It's a false sense of security that's allaying your immediate worries. Particularly if a family tie is promising to help, watch your step. Even kin can't be trusted.

Taurus (April 20—May 20). Be careful with a sweet-tempered, compliant buddy today. Under that soft exterior is a will of steel, so keep alert to any signs of disagreement.

Gemini (May 21 — June 21). Ambitions to play the angel of deliverance in a crisis, either public or personal, are foolhardy. Don't stick your neck out for anyone but yourself.

Cancer (June 22— July 22). Turning to spiritual sources may provide some mental comfort, but that's a bout all. Heaven always answers prayers — today the reply is "No."

Leo (July 23 — Aug. 22). You can be cornered by mate or allies and forced to listen to a long tale of woe, mostly involving money. Don't be pressured into granting loans, especially to relatives.

Virgo (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22). Don't do anything out of the ordinary that could jeopardize the Folks are liable to react negatively to any change in your conservative image.

Libra (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22). You won't be able to sharpen a pencil today without fouling up the job. Leave all but the most simple and routine tasks to more efficient co-workers.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 —A Nov. 21). Youngsters, loved ones can provide a few emergencies and a whole set of new worries today. Upsetting influences are temporary, so keep a grip on your tongue.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22—Dec. 21). You could find your domestic peace invaded by a few unwelcome visitors. Get rid of troublemakers fast, or you could waste the entire evening in boring conversation.

Capricorn (Dec. 22—Jan. 19). There could be considerable confusion over messages, calls, schedules. If action can be delayed until tomorrow, you'll save yourself a lot of backtracking.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18). Avoid all but the most necessary expenditures today. Cash and accounts are in a disorderly state and you could easily spend what you don't have.

Pisces (Feb. 19—March 20). Be very careful with your words now as you're apt to misrepresent the facts to partners and cause no end of trouble as a result. Be objective.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY — Present expectations and plans for the coming year are due for drastic revision; in some cases projects could be likely abandoned. Romantic alliances are affected the most.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. Jay Becker

(Top Record-Holder in Masters' Individual Championship Play)

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
1♣	1♠	Pass	7

What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠ Q863 ♥ AK864 ♦ KJ6 ♣ A9
2. ♠ J98 ♥ AJ72 ♦ KJ963 ♣ K8
3. ♠ 7 ♥ 98 ♦ AKQJ73 ♣ KJ9
4. ♠ KQ86 ♥ AJ963 ♦ Q4 ♣ 9
5. ♠ QJ2 ♥ Q97 ♦ KJ85 ♣ AQ5

1. Four spades. 2. North's spade bid is an overcall, not an opening bid, and more often than not he found that North has less than opening bid values. Generally speaking, an overcall rests more on playing tricks than high-card values.

But even though it is true that North may have as few as 8 high-card points (and as many as 14) for his spade bid, the fact remains that he is unlikely to lose four tricks and the jump-raise to game is therefore clearly indicated. There would not be much point to bidding hearts or engaging in any other form of gymnastics. Simplest is best.

3. Two spades. North can hardly be expected to make ten tricks; the raise is offered chiefly for preemptive purposes. It would be improper to bid two diamonds, for the introduction of a new suit in these circumstances tends to deny another trump and could easily lead to the wrong contract.

4. Three notrump. No guarantees go with this bid, for there is an obvious danger in hearts, but three notrump is nevertheless a huge favorite to come home safely. You don't need a 100 per cent shot for game to bid it.

4. Three spades. Whether you can make game depends on the size of partner's overcall, and since there is no way to judge this without consulting partner you should merely invite him to go on instead of bidding game all by yourself. The hearts should not be mentioned at all.

5. Two notrump. Here also you must rely on partner to judge the chance for game, since he is looking at his hand and knows whether his overcall was based on minimum, medium, or maximum values.

The jump to two notrump is generally based on 14 points, give or take a point, and merely invites game. It shows balanced distribution and all-around strength, with special emphasis on the opponent's suit. It is a picture bid that pinpoints both high-card values and balanced distribution, and thus places the decision on how far to go right where it belongs—in partner's lap.

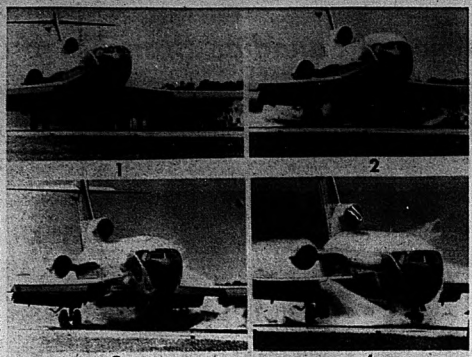
Youth Report Study Grows



MONTREAL (CP) — The government's much-maligned youth report is coming into its own as an important focus for public discussion of the problems of youth, Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier said Thursday.

"I am encouraged to see signs that indicate the public has not been fooled by newspaper columns and the headlines," Mr. Pelletier told a service club audience.

"Indications are that people, especially those who have read the report, are beginning to see it as a most important vehicle to understanding the "youth phenomenon in Canadian society."

The signs include a recent petition from 12,000 Quebec students asking the government to establish a social agency similar to one recommended by the three-man youth committee which made the report.

Another indication, the minister said, is the active interest shown in the report by churches, youth organizations and social agencies.

Landing Sequence

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the U.S. Force have begun a joint research program on Wallops Island, Va., to evaluate methods for measuring runway slipperiness at military and civilian airports. They hope to improve techniques for estimating aircraft performance on runways that become slippery when wet. Sequence shows a Boeing 727 landing on a test section of the runway. (CP Photo)

Credit Unions, Co-ops Get Better Tax Break

OTTAWA (CP) — The government bent, further Thursday under heavy criticism of its treatment of co-operatives and credit unions in its tax-change bill.

For the second time since the Commons began committee scrutiny of the bill Oct. 13 Finance Minister E. J. Benson presented a large set of proposed government amendments.

Most of the amendments consisted of technical repairs—as they did the first time around—with the exception both times of concessions to credit unions and co-operatives.

Since debate began on the 707-page bill, government backbenchers have joined spokesmen from the other three parties in maintaining that the bill would cause credit unions, co-operatives and their eight million members undue hardship.

In his proposed amendments, Mr. Benson has responded both by backing off to a degree on the original proposed changes and by giving the credit unions and co-operatives more time to adjust to the changes that remain.

This time, Mr. Benson rejected to the criticism that the self-help institutions could not take advantage of the reduced rate of tax proposed for the first $50,000 of a small, private corporation's earnings.

That reduced rate—25 per cent instead of the general corporation rate that would gradually be lowered to 46 per cent under the bill —would be allowed on the first $50,000 of taxable income annually until a private Canadian company had accumulated $400,000 of taxable income.

But ordinary corporations would be able to extend their use of the low rate by paying regular dividends to shareholders each year. For every $1 in dividends they paid out, their accumulated taxable income at the low rate would be reduced by $4.

Co-operatives and credit unions have complained that they would have trouble extending the low rate because they are limited in the amount of dividends they can pay out by provincial cash-reserve regulations.

One of Mr. Benson's amendments would ease this problem by counting only half the taxable earnings up to $50,000 of a co-operative or credit union towards the $400,000 limit.

For example, a credit union with steady taxable income of $50,000 would get the reduced rate for 15 years—accumulating towards the $400,000 at $25,000 a year—whereas a private corporation would reach its limit in eight years.

The second concession to co-operatives and credit unions tabled Thursday involves a formula whereby they would be given a 10-year period to adjust to the increase in their level of taxes.

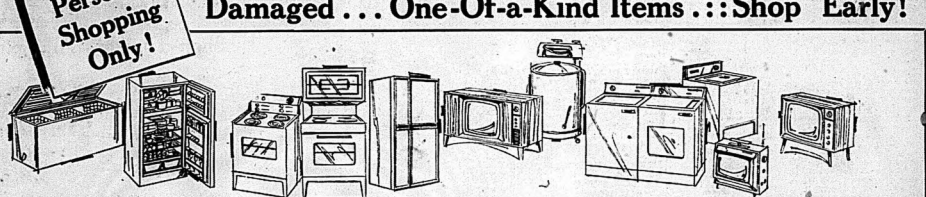
Under the formula, one-tenth of the tax-rate increases they face would be introduced over each of the next 10 years.

Amendments introduced Oct. 13 by Mr. Benson were designed to allow co-operatives to pay out more patronage dividends to members than would be allowed under the original bill without the dividends and rebates losing their tax-deductible status.

Stanfield Believes PCs Can Win Vote

FREDERICTON (CP) — National Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Thursday he is convinced his party can defeat the Trudeau government in a federal election.

Mr. Stanfield told a news conference the latest Gallup Poll, released earlier this month, showed a "strong downward trend" in the government's popularity and he feels it has since dropped further because of the economy and unemployment.



"I'm now convinced that not only can the Trudeau government be beaten but our party can do it . . . it's there for us to take."

SNOWMOBILE SECTION

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1971

It's Snowmobile TIME!

ENJOY HEALTHY - HAPPY FUN IN OUR GREAT WINTER WONDERLAND

Survey Shows Snowmobilers Prefer Wood Trails to Roadways and Flat Terrain

Samplings in a recent survey show snowmobiling families prefer wooded trails, hilly-like roads and flat terrain.

The survey, undertaken by Bruce Reain in co-operation with the Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs, was recently published in the Canadian Snowmobiler.

Mr. Reain reports:

Today in Ontario, participating in outdoor winter recreation is increasing profoundly due to the invention of the snowmobile as a recreational machine. The snowmobile has opened a new world, a winter wonderland, to the thousands who could not visit and enjoy it before. Winters in Ontario are cold, long and for so many, a time to stay indoors away from the blowing snow and harsh winds. But not so anymore. Today the snowmobile family will face cold temperatures, the strong and cold north gales and other hazards, in order to get out and enjoy their snowmobile. In fact, a snowmobile can cover as much country in an hour as a well-conditioned snowshoer can travel in a day.

It is estimated that there are 160,000 snowmobiles registered in our province and one of the reasons for the tremendous growth of the sport, aside from the pure fun aspect, is the organization and growth of snowmobile clubs and the Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs.

This past winter, in co-operation with the OFSC, I studied the use patterns and preferences of over 300 snowmobile families in Ontario. The purpose of the study was threefold; first to determine which types of landscapes, vegetative and man-made facilities are found at the area or trails where you snowmobile most often; secondly, to determine which characteristics you prefer to have or dislike to have at your snowmobile area; and thirdly, what the average snowmobiler is like.

We refer to snowmobile area as being the land, road, trail etc. that you travel over while on your snowmobile. It could be a lake or an open field and it can be owned by yourself, a snowmobile club, a private individual (other than yourself) or by the public or government.

Within the sample of 311 families, we can see significant patterns such as — the physical landscape characteristics found by the majority of those questioned, consisted of snowmobile areas of hilly, wooded terrain made up of both coniferous and deciduous trees. If there were man-made facilities within your snowmobile area then it appears that the majority had used marked trails and a clubhouse.

The sample families indicated strong preferences for wooded trails and even a mixture of open fields and wooded trails. In contrast they showed a strong dislike for using roads and flat terrain.

With regard to vegetation, it appears that our sample has no strong preferences for either coniferous or deciduous trees, but they strongly dislike shrubs which are growing within their snowmobile-use zone. A small indication was shown for preferring a sparse mixture of coniferous and deciduous trees which should not hamper easy snowmobile movement through a bush.

In choosing man-made facilities, the sample strongly preferred groomed and marked trails which incidentally is already being provided by a few snowmobile clubs and commercial areas in Ontario and they showed no preference for any type of motel lodging being located near their snowmobile club or area, which is a result of fact that most snowmobilers stay close to home and have no need of overnight accommodation. In fact only 40 percent of those questioned ever trailer their snowmobile from their home to suitable snowmobile areas. Therefore the majority have easy access to open areas or wooded areas literally at their doorstep. This explains the fact that the questioned snowmobilers spent an average of 44 days snowmobiling last year, of which 70 percent occurs on weekends (Friday night through to Sunday).

My sample showed that the average snowmobile family is four in number and they snowmobile in a group of two or more snowmobiles. They use their snowmobile for recreation and pleasure 97 per cent of the time and the remaining time it mostly is used for transportation purposes.

The snowmobilers were asked to describe anything that annoys them while they are out snowmobiling and the greatest annoyance was fences, especially barb-wire fences. Other annoyances were low-lying tree branches, stones, open water and reckless snowmobile operators.

It is important to note that this summary is only part of a larger study which will be completed in the near future and that the conclusions shown here are the consensus of only 311 snowmobile families in Ontario.

Clarence Bird and Winter Helper

Snowmobiles Ease Job For Assessors in Winter

Snowmobiling is a serious business for at least one group of men in the Quinte district. They are the provincial government now deep in the drifts of reassessing all property values in the area.

It's a year-round job — which means in winter surveying many a snow - buried farm or rural property. Particularly difficult — even hazardous — to reach are the lakeshore vacation centres and cottages which dot the Quinte northland.

Without the sturdy snowmobile such trips would be an impossibility, says Clarence Bird, co-ordinator for residential and farm assessment, whose Belleville office is centralizing a sprawling nine-county work area reaching as far north as Haliburton County.

Mr. Bird still does quite a bit of field work himself and he finds a snowmobile an invaluable tool.

"They come in pretty handy in the remote areas — like summer cottages, hunting camps and vacant farms that didn't have access to roads in winter," he says.

He isn't alone in his use of the snow machine. Assessors working out of offices in the Quinte northlands "use them quite a bit," says Mr. Bird.

To avoid mishaps — such as mechanical breakdowns which could leave an official marooned miles from anywhere in the wintry landscape, assessors travel in pairs on such northern expeditions, says the co-ordinator.

So far, however, such trips have been without incident.

Being able to use snowmobiles, the reassessment project doesn't lose so many work hours in winter.

In fact, the winter "doesn't bother us. We can go anywhere," says Mr. Bird.

Dealers Are Divided On Sales Prospects

Will the 1971-72 season continue the boom sales enjoyed by snowmobile dealers in past years?

In the Quinte area — where the weather's still sunny and flowers still blooming — the first snowfall of winter may determine the answer.

"It's a little early. We have to wait until the first snowflakes hit the ground," said one Belleville salesman.

Others, however, are looking forward to good sales times.

A Deseronto dealer said the boom seemed to be holding and sales were running about the same as last year.

Purchase of second — and even third — machines — was a factor, he said.

"There's a lot more fun for the family if you have more than one machine," he added.

However, one Belleville dealer predicted sales would be half of those last year, with more trade-ins in evidence.

Another believed the boom may be about to taper off.

Last year, he said, he had sold up to 48 machines in July and August. So far this year, he's sold one.

Also, he added, some bank managers have told him they've only been asked to finance three or four machines so far this year — compared to 20 or 25 last year.

Other dealers are more optimistic.

"It looks like another good year," said a dealer north of Belleville.

Another Belleville dealer agrees.

"It looks to me like another good year," he says. "Already I've quite a number of layaways."

He looked forward to purchases of more expensive snowmobile clothing also, as purchasers seem to be moving up into better and costlier machines.

"It's a backward season as yet. But once you see the first snowflake out there, it will make all the difference in the world."

Winter Wonderland

Three Races Planned

PICTON (Staff) — The snowmobile hits its stride — full out — at Picton again this winter.

Snowmobile racing suddenly blossomed in mid - winter popularity here last year and drew scores of entries from enthusiasts over a wide area.

This winter, says Archie Kingma, chairman of the organization, three events are planned.

The first will be held Dec. 19; the second during the town's snow carnival during the last week in January, and the third near the end of February, at the Prince Edward County Fairgrounds.

One of the events could be a cross-country race, in conjunction with the carnival.

However, there is a change in sponsorship of the races this year — from the county Chamber of Commerce to the Prince Edward Racing Club.

Winter Fun

Although a motor helps, you don't have to be mechanized to enjoy winter. Pre - snowmobilers can have a good time outdoors on the many slopes in the Quinte area. A sled, toboggan, flying saucer or even a piece of cardboard will provide many hours of fresh air fun.

Find out how much fun winter can be. Ever hear of moonlight trail rides, winter picnics, ski-joring, scenic snow cruises? Ask a snowmobiling family what fun is and that's the answer you'll get. We can put you in the winter action scene on one of four Merc snowmobiles; new 25 hp Rocket, new 30 hp Lightning, 29 hp Merc 200 and luxurious 25 hp Merc 250. Code of Snowmobiler Concerned with Safety

Safety is as crucial a factor in snowmobiling as in few other sports.

Any sensible snowmobiler has his own safety code, which might be enumerated something like this:

1. When planning extended trips, I will prepare a route-plan with an estimated time of return. I will give this information to a responsible person. When travelling on Provincial or Federally owned lands I will check in and check out with the park officials or ranger station.

2. When making extended trips, I will carry emergency equipment (snowshoes or skis, flares, towline, waterproof matches, emergency food supply, extra fuel, compass and map). I will avoid travelling alone in remote areas.

3. I will not cross or travel on frozen lakes and streams until the ice is thick enough to support the weight of my snowmobile and passengers. When traveling in new areas, I will seek advice on ice conditions.

4. I will keep myself physically fit for winter sports.

5. I will always carry a first aid kit.

6. I will wear proper winter clothing and protective glasses or goggles.

7. I will know the weather forecast. When the weather turns bad, I will turn back.

8. I will keep my snowmobile in good operating condition.

9. I will always carry a tool kit.

10. I will stay on marked trails or marked roads open to snowmobiles. I will avoid cross country travel unless specifically authorized.

11. I will use my snowmobile only for transportation when hunting. My rifle will be encased whenever I am aboard my snowmobile if local regulations allow encased rifles aboard snowmobiles.

"And here's another thing. If you need a wheel alignment you are already paying a high price . . . In rapid tire wear. How can you tell if you need an alignment? The fact is every car needs a wheel alignment from time to time. Normal driving conditions put wheels out of true alignment.

Common Sense, Maintenance Both Vital

Snowmobiling safety can be easily achieved, if all common-sense cautions are followed.

Here are some tips:

Don't tail-gate. Avoid injury to yourself, to others, and to your machine by maintaining a safe interval between you and the vehicle in front, and handling your snowmobile at a sane, 'stoppable' speed.

Here's trouble. Don't cut across another's right of way. If in doubt, throttle down or stop altogether. Carelessness pays no dividends. Watch out for the other guy.

Knowing ice conditions on any lake or river is a must. Don't attempt to cross before checking the thickness of the ice. Your life may depend on it. This problem is the biggest known cause of snowmobiling fatalities. Ask people acquainted with an area whether the ice is safe before taking your machine on it.

Never use a railroad right of way for snowmobile travel. You cannot hear trains approaching from behind and could run head on into a train on a curve. When crossing railroad tracks, the rules are similar to crossing a highway. Shut off your machine before crossing so that you can hear an approaching train. Cross at a 90 degree angle.

Never jump a snowbank before first finding out what may be on the other side. You may be jumping into the path of another snowmobile, onto a group of playing children, or into the middle of a highway.

Don't be a show off. Excessive speed threatens others, can result in an over-turned machine with accompanying risk of personal injury.

Snowmobiling brings many new winter freedoms. Damaging private property is not one of them. Don't cut fences or trample shrubs. Get permission to use private property for snowmobiling.

A snowmobile is as safe as the person operating it. The key to safe operation is your knowledge of the vehicle, good judgment, and courtesy. Many of the do's not forth are self-evident.

Do use a tow-bar when pulling a trailer. Rigid hitches prevent tailgate collisions on sudden stops, provide better control on turns, prevent risky trailer side-sway.

Nighttime snowmobiling is delightful. But reduced visibility makes it imperative you do check your lights before starting. (Don't depend on that moon!) Avoid river and lake crossings at night and don't break new trails. Follow marked trails to keep clear of barbwire fences and guy wires. A majority of snowmobile accidents occur at night.

Come to a complete stop before crossing any street or highway where it's permitted. Cross only at a 90 degree angle to the roadway, and remember that traffic always has the right of way.

If you are traveling with a companion, it is always added safety insurance to have one person watch for traffic while the other person crosses with the snowmobile.

Motor Sleds Rescue Many

Snowmobiles sometimes involved in mishaps — some fatal— have also played their part in possibly saving life in the Quinte area.

The dependability of the rugged little sports machine as an emergency vehicle is recognized by both ambulance companies serving the Belleville area centralized Emergency Help Service, operated by the provincial government.

Already it has proved its worth on several occasions.

Robert Howell of City Ambulance, says his company, while it doesn't keep a snowmobile, recognizes their worth. If one is needed, arrangements are made with a snowmobile owner in the area of an emergency to rendezvous with an ambulance.

That was how it worked during one of last winter's many bitter snow storms, when a man in a rural township north of Belleville took a heart seizure. The road into his home was inaccessible by regular vehicles.

Ambulance operators used the snowmobile to convey the man to the ambulance and rush him to hospital.

Stu Meeks, of LaSalle Ambulance, says his company keeps a snow vehicle — complete with trailer equipped as a heated tent — on standby in winter.

The equipment was "used quite often" last winter in answering emergency calls across the Bay of Quinte into Prince Edward County — an area well known for its heavy winter storms which can quickly plug country roads.

Distributors' Association Established

TORONTO — A new organization to safeguard the safety and welfare of the snowmobiler has been formed in Ontario.

It is the Ontario Snowmobile Distributors Association, and is made up of the companies who manufacture and distribute more than 20 leading brands of snowmobiles, including all of the big names in the snowmobile business.

The new association has been formed to serve the best interest of all groups concerned with snowmobiling, including snowmobile owners and operators, equipment manufacturers, distributors and dealers, and the public at large.

Its first objective is to establish close relationships with federal and provincial governments and with snowmobile research, safety and educational organizations.

Elected President of the association is Tom McAleese of Massey Ferguson Ltd. Vice-president and chairman of the Safety Committee is Ed Murphy of Outboard Marine Corporation, with Bruce Graham of Ontario Moto Ski as secretary.

"We are all naturally opposed to the snowmobiling minority who cause annoyance and damage, and are responsible for the majority of accidents," declared president McAleese. "However the member companies of the association have a direct and vital interest in any activities detrimental to the pleasures of snowmobiling. Obviously such activities will eventually effect the future sale of snowmobiles. We have, therefore, formed this association to develop effective programs promoting safety where snowmobiles are concerned, and to support and give leadership to other groups with similar objectives."

Safe Snowmobiling Just Plain Sense

Starting a snowmobile is simple enough.

Keeping it running — and safely so — can be a more complicated process.

The secret is maintenance, and commonsense.

For instance:

1. Know your snowmobile. Keep it well - maintained. In thawing weather clear the track of slush by lifting machine free of the ground and spinning track. Regular checks with your dealer are a good investment.

2. Another reminder — snowmobiling on ice can be hazardous. Never cross a lake or stream without first knowing the ice condition. Moving water thins the ice from below. Make sure it can support both you and your snowmobile.

3. On safari, always travel with others. Do not attempt a long trip that may be beyond your capacity. Always let others know your destination and expected arrival time. Carry emergency supplies — flares, snowshoes, first aid kit, a map, an axe, extra fuel, waterproof matches, and rations. As in swimming safety, use the "buddy system."

4. Join your local snowmobile club. Learn everything you need to know from experts.

5. Liquor and snowmobiling are a poor mix. Leave the former alone.

6. The second biggest known cause of snowmobiling fatalities is collisions with cars, while collisions with other snowmobiles have produced many injuries. Caution, common sense, and courtesy can eliminate a majority of these accidents. Practice these three C's.

7. The most common cause of snowmobiling injuries is unknown terrain. Following marked trails is the best way to avoid this problem.

Millions Of Acres Available

There are millions of acres open to snowmobile fun: Summer cottage property; family owned land; ski and winter resorts. You won't have to look far.

The most obvious areas are lands you or your friends might own. If they are snow cruising enthusiasts, you can bet they'd enjoy company. If not, you can swap a few free rides in exchange for using their property. You don't need hundreds of acres. Your own "private track" can be laid out to make the best of even small areas.

Summer cottage owners have a ready-made snowmobile playground. You can leave your snowmobile right at the cottage and drive out each weekend. Even if you don't have much land, you can enjoy a full range of activities on nearby lakes.

THINGS TO DO

Most resorts and ski areas welcome the snowmobiling family. There will be an endless list of things to do, and there'll probably be some fellow snowmobile enthusiasts among the crowd.

Check with local and provincial park authorities — you'll be surprised at the number of areas available to you. Although some conservation and forest areas are closed to public recreation, there are still thousands of open acres and many with snowmobile trails already laid out.

Whether it's public or privately owned land, remember the comparatively new sport, and the first impression you help to create is important now and in the years ahead. Even though it's just one owner who litters property or creases privately owned land without asking, it hurts every owner. It's everyone's job to ask first, obey the rules, and leave the areas just as they found them.

Ok. Let's get down to facts.

FACT/ROTAX ENGINES: Designed exclusively for each model of Ski-Doo snowmobile and winter proven to start even at forty below zero. Aluminum alloy cylinders, aluminum pistons, shrouded axial fan (two cylinder engines) and cooling fins get rid of heat fast to keep it running cool.

FACT/ QUALITY BUILT: The keynote to each Ski-Doo snowmobile is quality. Each one is checked on the drawing board, test run in the factory and checked out by your dealer to insure the best possible performance for each particular model.

Snowmobiles Need Healthy Spark To Be Reliable

Few snowmobile owners would rate high as mechanics, one manufacturer of snow vehicles noted last year.

But with regular maintenance, few operators may have to put their mechanical aptitude to the test.

But, just as every snowmobiler must know how to mix and pour his own fuel, every operator can assure his machine's maximum performance and possibly save himself unnecessary inconvenience by practising a regular spark plug check. As small and inexpensive as it may be, the spark plug is the engine's source of life, and no engine will run better than its spark plug will allow.

Checking a spark plug is a very simple operation. Simply remove the insulated high tension lead from the contact of the plug, then remove the plug with the spark plug wrench supplied in the tool kit.

The first health check of the plug is to see that it is clean and dry. A piece of emery paper can be used to remove carbon deposits, and blown air or a dry rag will remove excess moisture. Be sure to remove any metal left by the emery paper as this is metallic and would cause the plug to short. The electrodes must be precisely the right distance apart, as specified in the manual) and the gap can be checked with a relatively inexpensive spark plug feeler gauge.

As a final check, replace the high tension lead socket on the plug and place the plug so that its metal threads touch the block of the engine. A pull of the starter cord or just a touch of the electric starter should produce one or two strong sparks. If the spark is not visible or if it appears weak, replace the plug.

When installing the plug, be sure that the metal gasket is in place, and again make absolutely certain that the gap is precisely that recommended by the manufacturer. As added insurance, always carry one or two spare plugs on your machine.

A few moments of preventive maintenance of this nature can assure peak performance snow cruising without unnecessary problems.

Snowmobiling Ideal Sport for Women

One thing about snowmobiling, it means the Quinte winter outdoors no longer is the exclusive reserve of the tough male.

Women are out there plugging through the below-zero temperatures and snow-covered landscapes with the best of 'em.

And, some claim, women make better snowmobilers than men.

It's big attraction, of course, is that for the first time it permits women to enjoy the outdoors fully as much as men.

It also rules out the need for baby - sitting, since usually, snowmobiling has become a sport for all the family.

Being able to take the children along "gets you out of the house and into the fresh air during the long winter days," says Mrs. Ernie Finkle.

The Finkles — who have five children — soon will be readying their two snow vehicles and trailer for another winter's sport.

"We used to curl and I love golf," says another Belleville housewife and mother of two. "But curling you were closed in all the time and I found with snowmobiling you were out in the fresh air.

"And you can take the kids with you, whereas on the golf course you can't take them. And there are a lot of sports where you can't take the kids with you."

"This is a real family sport and I think this is one of the reasons why women enjoy it," says Mrs. Doug Bannon, whose husband is vice - president of the Bay of Quinte Snowmobile Club, an organization that counts a membership of about 50 families — including the Finkles.

As members of a club it means "a lot of social life," says Mrs. Bannon, a mother of two.

"Then, the outdoors and the scenery — it's just a whole new life practically. You see a lot of the countryside you ordinarily just wouldn't see. You'd be spending your days in the house looking outside, but this way you just get going."

Neither does participation in the sport put that much pressure on women as wives and mothers.

"The walls start to close in on you when you're in the house in the wintertime and you can't really do much," says another snowmobiling housewife. "By getting out you're sort of free — even when the children are with you, it's not such a responsibility."

Youngsters are aware of the safety factors involved while the vehicles and trailers are zipping about the landscape, she says.

"They know enough that they have to hang on and what not, and they enjoy it, too."

"There's no hard work as far as the woman is concerned," says a club member. "And if anything goes wrong with the machine there's men there to help you out."

Not that men necessarily make the best snowmobilers.

"A lot of the girls handle the machines better than men," says Mrs. Bannon.

The reason?

"I think it's because they have a little more patience," she believes.

Men, venturesome by nature, will try "some fantastic feats whereas a woman will take it slow and easy up a hill," she explains.

Shining Up for Another Season

Mrs. Ernie Finkle, watched by four-year-old son Jeffrey, shines up snowmobile for another season. The Finkles, with five youngsters, are among Bellevillians who have found snowmobiling ideal family sport.

Safety Award Announced

TORONTO — The Ontario Snowmobile Distributors Association is this year taking its safety campaign to the user in the form of a safety award.

Ontario Snowmobile Distributors Association president, Tom McAleese, has announced that his organization will present a safety plaque and $250 cheque to the Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs. This is to be used as an award to the snowmobile club in Ontario who, in the opinion of the president and directors of the OFSC, does the most outstanding job in the promotion of safety in snowmobiling throughout the coming season. Also, in this connection, the 162 Ontario Snowmobile Distributors Association will present a similar award to the Ontario Snowmobile Racing Federation. This will be given to the driver, team, official, or sponsoring group who does the best job of promoting safety at the racing level.

Safety Manuals Available

TORONTO — The Ontario Snowmobile Distributors Association's prime objective is to bring to the consumer's attention the fact that safe snowmobiling depends on the user as well as the manufacturers. Progress within the industry has added many safety features to the snowmobile but public awareness of courteous and safe operation can not be built into a machine.

To this end, the Ontario Snowmobile Distributors Association announces the forthcoming Snowmobile Safety Week, November 22 to November 28, 1971. Snowmobile retailers across the Province are supporting this venture by distributing safety manuals and by displaying posters and signs.

The sport of snowmobiling is capable of giving a great deal of pleasure but with this goes the consumer's responsibility of safe driving, not only during Snowmobile Safety Week but for the entire season.

Safety Week Starts Nov. 22

TORONTO — The Safety Committee of the Ontario Snowmobile Distributors Association has taken steps to further its dedication for safe snowmobiling by setting aside the week of November 22nd as Snowmobile Safety Week.

Progress in research has been responsible for many added safety features on the snowmobile but public awareness of safe operation is the responsibility of the user.

To promote Safety Week, the dealer networks of all snowmobile distributors in Ontario will be distributing safety manuals and generally promoting the subject of safety throughout the Province. From November 22nd to November 29th, snowmobile owners will be urged to stress, that along with the enjoyment of snowmobiling all aspects of safety must be practiced.

Snowmobile Picnicking Fun for Family

Picnics no longer are exclusively summer fare.

With the advent of the snowmobile, helped by the easily portable food containers now on the market, picnicking by snowmobile is fast adding a new dimension to winter fun.

First, of course, pick where you'll picnic. Go too far and the snowmobilers will be too tired to enjoy the food. Just across the field, on the other hand, and there won't be enough of that get-away from-it-all snowy

So, pick a spot that's an easy ride away, one that offers the open-air feeling of really being out in the great outdoors. Don't overload. Even with a sled or trailer tailing along behind, a snowmobile just isn't designed to carry as much gear as a boat or car.

Bring along what you'll need to enjoy the picnic. Nothing more. Nothing less.

New developments in picnic packaging — stainless steel unbreakable thermos bottles, tight-sealed plastic containers in all shapes and sizes — make picnicking by snow sled a breeze.

When selecting the menu, remember that this is a snowmobile outing. The lemonade and potato salad that made that summer picnic such a success should be left home, along with the Bermuda shorts and mosquito repellent.

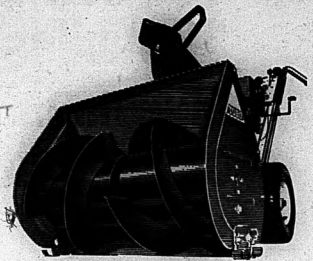
Instead, bring along such warmer-uppers as hot chocolate and coffee, soup and stew — all prepared at home to let the snowmobile picnicker concentrate on snowmobiling and picnicking.

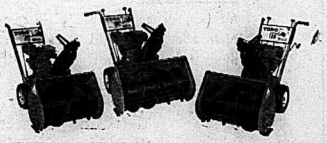
Along the-trail foods are fun, too. Compact stoves easily carried in tagalongs enable the snowmobile chef to offer his guests outdoor culinary triumphs guaranteed to thaw the most chilled taste bud.

A suggestion, though: Leave the good china and silverware at home. A snow trail is no place for that heirloom china or the sterling silverware Mom got for her birthday last year.

Instead, use plastic or paper dinnerware that can be incinerated in the campfire, and old frying pans and cooking utensils that won't be missed if they get misplaced in some snowdrift.

And, of course, don't litter.





Make sure you leave your picnic site as clean as you found it, and haul the inevitable refuse back to the garbage can.

City Crime Rate Shows Big Jump

Assaut Leads In Upsurge

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

Belleville's crime rate jumped 43.4 per cent from 1969 to 1970, and preliminary 1971 statistics show only a slight drop in the number of offences committed to date this year.

The city crime rate ranks above the national average, Police Chief Douglas T. Crosbie said.

Chief Crosbie's 1970 annual report, made public today, indicates the most serious increases are in the categories of break and enter, theft of valuables, sexual offences, frauds and thefts of motor vehicles. Also high on the list of problems are street assaults, shoplifting and alcohol offences.

In almost every crime category, the police department reports a noticeable change.

From 1969 to 1970, incidents of break and enter have risen from 298 to 354, an increase of 67 per cent; thefts of over $50 from 177 to 250 . . . 63 per cent; thefts of under $50, from 452 to 639 . . . 38 per cent; sex offences, 5 to 29 . . . 600 per cent; frauds, 131 to 221 . . . 38.8 per cent; and motor vehicle thefts, 49 to 90 . . . 83 per cent.

The number of attacks on police officers dropped by 50 per cent — four to two — in this period, unofficially compiled 1971 statistics show a marked upsurge this year. So much, that this fall police instituted two man foot patrols after dark.

Chief Crosbie referred to the increases in crime as "alarming" and stated "every effort is being made to combat it."

In his report to the Police Commission, the chief draws a comparison between American influence and the increased crime rate. "There can be no question that the trends established throughout Ontario, and for that matter, throughout North America, reflected in the criminal activities in the city of Belleville."

In the summer of 1971, the police department successfully initiated their own civilian dispatch force. Regular constables man the information and radio despatch centre at the Campbell Street station. This past summer, three Loyalist College law enforcement students served in this capacity.

The Chief plans to recommend continuation of this civilian service. If possible it could be expanded into a year-round function.

However, the problem does not solely rest on the shoulders of increased manpower, the report said.

A noticeable increase in family problems and assaults . . . 161 families sought counselling through the Juvenile and Family Court . . . have required the patrolling police officer to don the cap of counsellor.

Chief Crosbie attributes much of today's crime to the fact "breakdown in the family unit." A great number of police occurrences, which rose from 8,019 in the first nine months of 1970 to 8,890 in the same period of 1971, require the officer to mediate between quarrelling families.

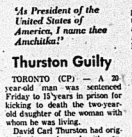
He says the addition of men to the force will not completely solve the problem. "This is a negative approach," he told newsmen.

"We have to get people more conscious of what goes on in the country; get people concerned.

"There must be an increased effort to awaken the public to this serious crime increase. We will only be really successful when the public is prepared to be concerned to the point where they are willing to become involved.

"That's not to say we want civilians to do police work," he added.

If never, in early autumn incidents where several police officers were assaulted on downtown streets, citizens came to their aid. One man used a police box to contact police headquarters and call their attention to the men battling with an officer. Earlier this year, a citizen stopped his car to help a policeman attempting to free himself from the clutches of a youth he was attempting to arrest.



Chief Crosbie also places much of the onus of responsibility on courts and other social service agencies. The field of administration of justice must be added to the rehabilitation of offenders, he says.

At the same time; the administrators of justice have a responsibility to the victim. "Too often it appears the victims or the general public receive the least concern. Sometimes when all else fails incarceration, admittedly not the answer for the individual, does at least provide protection for the citizen."

In an effort to educate the citizen and help protect him from the criminal element, an alarming number of which are juveniles and young adults, the Belleville Police Department has conducted a shoplifting seminar, a safe ice-driving program, leadership training for playground supervisors, in-station visits and tours for high school students, as well as speaking engagements before schools and clubs throughout the city, the report stated.

The police have increased their crime solving ratio. Between 1969 and 1970, the number of cases successfully dealt with rose by 1.3 per cent.

Total loss in the 354 breakins came to $28,222, of which $7,561 was recovered. A total of 74 charges were laid in connection with these cases, resulting in 50 male adults, 23 male juveniles and three females facing prosecution.

Thurston Guilty

TORONTO (CP) — A 20-year-old man was sentenced Friday to 15 years in prison for kicking to death the two-year-old daughter of the woman with whom he was living.

David Carl Thurston had originally been charged with non-capital murder in the slaying of Tracy Ann Brown, but a jury convicted him Oct. 1 on the lesser charge of manslaughter.

The child died May 18 in hospital of a ruptured liver. She had been kicked in the stomach.

Tracy's mother, Jane Brown, testified in Ontario Supreme Court that Thurston drank eight or 10 pints of beer before the incident and seemed to fly into a rage.

He slapped and kicked the baby because she wouldn't go to sleep, said Mrs. Brown.

Custom Houses Blasted

BELFAST (AP) — Irish Republican Army guerrillas blew up seven British customs posts along the Irish border today after a night of explosions in Belfast.

The IRA, which refuses to recognize the border between north and south, struck with a half-hour co-ordinated bomb attack.

The small wooden customs posts are usually staffed by two or three unarmed officers. No injuries were reported.

Intensifying their attacks on Ulster police, the guerrillas overnight bombed three homes and a precinct station in Belfast.

The raids followed a powerful blast Friday which ripped apart a Belfast police station and killed an inspector, bringing Northern Ireland's death toll in more than two years of civil strife to 141.

A sergeant, his wife and two children narrowly escaped when their home in the Finaghy district was blown up late Friday night. They had left it minutes earlier. An adjoining police house was badly damaged.

The third house hit no longer belonged to police. "A case of bad IRA intelligence," the British Army commented.

A precinct house in Belfast's Antrim Road was bombed early today, but was only slightly damaged. An electricity company office next door suffered severe damage.

Several civilian targets also were picked out by the bombers.

Mohawks Enjoy Indian Summer Too

A-Blast Ruling Monday

WSHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge is expected to rule Monday on a move by environmentalists to halt a giant underground nuclear blast set to go off next week on Amchitka Island.

District Judge George L. Hart indicated at a brief hearing Friday he will rule on the appeal for an injunction at 10 a.m. Monday after spending the weekend studying secret U.S. government documents dealing with the planned test.

The Atomic Energy Commission, meanwhile, made final preparations for the explosion by stopping up a 6,000-foot hole housing the five-megaton warhead, making it impractical to retrieve the device.

Environmentalists hope the documents, turned over to Hart by order of a three-judge appeals court, will prove the blast could set off earthquakes and tidal waves, kill wildlife and leak radioactivity.

The AEC, which has President Nixon's personal authorization to make the test, denies that there is virtually any potential for danger.

Citizen protests have mounted in Canada and Alaska in efforts to halt the blast on the remote Pacific island, and the crew of a converted minesweeper renamed Greenpeace Two sailed from Vancouver, planning to anchor just off Amchitka as a demonstration against the test, which is reported to be planned for Thursday.

Canada, Sweden, Japan and Peru all have asked the United States to cancel the test, and David Sive, a lawyer for the environmentalists, said he will appeal to a higher court if Judge Hart rejects the injunction request.

The AEC says if the test is halted now, the warhead would have to be destroyed by conventional explosives and a new hole dug at a cost of about $300 million.

The U.S. Court of Appeals turned aside the government's argument that the reports should remain secret under a legal doctrine known as Executive Privilege.

In a complicated legal tangle, environmentalists have claimed the AEC failed to carry out the 1969 National Environmental Policy Act requiring a statement of possible damage from the blast. Led by the Committee for Nuclear Responsibility, the seven groups say the AEC ignored information from others such as the Environmental Protection Agency which opposed the blast.

In the UN General Assembly, Swedish Ambassador Olaf Rydbeck said his country "deeply deplores" the decision to go ahead, announced Wednesday.

Emergency To Be Staffed

Commencing in May, 1972, a minimum of five doctors will begin a trial program in the emergency department of Belleville General Hospital.

At their regular monthly meeting Friday morning, the hospital board of governors gave the project authorization for a four-month trial period. These doctors will be in a supplementary staff who will rotate on 24-hour call for an entire week.

Instead of hiring interns, the hospital will call on doctors to serve a special period in the emergency wards. These medical men could be practitioners already working at BGH, but the board will readily accept others, such as air force doctors.

They will be guaranteed a $75 weekly wage which will be collected from the patients, either directly or through OHSIP, if less than this figure is collected, the hospital will make up the differences. Any excess, will be turned over to BGH.

Board member Dr. R. S. Berry said "if every place this has been tried, it has never cost the hospital any money at all."

It was Kitchener-Waterloo hospitals that first introduced this program to supply doctors in the emergency wards, serving patients who don't have a readily available family physician.

Although the doctors will be required to handle emergencies throughout the day, the board is more concerned with having a medical man in the hospital overnight, when it is more difficult to call on regular family physicians, said a board member later.

Union March Starts Rampage

MONTREAL (CP) — Protest marchers picked up metal police barriers and flung them in the faces of policemen Friday night when a union-organized demonstration exploded into violence that resulted in injuries to more than 100 persons.

Police said at least 100 were injured and 60 arrested, but some of those arrested were released without being charged.

Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor, led the parade, called in connection with a lockout and strike at La Presse, North America's largest French-language newspaper.

But the banners of various elements ranging from Maoists to militant separatists appeared in the procession which began peacefully at St. Louis Square and proceeded southward along east-end St. Denis Street, where many citizens were caught by surprise by the intense action.

While the demonstration later disintegrated into skirmishes and forays by roving bands of youths, a time-bomb, including four sticks of dynamite, was found by police in front of the suburban Westmount home of W. I. M. Turner, past president of Power Corp., and current president of Consolidated-Bathurst.

Power Corp. is one of a group of enterprises controlled by Montreal financier Paul Desmarais, who holds controlling interest in La Presse. It has become common in labor circles to refer to Power Corp. as the company running the newspaper.

The terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec, which caused last October's kidnap murder crisis in Quebec, claimed responsibility for Friday's bomb in a phone call to a radio station.

Later in the evening, a dynamite bomb exploded in an armory in the Montreal North District of the city. No one was hurt in the blast, but it caused extensive damage to the building.

Two hospitals reported they treated a total of 75 policemen for various injuries, including broken arms and legs, and a doctor at another hospital said 30 to 40 demonstrators had been treated, mostly for head wounds.

Mrs. Michelle Gauthier, 24, who was first taken to Misericorde Hospital, near the action scene, was pronounced dead of traumatic bronchitis on arrival at St. Luc hospital, a spokesman said. She was transferred from one hospital to the other because the first was not equipped to handle her case, authorities said.

In a city accustomed to violent demonstrations, repair crews were out replacing plate glass windows in some stores before midnight.

Veteran reporters said they had never seen Montreal police act with more strength and verve than when they barred the approaches to La Presse neighborhood from the grimly advancing marchers.

News Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada has announced it is giving serious consideration to reinvestment of its $24-million portfolio of stocks and bonds into projects with "high social value." The projects, according to an article in the Canadian Churchman, the church's national publication, could include housing and "health and welfare operations."

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The diesel division of General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced Friday it will build 81 locomotives for Canadian National Railways. The $75-million order will be filled before the end of 1972, a GM spokesman said.

Serenade for Grads

Marilee Jones, 17, lends a folkish note to the proceedings at Belleville Collegiate Institute Friday evening. The city's oldest secondary school was celebrating its annual commencement. Miss Jones, a grade 13 student, has been entertaining classmates and teachers for the past two years since she taught herself to play guitar.

Alderman Refuses to Vote On Convalescent Project

City council's only representative present at the Friday Belleville General Hospital board of governors meeting walked out after refusing to vote for the signing of a lease between Belleville Motor Hotels Ltd. and the hospital.

Ald. Ben Corke felt the hospital was attempting to railroad the lease through without first giving city council a chance to study it. Plans call for the Queen's Motel on Dundas Street East to be converted into a 40-bed convalescent wing of the hospital before the end of the year.

"This is something I've always been upset about; something that comes to us at the last minute and is not on the agenda," said Ald. Corke.

"I have no objection to it (use of the Queens Motor Hotel as a self-care unit at BGH) but in principle it's extremely unfair.

"I do not think we should be expected to cast a vote on something we really don't know anything about and I refrain from voting."

Following this statement, Mr. Corke picked up his papers and left the board room.

The incident arose after finance committee chairman Carl Bateman introduced a motion to have board chairman Msgr. J. P. Sullivan sign an agreement between the motel and the hospital.

The proposed lease would be subject to two conditions.

In his motion, Mr. Bateman said the hospital's solicitor should give his written opinion, assuring the board that no further expenses resulting from the agreement, would be incurred.

A second condition required Ontario Hospital Service Commission assurances that no costs associated and resulting from execution of the agreement, would be met by the commission.

Mr. Bateman stated there has been "no attempt to bypass the office of mayor or alderman.

It is different that this is a project of the Ontario government and we've been asked to go along with it.

Following the departure of Mr. Corke, the nine members of the 17-member board present, voted unanimously to have Msgr. Sullivan sign the five-year lease, subject to the two recommendations.

Policeman's Lot Now More Busy

In 1921, Belleville police, with a staff of only eight men, purchased a brand new squad car to patrol the outlying districts of Belleville.

Times have changed. The force now has 52 officers on all ranks.

Other changes have occurred over the past few years and a search through files reveals the following comparisons made with Police Chief Douglas Crosbie's annual report for 1970 released today:

In 1880, there were seven arrests for assault; in 1922, this figure rose to 10; in 1969 it stood at 146, and by 1970, the number of assaults recorded were 171.

Ten females were arrested in 1880. Five in 1922. In 1969, housebreaking had risen to 366 incidents, a figure which jumped to 354 in 1970.

Public intoxication stood at 178 arrests in 1880, and in "the prohibition era dropped to 99 in 1922. The same number 80 arrests were made for breaches of the Ontario Temperance Act. By 1969, this figure had risen to 419 and by 1970, the number of arrests for public intoxication stood at 470.

Frauds were not a major concern in 1880. In fact, only one arrest was made this year. By 1922, the number of arrested on this charge stood at three. By 1969, the number of incidents rose to 19 and then jumped 69 per cent, to 221 last year.

Only one arrest for wilful damage was made in 1880. Four arrests for this charge were made in 1922. In 1969, 243 incidents were recorded. In 1970, 265 were reported.

While in 1880, motor vehicles hadn't existed on the scene, criminals didn't notice their absence. Three arrests were made for horse stealing. So few cars existed 40 years later, that no car thefts were reported in 1922. However, in 1969, 49 motor vehicles were stolen. By 1970, this figure stood at 90 thefts.

Although no traffic offences were recorded in 1880, three parking violations were handed out in 1922. Riding bicycles on city sidewalks led to 15 arrests in that year, plus 99 breaches of the Motor Vehicles Act and two breaches of the Highway Traffic Act. In 1969, 17,165 parking violations and 2,898 Highway Traffic Act charges were dealt with. In 1970, these occurrences stood at 17,397 and 3,021, respectively.

Workers who insist on doing business on Sundays can only be prosecuted after police apply to the Attorney General's office. In recent months, a spate of raid searches of the Lords' Day Act have been made, but in 1922, 29 arrests were made.

In his 1970 annual report, Police Chief Crosbie has released figures showing a 43.4 per cent increase in crime in Belleville last year.

Although earlier reports list actual arrests and charges, the 1970 report contains the number of occurrences, and how they dealt with. Those statistics for 1969 and 1970, listed below, are for actual recorded cases.

Pick of the Bunch

More than 800 Belleville cubs, scouts and venturers have taken to city streets this past week, selling apples for Boy Scout Apple Day. Friday and Saturday, the lads have been out in force on city streets. Krisia English, 8, of ER 2, Roslin, took time last night to carefully choose a choice one from 18th Belleville pack cub Jeff Birch, 9, 11 Park Dale Drive. He was with other cubs at the Quinte Mall booth.

Homecrafts Have New Local Outlet

There's no lack of homecraft talent in the Belleville district.

Just ask Mrs. Ronald Putman of Carrollton, who, a month ago, opened a retail shop in her home as a commercial outlet for the homecrafters in her area.

Already she has approximately 50 suppliers with the list growing daily. And for much of the wide variety of items she is finding a steady sale.

In fact in some lines — braided scatter mats for instance — the demand exceeds the supply.

"I don't expect to make a lot of money," the Carrollton woman admits.

But the shop provides an outlet for the homecrafters and, says Mrs. Putman, helps to keep the women at home.

She says she doesn't believe in married women going out to work "unless they have to".

It was her own inability to take an outside job that gave the Carrollton woman the idea of opening a homecraft shop.

Troubled with a chronic back problem, Mrs. Putman considered the shop idea for some time before taking the plunge and the store was realized through the co-operation of her husband who converted the family garage.

Homecrafts offered for sale include fancy-knit goods ranging all the way from sweaters to ponchos and afghans, barbie doll clothes, dresses, stuffed animals, paintings, wood carvings and a myriad other items.

Some of the contributing suppliers come from the city and others from as far north as Madoc.

A Move to the South

Front and Dundas: Belleville's Old Hub Gets Facelift

The hub of early Belleville, the corner of Front and Dundas Streets is about to regain some of its original status — after a lapse of about 150 years.

First step to the revival of the once-fashionable centre-piece of the city is rejuvenation of the former fire hall - appliance rental shop - television repair store on the northwest corner of Front and Dundas opposite Fireman's Park.

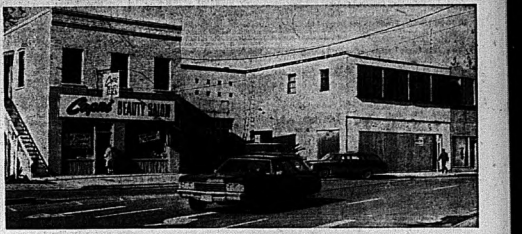
Next to come is a pizza parlor, to be followed in early 1972 by a Chinese restaurant. Also in prospect is a souvenir shop.

Above the three stores are which will be ready for rental within the next six months.

Mark Kathis' holdings on the site include a long-disused former tire sales room and laundry adjacent to the old fire hall to the north.



To the south is a vacant lot also owned by Mr. Kathis, where he will begin construction of a fourth store next summer.

The Dundas St. bridge had given impetus to the private urban-renewal scheme.

First proposed in 1808 and 122 years in coming, the bridge has opened up the area to traffic and tourism and made lower Front St. a prime commercial site.

Only one relic of the intersection's early glory now remains — and time has turned it into a liability. It is the Belsey house opposite Mr. Kathis' holdings, once the heart of Belleville. It was a hotel and tavern built to serve people coming to Belleville harbor by boat and traveling to and from Toronto on the York Road.

Now, with the bridge replacing barges and pleasure boating growing on the Bay of Quinte, lower Front St. has come full cycle into an era of renewed vigor and enterprise.

Front - Dundas Showing New Signs of Life

$100,000 Bill For Renovation

Belleville restaurant owner Mark Kathis is spending approximately $100,000 for a complete facelift to a long-disused building at the corner of Front Street and Dundas.

A former tire salesroom and laundry facility and one-time fire station, the building has been for the most part, vacant since 1964. Because of this disuse and future plans, workers have installed floors and ceilings wiring, plumbing and heating, plaster, and fresh coats of paint.

By the end of November, the Marco Polo takeout Pizzeria will open its doors in the northern end of the building. If this establishment proves successful, Mr. Kathis says he is willing to expand it into a complete restaurant.

Another eatery, a Chinese restaurant, is scheduled for opening at the first of the new year.

Third store for the building is a souvenir shop which will specialize in seashell ornaments. As owner of Mark's Fish House, Mr. Kathis has accumulated thousands of shells which he can expand into his own line of souvenirs.

The shop will also carry thousands of decorative candles, as well as traditional paraphernalia.

Above the old building, workers have been busy installing eight new single bedroom apartments which will be ready by the end of November.

The restaurateur will sell the pizza parlor once it is established, but plans to dispose of the Chinese food outlet as soon as renovations are complete. He will retain the souvenir shop.

Undecided as yet, Mr. Kathis has thoughts of extending the building to take in the vacant lot to the south.

Three New Shops

Belleville restaurateur Mark Kathis, left, is spending $100,000 renovating this Front Street building. As workers John Kezis and Fotios Georgatos apply fresh paint to the exterior, Mr. Kathis surveys plans for a new pizza parlor, Chinese restaurant, souvenir shop and eight single-family apartments.

West Bank Of Moira Start Made

Cleanup and development of the west riverbank park property opposite the present riverside park on Cannifton Road is under way by city parks board employees.

Parks board members at their regular monthly meeting Thursday evening were told that a parks crew had been working in the area for the past two weeks.

Cost of the work for the 21.29 acres currently under development, including cleanup, road construction and construction of a canteen and change room structure is estimated at $81,890 for which a federal loan has been approved.

Application is being made for a matching provincial grant to complete development of the over-all west riverbank area.

The board will also investigate to determine if the development would qualify as a winter work project.

Cleanup cost of the area currently under development is estimated at $10,000; road construction and parking lot development, $48,890; swimming beach area $3,000, and canteen-change rooms, $34,000.

The parks board last night authorized retaining of an architect or engineer to draw plans for the canteen and change room.

Stirling Wants Out Of Quinte Planning

The village of Stirling wants to opt out of the Quinte Planning Board in favor of single membership in the Hastings Planning Board.

The Hastings board has already endorsed the move and an application for the change has been forwarded to Toronto for department approval.

Currently the village has membership in both planning boards and pays fees to both bodies.

Reason given by Reeve Robert Lawrence for the requested change is that the village has closer ties with the rural area add Rawdon township than with Belleville and Trenton.

Also the village already has its official plan prepared and feels it would have little use for the overall official plan to be prepared by the Quinte Planning Board.

Geographically, the Oak Hills are seen as the dividing line between Stirling and the more southern municipalities and the village would never be able to look to the south for either sewage or water facilities.

New Salon A Family Business

Capri Beauty Salon Pioneers Area Revival

Moving from cramped quarters on Front Street's main business block, to an airy, bright location, Capri Beauty Salon owners Alexander and Olive Thompson feel they have a real winner in their new location.

Although they had built up a successful clientele since their move to Belleville 19 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson feel their old location in the Victoria and Front Street area left a lot to be desired.

"It's got a fresh look since the bridge opened," says Mr. Thompson, the color specialist in the business.

And a fresh approach is exactly what attracted the exair force non - commissioned officer to Belleville. "I never dreamed I'd be in business in Belleville," Mr. Thompson said. As a bomber - gunnery trainee, he was stationed at Mountainview for part of the last war.

After his post - war return to the airforce, as a baker, the Thompsons worked in a large Toronto factory. Their life was proving unsatisfactory for them. They began taking night classes in hair care and styling.

As the first night school pupils of the Harper Method of hairdressing, the couple spent three years obtaining the 1,000 hours of training necessary for diploma graduation.

Working in the fierce competition of Toronto beauty salons, they moved to Belleville after operating a shop for only two years in their native city.

Mr. Thompson explained prices were higher in Toronto than local hair-care charges, and they had to adjust accordingly once they were re-established. With a background in the Harper Method, the couple branched out into their own special services and hair treatments.

They took over the Capri Beauty Salon, then located at 330 Front Street and moved the business to a slightly better location several stores away.

With purchase of their own building, they "hope it'll be a permanent move." Extensive repairs have transformed the barn-like interior into a bright - colored showcase, now decorated with goodwill flowers sent by patrons.

The owners agree the new site will improve business for them, as the lower portion of Front Street grows and improves.

"Here we can be seen. In the old location, we were one little store in a row of stores."

However, Mrs. Thompson, with an eye to decor, feels the street won't be completely attractive until the old Simpson Hotel across the street is removed.

"I hope they do take it down," she says.

Wildlife Could Be School Topic

Wildlife conservation could become a livelier topic with Quinte youngsters in future.

Department of Lands and Forests officials are hopeful the subject can be introduced o the small fry by way of schools.

Recently, William Bittle, wildlife management officer at the department's Tweed office, and Belleville - area conservationist George Woodhouse visited students at Bayview public school and delivered talks on conservation and wildlife in general.

Mr. Bittle said the event was so enthusiastic success with the students and he hoped similar events could be staged in more area schools in the near future.

Northern Regroups Operation

Northern Electric's Belleville plant is involved in a company - wide operative regrouping — itself linked to a company bid to capture a major slice of telecommunication markets.

The Belleville plant — the city's single largest employer — will continue to manufacture telephone products with this major change:

It will function as an entity, combining all phases of both manufacturing and marketing operations.

The regrouping makes the plant part of a new Systems Apparatus Division, of Northern.

W. A. Thompson, general manager of the Belleville plant for the past two and one-half years has been named president of the systems division.

Britain May Join

No man is an island . . . or expressed another way, by John Donne: "Any man's death diminisheth me, for I am involved in mankind. Never ask to know for whom the bell tolls, it tolls for thee."

Like it or not, some such thoughts may be passing through the minds of Britons in these days of economic struggle, and particularly now that the country seems to be closer to membership of the European Common Market.

Of course there are doubts too, and disserting voices. Britain with its spectacular history, its matchless traditions, "this other Eden, demi-paradise," has always been regarded by divers realistic, set apart geographically by the English Channel and North Sea from the land mass of Europe and Scandinavia, and idealistically by its own unique charisma, protected from the invaders by its relative isolation and by the indomitable spirit of its people.

Now all this is changing. Those awful Western Europeans have risen from the ashes of war and have long since been merged in a Common Market from which Britain, to its economic disadvantage, hitherto was excluded.

Now, after years of negotiation, frustrated during the era of French President de Gaulle who was opposed to UK entry, Britain is nearer to becoming an ECM member, the Commons having voted its support. For Britons it will be a traumatic experience to have their economy merged with that of Western Europe. The legend of Rule Britannia will fade still further from the international scene, as the country becomes bound inexorably with a common trading partnership.

What the move may mean for the Commonwealth only time will tell, but a condition of British entry, from Westminster's standpoint, has always been protection of existing Commonwealth trading interests, as in the case for example of New Zealand dairy products. Britain had to give a little in this regard, but the French, who had been a stumbling block, also compromised. With Britain's probable entry a new era is unfolding in European history, one we hope will prove fruitful for all.

On Smoking

Smoking in hospitals by staff as well as patients and visitors has been criticized in blunt fashion by a visiting English physician. In what was described as a fast 12-minute speech at the annual meeting of the Ontario Hospital Association in Toronto, Dr. C. M. Fletcher said hospitals should actively discourage smoking in hospitals.

Some 7,000 Canadians under the age of 64 die each year from ailments caused by cigaret smoking according to Dr. Fletcher. That is about 20 a day and he added that while his audience listened three or four persons had died.

A member of the staff of the Royal Postgraduate Medical School of Hammersmith Hospital in London, Dr. Fletcher says hospitals should forbid staff to smoke in front of patients or in rooms where patients will be seen. He tells of visiting a Canadian clinic and seeing three doctors smoking in a room where patients were expected.

"It is irresponsible to allow this sort of nonsense," Dr. Fletcher declared. There will be some on the receiving end of these remarks who do not take such criticism kindly. But who would deny that it needs saying? The medium is the message . . . and if some must smoke, Dr. Fletcher has a suggestion: he says they can always "slip away to the toilet!"

Youthful Awareness

Young people are looking for a cause, a Belleville clergyman told his congregation recently, and he challenged them to be the cause of proclaiming Christ in the world. This, he said, demanded more than "carrying placards and singing songs." It took guts.

Happily, the youth of Canada are not altogether unaware of priorities, whether spiritual or material. Shelley Cooke for instance, a 12-year-old from Plainfield, has written a little story on the theme of pollution. In it she tells of a dream, of a day when pollution may become so bad that the environment will no longer support life.

Indeed scientists have issued such warnings, but Shelley's story has all the imagination and vividness of the young: . . . we really are polluting our once beautiful world and killing and destroying," she writes in part. "Let us all do our share by helping clean up and prevent pollution, for some day this (doomsday) may really happen and it will no longer be just a dream but an actual fact meaning death."

'B and B' Program Believed On Way Out

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So far it is no more than a whisper, but with increasing frequency in recent weeks, a hushed word is dropped quietly that the life expectancy of the Government's controversial bilingualism and biculturalism program is limited.

Especially the heart and mind of the whole "Bi and Bi" complex, the language training schools operated by the Public Service Commission, an arm of the multi-headed Secretary of State Department over which presides the equally controversial Gerard Pelletier.

Five years, at most, is the length of time remaining in the life-span of the Great Language Experiment.

Nobody really believed, when Prime Minister Lester Pearson first commissioned the Royal Commission on Bilingualism, that it would last forever.

But, for all practical purposes at that time, it was expected to continue indefinitely.

Especially after the Commission, in one of its initial reports, warned that the nation was on the brink of breakdown and that acceptance of the two-language culture in both French and English Canada alone might save the nation from a racial disaster.

The federal Government, promoted Pearson, would lead the way out of the danger zone.

So the Great Language Experiment began. Designed to make even aging, set-in-their-ways very senior English-speaking civil servants talk French, and upper-level French-speaking public employees talk English.

Whole families of mandarins were moved from Ottawa to Quebec for a year to live, learn — and love the "French Fact."

And French families from Quebec City and Montreal were shipped to Ottawa and Toronto for Anglicizing.

Posh language hostels with their ski slopes for winter and their pools, golf courses and bridle paths, were leased as pads for middle-level civil servants taking "immersion courses" as they were termed, in French.

Some $12 million was invested in land and buildings for language schools in the National Capital.

Then suddenly, early this year, after spending some $ million, the "Bi and Bi" Commission called off all bets — and work — cancelling out what was to have been its final definitive report.

Not long after, out came Prime Minister Trudeau with the quick change-of-direction statement that while Canada had two basic languages, it involved more than that, being, as he put it, "a multi-cultural society."

The rights and privileges — along with substantial federal financial assistance — of all minority groups would be reinforced, he pledged.

And the quiet word began getting around that the pressure was off "Bi and Bi" and that the whole vast apparatus would be wound down in five years.

It has been a great make-work project for the graduates of Laval- and Montreal universities manning the National Capital's language schools.

It is from these academic devotees the sounds of mourning that it soon will be all over are heard.

So what has it all cost, this Great Language Experiment?

Well, regardless of how soon "Bi and Bi" passes into history, it leaves a permanent legacy of two languages — on the working use basis — in Parliament and in federal departments offices here, at the senior level, of the Government itself.

This currently requires a staff of 850 translators to process the 150 million words a year the administration speaks and writes. Cost this year: $11 million.

Add on the $9,100,000 the language schools are costing that year — $7,134,000 last year and $5,136,000 in 1969.

Most of that $9,100,000 goes to carry the language schools payroll where the staff approaches 700, most of it for teachers of French.

Finally, there is the "hidden cost" of the work-days lost by civil servants taking language training.

From every department, board, commission, bureau and federal agency, in answer to a series of questions asked in the Commons by Maritime Conservative MP Robert Coates, has come an accounting of the number of employees attending the many different government language schools.

A total so far of 10,552 civil servants have gone back to school. Total working hours lost from their regular government jobs for the current year alone has been calculated officially at 1,393,221.

Usually only senior civil servants get to go to language school — the training is too costly to be squandered, also so the average hourly pay rate should run about $10.

That would make $12,000,000, to the cost of it all.

Total, then, for only one, the current, year of the eight the program has been running, adds up to a round $22 million. Tack on the $9 million investment in the now-expired "Bi and Bi" Commission, and the $11 million capital investment in the language schools, and it comes out to better than $50 million.

And that is just the visible tip of the iceberg.

"I'm sorry, but we don't insure charisma!"

Organized Labor's Election Effort Was Damp Squib

Queen's Park
By DON O'HEARN

These are soul-searching days in the top ranks of big labor.

The recent election would have found labor leaders down to earth as nothing has in recent years. The results showed that its political efforts were a shocking failure.

Prior to the election it made it clear it was going big, it was throwing its heaviest dice to try to push the NDP over the top and right across the province, with the possible exception of the Sudbury area, it couldn't deliver.

Oshawa, the biggest union stronghold in the province was lost, and lost quite badly. In the Brantford area, even though there was a major strike at Fleetfield, it couldn't win one poll from Premier Davis. In Middlesex South the labor vote which had given a byelection victory, didn't stand up, behind him.

To some of us this result was confirmation of the theory we have held that a whole that the political influence of big labor has generally been conceded quite a bit more than actually it has had. And beyond this that its influence has actually been declining rather than having been more or less generally assumed—gaining ground.

The premise behind this is that at one time, in the late 30s and early 40s labor leaders probably did have quite an influence.

That in those days the labor movement generally still was fighting militantly for recognition and had a strong bond in its objective. Also labor leaders themselves were close to the rank and file, many of them being just a year or so removed from the assembly lines and with many years of dirty hands behind them.

But with the years labor got its recognition. The struggle, and the strikes, switched to wages, working conditions and other secondary matters. And perhaps most important of all, labor leaders became executives, closer perhaps to manufacturers than plants. Their sweat was not that of the workers. Rather they become the political figures of trade unionism. And they came to be regarded by their rank and file with that same skepticism which most of the public holds for politicians generally.

This is the premise. If right, and it certainly at least seems to have a good measure of truth, then the rank and file labor vote is now quite free. He is making his choice on that multitude of considerations on which we all make our choices, not on a blinkered loyalty to labor, he doesn't seem this is needed any more, or to his leaders.

Labor leadership must be, or at least should be, wondering if the day may even come, when its endorsement could even turn off its members.

As a further consequence of the election, is it perhaps also finally beginning to question the real strength of its position with its membership?

Guns and Ammunition Still Too Easy to Obtain Here

Montreal Star

Some of the firearms currently being offered for public sale at "hunting rifles" are a sad reminder that gun controls in this country remain inadequate and that nothing substantial has been done in recent months at either the federal or provincial levels to bring about more stringent regulations.

As Guy Marcil, president of the Montreal Police Brotherhood, put it recently: "The firearms regulations now in effect are absolutely ridiculous." It is still far too easy for persons to obtain guns and ammunition. While the law continues to permit certain types of firearms for hunting and sporting purposes, those weapons — as well as others supposedly inoperative — can readily be converted to criminal use. Automatic weapons are prohibited, but semi-automatics can be purchased legally and without difficulty. They are no less deadly.

Whenever there is a tragedy involving the use of firearms, there follows a public clamor for tighter controls. It is generally short-lived. Last year, for example, after the terrorist kidnappings in Montreal and the subsequent disclosure that the accused had been able to purchase .45 army surplus M-1 rifles, there was discussion in both Ottawa and Quebec on the need for stricter regulations. Evidently that study is still going on, although nothing has been heard on the matter in recent months.

The RCMP told the Government last spring that a total registration system for firearms in Canada would be unfeasible. The reasons were not clearly explained. Other countries have instituted tight controls, and we are yet to be persuaded that Canada can not do the same.

Hunters and sportsmen who have legitimate use for firearms should not object to these protective measures. In the meantime, while Ottawa hesitates on the matter, there is nothing to prevent Quebec from imposing its own controls. It should not require another tragic death to prompt legislative action.

Ode on a City Pothole

Editor,
The Intelligencer.
Who decides where the patch

should go?
When the potholes are scattered in numerous rows, —)
In our city streets so glorious,
The busy workmen are notorious
For spending ample money and time,
Creating art work wondrously sublime.
But in my uneducated way,
I am just wondering, who is to say
"Which pothole has to go,
which is to stay?
The problem is weighty the decision great,"
Which will be filled, which must wait.
For future attention from dedicated men.
When that treat of asphalt is rationed out again.

Easier Here Than in U.S.

A Winter Starting Anomaly

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

It would be more agreeable not to think about it, but just as surely as the days keep getting shorter, the morning is going to come when the car doesn't want to start. The first cold snap always takes some of us by surprise. Instead of touching the ignition switch and driving away, we sit in shocked frustration, going nowhere while the engine stays stubbornly silent and cold.

Believe it or not, we're still better off in Ontario than anywhere else in Canada or the United States. "Better" in this context means that Ontario motorists have better luck with winter car - starting than motorists in Quebec, California, Texas or the Canadian West.

The authority for an anomaly is a survey by a spark plug manufacturer. Dividing Canada into five regions for the purpose of the survey, and the United States into nine regions, the statistician find that all American regions have more, proportionately, starting cars in cold weather.

The expectation in Ontario is that in the course of one winter season, 23 motorists in every 100 at some time will be unable to start their cars. The only part of Canada where things are any better is British Columbia, where it will happen to 21 motorists in every 100.

In Texas the figure is 270 in the cotton - and - tobacco region of the Old South it is 29; in the New England states, 31.

The Americans don't have it so cold, or have it cold for so long, but when the frigid morning does come it is more likely to catch them unawares, with battery low and spark plugs dirty.

Misery loves company, so it may be some comfort to know that while you sit shivering in your non-starting car, there are more people in balmy Tennessee having the same trouble.

Cold comfort, though.

Southern Migration

Boston Herald Traveler

When the moon is drenching the earth in pale light and clouds move as dark blotches, across the night sky they come, high and distant, a long, uneven V, gabbling and honking, moving as a single entity, hurrying south to fulfill some essential and primeval urge. Or in the early days they arise from marsh and clearing in a shapeless mass until slowly the V begins to form. And through some mysterious intelligence, ancient even before man walked on the earth, the leader takes his place and the others fall into line in a long wedge.

As fall begins, the geese come down from the lakes and swamps of the north and pass over forests and farms and great cities, finding their night stops in the wetlands or going on sometimes through dark hours, with a sure destination before them. Their course is unerring, their guide a secret working of their instincts perfected through eons of annual journeys from the south to the north, then back to the south again. And as they fly they sound their timeless cry, at once a plaint and a paean, a litany of the wonders that move wild things.

Standing alone by a row of birches that borders a field in a place where we have lived the city has faded, seeing the great undulating line against the sky and hearing the excited honks, a man is moved and haunted in a way he lacks words to describe. He knows only that as the cries subside high above and the flight becomes indistinct as it moves away he is enriched and fulfilled, and he can turn again to worldly matters with a clearer mind and a sharpened sense of the values of his life. And, through some unknowable chemistry that works between all men and the nature about them, the troubles that beset him seem suddenly less severe.

A University Education

Montreal Star

The recent shattering of the widely held assumption that a university education automatically guarantees a good job has caused great disillusionment among many young persons and their parents. It would be wrong to conclude that the shortage of immediate employment prospects makes dissuading the young from wanting to obtain a higher education.

Going to university means a more than a good job; and a report recently issued under the auspices of the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education bears out that point. As Dr. Clark Kerr, chairman of the commission, puts it in the foreword to the report: "Going to college are college . . . does give to the individual a chance for a more satisfying life and to society a likelihood of a more effective community."

The study found that persons who have gone to college tend to be more liberal and tolerant in their attitudes towards, and in their relations with, other individuals and groups; that they are more likely to vote and to participate generally in community activities; that they are better informed about community, national and international affairs. And, despite the current shortage of employment openings, college graduates are still more highly paid, less subject to unemployment and more satisfied with their jobs.

A total so far of 10,552 civil servants have gone back to school. Total working hours lost from their regular government jobs for the current year alone has been calculated officially at 1,393,221.

Usually only senior civil servants get to go to language school — the training is too costly to be squandered, also so the average hourly pay rate should run about $10.

That would make $12,000,000, to the cost of it all.

Total, then, for only one, the current, year of the eight the program has been running, adds up to a round $22 million. Tack on the $9 million investment in the now-expired "Bi and Bi" Commission, and the $11 million capital investment in the language schools, and it comes out to better than $50 million.

And that is just the visible tip of the iceberg.

Manual Work Keeps B.C. Priest Busy at Northern Settlement

LOWER POST, B.C. (CP) — Rev. Philip Smith is more than just the mission priest in this most northern of British Columbia settlements.

He is the entire mission, and probably the most energetic of the community's 200 residents.

Although his parish is small, he is constantly on the go because he has taken on many manual jobs connected with the church.

In summer, wearing his week-day work jeans, he can be seen on a tractor cutting the grass in the church cemetery, or on the playing field of the Lower Post Student Residence, an Indian school where he is chaplain.

Father Smith, 31, left his home in Wisconsin four years ago to take charge of the Roman Catholic Help Family Mission here because a summer job many years ago in Alaska had given him a taste for the North.

His mission includes a church built of logs, a two-storey rectory and the overgrown cemetery.

But Father Smith doesn't live in the three-bedroom rectory because it's far too big for him. He occupies an abandoned garage.

"The place was empty, the roof was sagging and the windows were broken when I found it," he said. "It took quite a bit of fixing up but now it suits me.

"I've got a wood stove for heating most of the time but a kerosene stove for when I'm out and can't feed the fire with logs. As long as the temperature is above freezing I can be warm within half an hour of getting home."

There's little to indicate the priest's home was once a garage—except for the grease pit under the floor boards.

Recently, Father Smith embarked on his most ambitious project so far—a community hall and museum for Lower Post—and he's doing it from scratch.

"I found a building that had been here for years and leased it from the department of highways. Rocks had been thrown through all the windows and the place was a real mess but I'm starting to fix it up."

So far he has covered the windows with glass fibre sheets to keep out the cold of the severe winters and removed all the inside partitions to make one big room suitable for community activities.

He has raised $400 in Lower Post and has been given a $750 grant from the B.C. Centennial Commission.

Next door to the would-be community hall is a dilapidated one-room cabin which he intends to turn into a museum to preserve the area's historical relics.

The settlement's greatest problem is probably its isolation. It is seven miles from the Yukon border and the nearest large centre in B.C. is Fort Nelson, about 300 miles southeast.

"The population here is slowly going down, but as long as there's a house available, there will be someone in it," Father Smith said.

"When it rains I work inside the community hall and when it's fine I paint the church."

Rock Artists Find New Hit in Jesus

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway and the rock artists have found a new hit in Jesus.

Besides the wave of pop songs about Him, He's now the centre of two current theatrical attractions, the crowd-pulling musical comedy, Godspell, and the new-to-opened rock opera, Jesus Christ Superstar.

In both cases, the presentations offer vivid glimmers of the man, and His magnetism, but little hint of the mystery. In the end of both, He's dead, with only concentrated intimations of anything beyond that.

Both have caught on strongly, on record, with young people—both in the churches and outside them—with their elders variously puzzled and impressed.

Religious leaders, while applauding the fresh interest in Jesus reflected in the youth culture's use of and phrases, have had both pro-and-con reactions to the one-dimensional portrayals of Jesus.

It's a new—and perhaps healthy—"paganism," said Rev. Gilbert Hellebrekers of St. Louis, a Lutheran clergyman, noting that Greek and Roman pagan gods were active in the world, sharing human faults and weaknesses.

"The God of the Hebrews and Christians was transcendant, but the gods of the pagans were only men immensely amplified," he wrote in an evangelical weekly, Christianity Today. "With them one could attempt to stand on equal footing."

He said this is the rock opera's view of Jesus, adding:

"It cannot affirm that in this man God is acting, because it finds in him only a man—a theatrical large, a man like the gods, a superstar, but only a man."

A Hamar, Catholic Bible scholar, Rev. John L. McKenzie of Chicago, strongly commended the rock opera, after listening to a recording of it.

It is "reverent in the sense that it took Jesus seriously," he said in the monthly journal, the Critic. It "showed a surprisingly sympathetic understanding of the historical Jesus, an understanding which many believers do not have ..."

The musical comedy, Godspell, also has some theological punch, along with its laughs and lively music. Many of the young performers in it say they have found a new respect for the realism of the Biblical account.

Social Reform Leaders Trying to Fight Racism

MARCY, N.Y. (AP) — Two social reform leaders from Canada and the U.S. are working together on settling differences between races.

Dr. James Eagan, vice-president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, and Frazier Earl, program director of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, served as co-ordinators for a three-day international conference on racism and discrimination this week.

Earl said in an interview that in Canada the colleges and universities are taking the lead in improving race relations. "It's a more relaxing and trusted atmosphere when compared to government. I would have to admit our government is making strides, but is not yet leading.

Eagan was not so kind. Asked if the U.S. government was doing enough in combatting racism, he said, "Absolutely not," but added, "I'm referring to over-all government policy, not to administrations."

He said the U.S. failure to halt the genocide convention which would have eliminated means of mass extermination of people more than a decade ago was an example. "That resolution still has not passed in this country. It is a most humane act that should not have been opposed."

Initiation of anti-racism drives must and can come from government," Eagan asserted. "It's a whole new ball game with the 18-year-old voter. There are enough of them to actually elect a president of the United States. These young people are much more sensitive to the needs of all people."

Both Eagen and Earl agreed there is hope for ending racism.

"We know you can't legislate human attitudes," Earl said, "but we must have legalism to control behavior. We are getting those laws in both countries through mutual co-operation."

Ann Landers

Theatre Box-office Cashier Also Bears Brunt of Much Criticism

Dear Ann Landers: You've spoken out in defence of waitresses, hotel maids, truck drivers, police officers, telephone operators, hairdressers, typesetters, carrier boys, salespeople and school teachers. But you have never printed one word in defence of box-office cashiers. I hope you will do so today.

I work for a theatre in Schenectady. I enjoy my job and want to do it well. As a box-office cashier I try to give courteous service, correct change, and the correct number of tickets. Please tell your readers that the girl in the glass cage does not set the prices or the show time. She is not responsible for the mistake in the news paper which printed the wrong time. Nor is it her fault that you tried two parking lots and they were both full, so you are missing the first 15 minutes of the movie.

Also tell your readers that the cashier is not responsible for the rating system, so don't yell at her if you don't like it all and she can't sell you a ticket to an X-rated film. And, if the picture was lousy, it's not her fault. She didn't direct it. Thank you, Ann.

— Billie Davis

Dear Billie: ..Thank YOU. Your letter brought back some warm memories! My father owned theatres, and guess who sat in the box office and sold tickets after school one summer? Yup, and I know what you mean.

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the lousy driver with the high blood pressure. It seems she thought it was terrible that anyone should criticize her driving, yet she took up three parking spaces and deprived two other people of their lawful right.

I sit in the front window of an office where I am a receptionist. I can look out the window and see what goes on across the street where there is a coin-operated laundry. All day long I see idiots double park because they are too lazy to parallel park. I also see them pull their front wheels up on the sidewalk so they won't have to park properly. I honestly believe that these crocks do not know how to park a car. So don't knock that person who places "instructional" information under the windshield wipers of lousy parkers. I think he or she should get a medal for public service. — Garden City Driver

Who Knows How to Park

Dear Driver: They say every knock is a boost. I am printing this because I know a lot of lousy drivers will see it and think about it the next time they do a miserable and inconsiderate job of parking. Now — aren't you sorry you yelled at me.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife's 27-year-old brother is a cheap bum. When we moved to this apartment Jerry had his leg in a cast, so my wife gave him a key because this place is near Jerry's office and it was easier for him to sleep here a few nights a week.

The bum has been out of the cast for three months but he still uses the key to let himself in when we aren't home. We've walked in and found him sitting in my bathrobe, smoking my cigars, drinking my Scotch and wearing out the tubes in our color TV. Sometimes he has a girl friend here.

Is there a tactful way to tell the moocher we've had it? My wife says she will do as you say because you are objective and fair. — Fed Up

Dear Fed: The clod doesn't know anything about tact. Tell him you are changing the locks next week so his key will no longer fit. Then change them.

Parent Organization in Montreal Promotes Adoption of Many Races

MONTREAL (CP) — A home with love is more important than one to home at all. That is the basic thought guiding a growing parent organization in Montreal which promotes the adoption of children of many races.

For Montreal's Open Door Society, begun in 1957, this is the most important criterion when finding homes for these children—mostly Negro in the Montreal area.

Due to a greater demand than supply for white children which, in the words of a society spokesman, "seems to be a phenomenon throughout North America," and society's acceptance of multi-racial adoptions, demand is large for children of many races is increasing and "is beginning to catch up with supply."

In Montreal, more than 500 Negro babies have been placed with white families during the last 10 years.

"It's practical and feasible," said Robert Rosenzweig, adoptive father of two little three-year-old black girl and president of the society.

Begun by three multi-racial families in Montreal who wanted to promote the idea of adopting children of many races, The Open Door Society was incorporated under a federal charter in 1961. Today it has more than 100 member families.

Mr. Rosenzweig insists, however, that the society is not a placement centre. It is a parent organization, formed of adoptive parents, which works in conjunction with Montreal's Children Service Centre. It is self-financed through membership fees and fund-raising campaigns.

"Parents are opponents of mixed adoptions, he said, representing young militant blacks. However, although the society would prefer that a black child be placed with a black family, this is not always possible because of a lack of available homes.

Adopted between birth and a year old, these children are offspring of white unwed mothers or mothers who do not feel capable of keeping the children.

"We feel it would be best if the child could be placed in a home of his race," he said, "but this is not possible.

"Besides, being in a home with love is far more important than none at all."

To deal with problems faced by adoptive parents of Negro children, the society last year held a seminar on black identity. Another for April 1 is to meet regularly to discuss mutual difficulties.

Society families will see prospective parents, sent to them by the Montreal welfare centre and other adoption agencies now promoting the idea. They plan to form advisory problems which may occur in such adoptions.

Problems may occur in these ways:

—Reaction of the couples' own children to the adopted child.

—Attitude of the older generation which often finds it hard to understand the reasons for such an adoption.

—Discrimination by neighbors.

—In school with classmates and teachers who do not know how to handle such children.

—With the adopted child when he or she reaches adolescence and the question of identity arises.

Mr. Rosenzweig, already father of two boys, said he has not run into any of these problems with his girl and does not think they will present themselves.

In any case, couples should feel strong enough to cope with any or all of these possible problems, first of all, before even considering taking any steps towards such an adoption, he said.

"My wife and I thought about the possibility for several years before making the final decision.

"We wanted to be ready."

What is most important is the motivation, the society spokesman said.

"Parents interested in adopting a black child have to be far more realistic than when adopting a white child," he said.

The motivation can be broken down into four areas:

—Being fully prepared to provide a concrete opportunity for the child to gain understanding of his race and identity.

—Develop contacts with people of his race.

—Endeavor to obtain information on the race, its cultures, traditions and history.

—Realize the need to have contacts with other multi-racial families.

What kind of parents adopt black children in Montreal?

The society spokesman said in most cases they are white middle-class families, who know what they want as a family and are well established although not necessarily financially, and who feel they have a home to offer.

More than 60 per cent of the prospective couples already have children, the prospective parents range in age from 29 to 40 "which is a fairly wide range."

Adoption agencies promote the idea of these adoptions and often ask the society to see and talk to interested couples.

The procedure for adopting a black child is the same as when adopting a white child.

Interested couples must apply to an adoption agency of their faith. Three group sessions of four couples each take place with a social worker to study the parents and their backgrounds. The parents must undergo a medical examination. A social worker also visits prospective parents in their homes.

There is a six-month trial period with regular visits by a social worker, then the final application is made.

Successful Living

Some Inclined to Be Dictatorial

By DORIS CLAKR

What do we do about the person who never gives up on instructing another — usually younger — family member, about how to do every last thing?

Jack responded to an instruction with, "Mother, you told me to do that last week!" Mother felt set back on her heels; was bewildered. What to do you stop?

From Jack's point of view the instruction was completely superfluous and somehow insulting, because it implied that he had no ideas or no initiative of his own.

It happens in the best of families and between older people too. Two sisters who live together keep right on instructing each other, well into their 50s and 60s and while it is taken mostly in good part a certain annoyance builds up.

Let's recognize that the motive behind it all is loving concern; the habit of thinking into the other fellow's problems. Habits die hard; but with gentle reminders, we can bring about things — change which keeps "life with mother" — or brother or wife — sweet and lovely.

Dear Doris: Your readers might be interested to know that there are Memorial Societies across Canada to help individuals pre-plan economic funerals when they can still think objectively. These groups advocate dignity, and moderate arrangements starting at $150 in many cases.

Societies now exist in Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Catharines and Hamilton. Anyone wishing to start one in another community could get some help by contacting Mrs. A. . Elder, in care of Toronto Memorial Society, 14 Sinton Court, Toronto.

Dear Secretary: I don't know why we tend to dodge any discussion about what happens when we die. I suppose we think that if we don't look at the prospect, it will go away! The clubbing together idea for funeral planning in advance is tops in my book.

Who can choose a casket and funeral service in a level-headed business — like way when he is shocked and grieved — and perhaps exhausted — with the passing of a loved one?

Memorial Societies have enlisted the services of local funeral directors who will make individual contracts ahead of time, at economical rates. I can supply addresses and further information to anyone writing in.

Dear Doris: I plan to go to Europe this fall and would like to know of addresses for hostels, whether you need a hostel pass, reasonable hotels to stay in, transportation rates, etc.

Where would you send for information about places to visit in Europe? — Going Places

Dear Going Places: In many countries, hostelling is the solution to travel on a limited pocket-book. Youth hostels are meeting places for young people of every nationality.

The hostels provide sleeping accommodation, usually in dormitories for men and women, washing facilities and a members' kitchen with the use of stove, pans, etc.

In most cases economical meals are prepared by house parents.

There are hostels right across Canada, too. Write to the Canadian Youth Hostels Association, 1406 Broadway, Vancouver, 9, B.C. for details. There is a membership to be had, handbook, a guide to Europe and other literature.

Happy hostling!

Both knows Canadian resources and can guide you to the help you need. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

MARMORA WI

MARMORA — The October meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Evelyn Murphy with Mrs. Ralph Neal presiding. Two guests were welcomed by the president.

Substituting for Mrs. Harold Nayler who is ill, the secretary reported several "Get Well" cards had been sent.

A rummage sale is planned for Saturday, Oct. 30 in the Senior Citizens' rooms of the Memorial Building. Coffee and doughnuts will be sold.

Education convener, Mrs. Cecil Neal, had arranged with principal, Jack Murphy for a tour of Marmora elementary school. At the Earl Prentice School the members visited the kindergarten, then the open area room where classes are held for 240 children with nine teachers, the library and the gymnatorium. In the entrance hall, members viewed a picture of the late Earl Prentice who was principal of Marmora School for 27 years, done in pastels by Mrs. Robert Borland.

At the Marmora Senior School WI members observed a French lesson being taught by William Flynn to a class of boys and girls, plus a French song. In the home economics room several of the girls were being taught to bake by their teacher, Miss Ludlow, while some others were sewing. In the gymnasium a group of boys were weight lifting under the direction of their teacher, Carl Pitman, Joseph McCauley, Industrial Arts teacher, showed the members the interesting articles the boys were making. The tour concluded at the resource room where Jack Murphy showed the teaching aids that are available to the children and teachers.

Mrs. E. Post was asked to present the WI bursaries at the Centre Hastings Secondary School Graduation Exercises to the winners Lynda Tompkins and Edward O'Connor.

Mrs. Charles Airhart asked the members to save odd bills of wool, crochet cotton and embroidery thread for the women at Sherrett House in Deloro.

Truffaldino (Douglas Chamberlain) the Servant of Two Masters is describing to pert maidservant Smeraldina the problem of sealing up a letter with chewed bread, since he had no sealing wax at hand, in the 18th century farce The Servant of Two Masters by Carlo Goldoni. The play will be performed November 2 and 3 at Centennial Secondary School, presented by The Quinte Arts Council and sponsored by Auto Haus Bell-ton.

Trenton halfback Don Armstrong has his feet knocked out from under him by a sprawling Napanee tackler in a Bay of Quinte COSSA football bout yesterday. A strong defensive showing by Trenton, and the offensive efforts of Armstrong helped the Tigers to a 19-0 victory in the semi-final contest. Trenton go on to meet Quinte Secondary School for the league championship next Tuesday with the winner of that match advancing to the COSSA finals.

Quintes Answer Two Questions With 5-2 Victory Over Galt

Two things were laid to rest at the Belleville Memorial Arena last night — the Galt Hornets and doubts about the success of the Belleville Quintes.

The local senior "A" entry showed that their 4-2 record his season was no fluke by handing the defending Allan Cup champions a 5-2 setback.

Some sharp netminding by Steve Reze, a few good bounces and even an offensive contribution by defenceman Lionel Botly helped the Quintes to their upset win over the Hornets, who ousted them from the OHA playoffs last season.

Rookie centre Paul Perras scored his third and fourth goals of the year to give the home team a 2-0 lead at the end of the first period.

Each team counted once in the middle frame despite the fact that Galt held a 16-11 advantage in shots on goal. After Galt had pulled to within one goal of the Quintes, winger Wayne McConnell was credited with a counter when a clearing pass from behind the Galt net bounced off a skate and past a startled Sonny Pennington.

Botly, a "steady Eddy" bulwark of the Belleville defence, made certain that one of his infrequent scoring efforts proved to be an important one. A goal by Pat Brennan had narrowed the Quintes' lead to 3-2 in the final frame before Botly got his marker. The Belleville rearguard carried the puck in from centre ice and fooled Pennington with a 15-footer for his team's fourth tally.

The final Belleville score came when Al Ferguson connected for his eighth goal of the season on a pass from team scoring leader George Godson.

Reze turned aside 37 shots in the Belleville nets, while Pennington fired 31 drives.

The game proved to be a mild affair with each team drawing only five minor penalties.

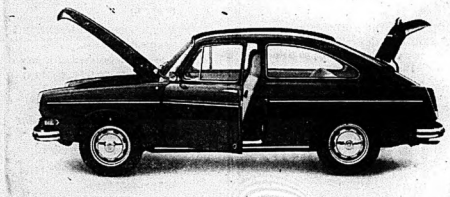
Trenton Seniors Take Offence

Napanee didn't take offence Friday, and it cost them a spot in the Bay of Quinte COSSA football finals.

Despite containing the powerful Trenton Seniors reasonably well, Napanee were unable to move the ball against a stubborn Tiger defence, absorbing a 19-0 loss which knocked them out of the league playoffs.

"I hope you'll mention the fact that we had to play four games in a week," said Napanee coach Eric Bartlett, "even the professionals don't have to play a schedule like that."



Trenton coach Tom Nuzo agreed that the opposition was working under a handicap. "Even disregarding the injuries that they've had, they must still be pretty sore from the games they've already played."

Both teams were considerably shorthanded for the Contest with Trenton missing three players including two-way standout Jim Ransom, while Napanee were minus their main offensive threat in flanker Raymond Lee. The Tigers also lost the services of star flanker Duncan Armstrong, who was ejected early in the contest for attempting to kick a Napanee player.

Charlie McDermott scored the only touchdown of the first half when he powered over from the one - yard line. McDermott and fellow halfback Don Armstrong were the main threats in the Trenton offence, with Armstrong playing particularly well throughout the contest.

Napanee's only offensive threats came from scrambling quarterback George Harris, a standout on both offence and defence. Harris prevented a second quarter Trenton score when he pulled McDermott down from behind after the Trenton back had broken into the clear.

McDermott added his second major of the game in the fourth quarter slashing in from the ten-yard line, while flanker Gord Kelly picked up the third Trenton major on a 30-yard pass reception.

No Place for Argonaut Complacency

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Derisive shouts of laughter followed Hamilton Tiger-Cats to their dressing room after last Sunday's comedy of ineptness against Ottawa Rough Riders.

The Ticats looked more kittens after blowing a 16-6 halftime lead and winding up on the short end of a 40-16 score.

But Toronto coach Leo Cahill isn't letting complacency enter into pre-game plans as his Eastern Football Conference champions, the Argonauts, prepare for a Tiger-Cat Invasion Sunday that concludes the EFC schedule.

The game, set for 2 p.m. EDT, will be carried on the CTV's eastern network.

In another season-ending game, this afternoon, the Rough-Riders were host to Montreal Alouettes. The game, scheduled for 2 p.m. EDT, was carried to the East by CBC-TV.

Psychologically, the Argos should be in a loose frame of mind. They captured first place three weeks ago and have been idle the last two weeks since absorbing a 28-7 thrashing by the Als.

But it will be another two weeks before they play again, having earned a bye into the two-game total-point EFC final with their first-place finish. And Cahill isn't about to let any bad habits form, either in practice or in a game.

"I'm beginning to wonder if this long layoff is doing more harm than good," Cahill said Friday after watching the team go through workouts. "I don't like the atmosphere on this team . . . they seem to be more interested in . . . who's going to finish second or third."

His biggest worry, however, is that the Ticats, who have either rallied consistently but play in recent games, are suddenly going to put it all together.

"They're so close to being a strong team," said the Argo coach of Sunday's opponents. "They have the running backs and Joe Zuger . . . They could put it all together in a hurry."

DOROW AGREES

Ticat coach Al Dorow, whose job has been rumored on the line regardless of the outcome of Sunday's game, agreed with Cahill that his Ticats should by looking to make amends for their recent outings.

He said the Ticats "want to get into the playoffs on our own, and that means beating Toronto."

Hamilton should have little trouble identifying one of Toronto's signal callers in Cahill's two-quarterback platoon system.

Joe Theismann, the ex-Notre Dame star, announced this week he was joining team-mate George Wells in donning baby blue shoes, making his whereabouts known to those defensive linemen who don't bother looking for numbers but move doggedly ahead.

Western Teams On See-saw

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The see-saw battle for first place between Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders will be settled in the climax of regular-season play this weekend in the Western Football Conference.

Stampeders play British Columbia Lions in Vancouver tonight and Saskatchewan travels to Edmonton to meet the Eskimos Sunday as the regular season ends.

Calgary and Saskatchewan are tied with 19 points each on identical records of nine wins, five losses and a tie.

Roughriders need a win or a tie, plus a Calgary loss, to finish first. Calgary needs only a win, no matter how Saskatchewan fares, because it has a better points-for-and-against average in games against the Riders.

First place is especially important because the second-place team must meet the third-place finisher in a sudden-death match.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers already are assured of third spot.

The weekend encounters also will decide who finishes last in the conference. B.C. now holds a one-point edge over cellar-dwelling Eskimos.

Stampeders will be doing some juggling with punters tonight as defensive back Billy Van Burkleo has a separated shoulder and is not likely to play again this year. Coach Jim Duncan could start with linebacker Jim Young or punt-return specialist Jim Sillye in the punting department.

Reggie Holmes, from Wisconsin state and Minnesota Vikings, will take the defensive cornerback position where John Henderson had replaced Van Burkleo earlier when he was out with a leg injury. Henderson could go in as a wide receiver where he played with Washington Redskins last year and caught 14 passes for three touchdowns in five games.

Saskatchewan coach Dave Skrien says his strategy in the game against Edmonton will depend on the outcome of Saturday's game.

"If the Stampeders win, we will undoubtedly use a lot more of our less-experienced players than if a first-place finish is up for grabs," he said. "But we have to prepare to win this one."

Centre Ron Capham, who was sidelined several weeks ago with an ankle injury, has been reactivated. But Larry Jim is expected to start at centre for Roughriders.

Coach Skrien also said defensive back Jim Walter may be healed enough to play Sunday.

Ray Jauch says he would like Edmonton to finish the season in fourth with five straight wins, "but Saskatchewan looks like one of the best, if not the best, team in Canada right now."

The Roughriders will be tough to defend against since "they've got over their injuries and everything has come together," he said. "But, our new people are doing things well, so it should be a good fight."

Leading the B.C. attack will be Jim Evenson, who is out to win the Canadian Football League rushing title. He has a total of 1,198 yards on the ground, 78 more than rival George Reed of Saskatchewan.

McKenny Main Worry

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three National Hockey League games in as many nights don't worry coach John McKenzie so much as they do defenceman Jim McKenny.

It's the only three-games-in-three-nights marathon of the season for Toronto Maple Leafs and results from the Oct. 13 death of Gardens' president Stafford Smythe.

Toronto and Detroit Red Wings were scheduled to open the Leafs' home season that night but the game was postponed until Monday, Nov. 1, out of respect for the Toronto executive.

The Toronto weekend starts tonight at home against Minnesota North Stars and continues Sunday in New York with the Rangers. The Red Wings, meanwhile, visit Montreal Canadiens tonight, entertaining Pittsburgh Penguins Sunday and then move over to Toronto Monday.

Sport Briefs

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — Bob Foster defends his share of the light heavyweight title tonight in a scheduled 15 round bout against little-known, unranked Tommy Hicks, an Ithica, N.Y., teacher. This marks the second time in less than a year Foster will fight in this eastern Pennsylvania city. He knocked out Hal Carroll of Syracuse in four rounds here last March. Foster, of Washington, D.C., owns only half the title he took by knockout from Dick Tiger in May, 1966, and has defended successfully six times. Last year, the World Boxing Association withdrew its recognition of Foster, alleging the champion had not defended within reasonable time against a ranked contender.

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Young Mike Quarry won the North American light-heavyweight boxing title Friday on an unintentional butt in the fifth round of a scheduled 12-round match with Jimmy Du Pree. Each fighter weighed 174. The title was vacant before the fight. Quarry was leading on points when the fight came to an abrupt halt after 2:06 of the fifth round. The 30-year-old Du Pree had whacked the 20-year-old Quarry below the belt, and the Anaheim youngster asked for time to recuperate. Suddenly it developed that his left eye had been gashed open.

Gravelle, Keech Each Count

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Smiths Falls Bears and Ottawa Rangers moved in front of the five-team Central Junior Hockey League Friday night with a pair of six-goal victories.

The Bears beat Pembroke Lumber Kings 6-3, and the Rangers held on to take Brockville Braves 6-4.

The results left the Bears and Rangers tied at the top of the league each with 10 points. The Kings and the Braves at the bottom with six points and Hull Volants in between with eight points.

The Bears led all the way in Smiths Falls and got two goals from Shawn Howard and one each from Steve Hull, Terry Fournier, Rick Kerfoot and John Cressile. Mike Nixon, with two goals, and Steve Croucher replied for the Kings.

At Brockville, the Braves hied the surging Rangers to a 4-4 tie until John McIntosh got the winner at the 16-minute mark of the third period.

Tests of Products Do Not Protect Hypersensitive Persons

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

I've mentioned once or twice that fancy toilet paper can cause rectal itching, and folks who have run into that trouble may be interested in the following, from William V. Driscoll, of the American Paper Institute:

"The dyes and scents used by members of the tissue industry are all thoroughly analysed and medically tested periodically to ensure their safety. If they are subjected to dermatological patch testings to make certain there will be no adverse effects for the consumer.

"With respect to the scents used in our industry, I must point out that they are generally added to the core stock of the bathroom tissue roll or the wrapper, and are not an integral part of the toilet tissue sheet itself. In other words, the scent is not on the toilet tissue itself."

From that information, I would guess that I was probably wrong in suspecting scented paper. Some people are allergic to perfumes, but I would doubt that a scented core or wrapper would have much effect.

But colored tissue sometimes does cause trouble. I've seen cases of exposed to colored tissue; the majority of us use it without trouble. I find it irritating, and sensible, that the manufacturers do the testing that Mr. Driscoll describes.

One also gets a little tired of the tendency to accuse "big business" of not caring about the quality of its products. It's only common sense to try to produce what the public will like.

Anyway, as to tissues — or just about anything else — you just test till the cows come home, but you aren't going to be able to foresee individual sensitivities, or allergies.

Some folks are hypersensitive to cosmetics, jewelry, the nickel in a five - cent piece, girdles, milk, carbon paper, ink, no-iron clothes, green vegetables, whole wheat, nylon and you name it. So it's not surprising that some happen to be sensitive to coloring matter in paper, even though most of us aren't. It's something worth suspecting if you have rectal itching without any other discoverable cause.

I even had one (but only one) letter from an individual who had trouble because modern paper is too soft. Her doctor (or maybe it was a man, I don't recall) suggested using a harder-surface tissue, and the itching and irritation subsided — although most of us, of course, prefer our soft American papers to the hard-surfaced stuff that travellers complain about in foreign countries.

Anyway, the fact remains that people aren't identical, and nobody knows that better than a doctor.

Dr. Thosteson: Supposing a man has been sterilized and the operation cannot be reversed, would it be possible to extract his sperm and use it for artificial insemination? — E. B.

There is a procedure called testicular biopsy which will show whether viable sperm is being produced, but this is essentially used in testing male infertility.

I'm told that this has not proved practical for artificial insemination, so I think your answer is a plain no.

Dr. Thosteson: Please say something about a ruptured navel. Is it necessary to have it corrected? I am 42. It sometimes drains and gets inflamed. — Mrs. C. M.

It doesn't sound like a rupture. It does sound like an infection, and you may be in for some painful experience if you don't have your doctor treat it.

What the Stars Say Today

Sunday, October 31

General guide—This year's Halloween stars definitely promise more treats than tricks. There's an expansive, generous mood operating, especially this afternoon and evening. Don't turn youngsters away empty-handed.

Aries (March 21-April 19). Proposals and invitations that were previously made should be ignored and only new opportunities that arise today should be taken advantage of. The source could be a complete stranger.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). You'll find more than enough to keep you busy all by yourself, so don't pout. If friends aren't clamoring for your company. Solitude now can be downright enjoyable.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). Splendid opportunities exist to make some new friends this afternoon. You may have to escape from your local scene to find them, but the contacts will be rewarding.

Cancer (June 22-July 22) .You can be the centre of attention, even if it's only in your family circle, today. Plan entertainment or outings that the home folks can participate in.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). Your record influence can be temporarily replaced by a sunny, hopeful attitude that others find irresistable. Nothing should materialize today to dampen your spirits.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The family will be eager to accept your proposals now. If you need financial backing, this will be just as readily given. Promise to share the profits, though.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). You'll be happy to learn that a reckless, headstrong mate has finally seen the light and is now willing to follow your advice, at least to a good behavior.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). Any items purchased today should be functional as well as decorative. You really don't need any more junk that sits on the shelf.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Loved ones respond to your actions enthusiastically. The chance for romantic lovemaking to achieve lasting understandings and happiness is very possible.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). The day should be spent only with family and close kin. Certain skeletons may be brought out of the closet with explanations proving to be amusing.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Friends who live at a distance or who've been absent a long time should be contacted without further delay. 'you've been remiss in maintaining ties.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). If you've got the status or authority it might be a good idea to let the fact be known. Celebrities seldom have to wait in line.

BORN TODAY — Choose your confidants carefully this year, especially in January. Important secrets can become grist for the office rumor mill, jeopardizing your professional position.

Monday, November 1

General Guide—Nixon's use of executive authority can reach unprecedented limits this week as his latest directives are enforced. Despite the immediate criticism that he's negating the democratic process, his actions will eventually prove to be one of the administration's major successes.

Aries (March 21-April 19). Follow up yesterday's decisions by getting preliminary financial arrangements made. Be peerless if required to share the expenses of a joint venture.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). After a basic agreement has been reached with allies, you can expect to have the sole authority to execute plans. Silent partners will remain on the sidelines.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). If you can overcome some initial laziness this morning, you'll be able to get a lot done today. Energies seem to increase as the day wears on. Don't just sit around.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Everyone usually feels his own offspring are the world's great est but your loved ones stand to outdistance the rest now. Youngsters can make you quite proud.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). Regardless of what's going on in the public sectors of your life, you'd better give top priority to those interests now. Your family can have the last word in any decision.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Diplomacy may be a necessary tactic for others but when you uncover the real facts, today they should be presented in a straight-forward manner. Don't beat around the bush.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22). Quality wins over quantity in any purchases made today. Spend for items that will last or increase in value as the months pass.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21). You can amaze even those who are familiar with your stubbornness by refusing to quit some professional race. Determination and fixity are the only qualities that can win now.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Any deals consummated are the best kept quiet. Family talks in particular could be nosing around but your behavior must appear perfectly normal.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Professional aims can receive a big lift if you're willing to mix a bit of pleasure with business. Don't discount the potential benefits gained through social contacts.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). When a higher-up bungles the job, this could provide an easy opening for you to step in and save the day. Don't be afraid of stepping on any executive toes.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). There could be a new focus on the job that relates to foreign travel. Is it necessary to have it corrected? I am 42. It sometimes drains and gets inflamed. — Mrs. C. M.

Authority Wants Action on Litter

The Ontario Department of Highways could take a leaf from the book of western provinces in its fight against highway littering.

That is the feeling of the Moira River Conservation Authority education advisory committee which thinks a resolution should go to the province recommending a similar anti-litter campaign for Ontario.

In Manitoba globular "Orbit" garbage containers are spaced periodically along the roadway. And out in British Columbia garbage containers at highway rest spots take the form of funny fake animals — the idea apparently to help make youngsters tidy conscious.

In Manitoba the "Orbit" containers are well advertised by advance notices along the highway.

At its meeting this week the Moira Authority committee decided all available information should be obtained from the western provinces concerning their highway litter control program with the view of preparing a resolution for the 1972 Conservation Authorities' Conference.

The committee also will recommend to next year's Authority a newspaper publicity program on the invertance of each person's responsibility for pollution control.

Also litter bags will be purchased for distribution with 1972 licence plates sold by the Belleville license issuer.

The bidding:

Opening lead—two of spades.

Let's say you're in three notrump and West leads a spade. You win the queen with the king and find there are only seven sure winners —a spade, a heart, two diamonds and three clubs.

There are several ways of acquiring two more tricks. The jack of clubs may fall as you cash the A-K-Q, making the ten a trick; you may pick up a trick with a heart finesse; or you can gain two tricks if the diamonds are divided 3-2 and East has the queen.

No harm can come from first cashing the A-K of clubs, and, when you do, both defenders fallow low. You should then shift your attention to diamonds by playing a low one to the ace and sending one back to the king. With East showing out, your chances in that suit quickly disappear.

Now you play a low heart to the jack, and when the finesse wins you at last have established an eighth trick.

You could next lead a club to the Q-10, but you would be faced with a difficult problem if East followed low. You would not know whether to play the ten or the queen, since either play might prove to be eminently right or wrong.

A much better idea is to cash the ace of hearts first. This play has two advantages. One is that the king may fall on the ace. The other is that if it doesn't you will know considerably more about West's hand.

In the actual case, West plays the ten on the ace and this tells you that West—who obviously started with four spades, three hearts and four diamonds—had only two clubs originally.

Accordingly, you lead a club and finesse the ten, supremely confident that it will produce trick number nine.

Joey Could Lead Again

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — With Joey Smallwood's Liberals defeated by narrower-than-expected margins in Thursday's provincial election, Newfoundland's immediate political future remained obscure today.

Frank Doff Moores, 38-year-old Progressive Conservative leader whose party won half the 42 legislature seats, said he expected to be asked within two weeks by the lieutenant-governor to form a new government. Mr. Moores said he would be naming his future cabinet during the weekend.

Mr. Smallwood, the only man to serve as Newfoundland premier since the province joined Canada in 1949, gave no indication that he believed his 22-year term was about to end.

"I will carry on with the business of government," the 70-year-old premier said in an interview not long after it was announced that the PCs had won 21 seats, the Liberals 20 and the New Labrador Party one.

"The process of law will be followed," he said in reference to expected recounts in several constituencies and legal actions which the premier said were anticipated into "alleged irregularities" in some districts. Mr. Smallwood said that should the Liberals still trail the PCs after these developments he would sit for perhaps one term as opposition leader and then call a party leadership convention.

Meanwhile, Mr. Moores said he had consulted a constitutional expert and had been advised that it would be proper for him to be asked to form the government.

He added that he did not know whether any change of government would go smoothly because "Mr. Smallwood is dancing around so."

Parliamentary experts in Ottawa said there is nothing legally to stop Mr. Smallwood from forming a government and facing the legislature.

The balance of power in the new legislature could rest with Tom Burgess, the New Labrador Party leader. However, neither the Liberals nor the Conservatives were believed to have made a direct pitch to Mr. Burgess because telephone communications to Labrador were disrupted.

Mr. Burgess has said that he will "go along" with the party that promises the best concessions to Labrador.

Mr. Moores said that if he forms the government and if he is subsequently defeated on his legislative program "we will go back to the people for a man date."

He admitted that the election had left him short of a working majority—"It's not a majority at all."

He planned no deals with any of the Liberal candidates who were elected.

The outcome of the election was not known until 17 hours after the polls closed Thursday night. Delays in counting votes from certain polls and close races in some ridings contributed to the delays and created an agonizing wait for the politicians.

The outcome was a stunning departure from post-Confederation tradition in Newfoundland politics. After leading the province into union with Canada, Mr. Smallwood scored six straight election victories until finally in 1966 his Liberals won 39 of the 42 seats. The PCs took three.

Frank Moores, the Newfoundla nd Progressive Conservative party leader, receives enthusiastic hugs from his daughters, Susan, 18, left, and Debbie, 17, shortly after he came out of more than five hours seclusion during which he assessed the results of Thursday's provincial election. With the results still in doubt early Friday morning, Mr. Moores said he is wondering whether he is "premier of the province or leader of the opposition." (CP Photo)

Political Future Uncertain

OTTAWA (CP) — There is confusion in several Liberal Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland from forming a new government, despite the fact the Conservatives have more seats, parliamentary authorities said here Friday.

While it is a generally-accepted principle that the party with the greatest number of seats forms the government, the authorities said there is nothing to prevent Mr. Smallwood from forming a new government and facing the legislature.

Mr. Smallwood's Liberals came out of the election with 20 seats—one fewer than the Conservatives. The New Labrador Party holds one seat.

In the book, Office of Lieutenant-Governor, Prof. John T. Saywell of York University says that if there is no clear majority in a provincial election, the government can choose to test its strength. If it is defeated, "convention suggests" that the lieutenant-governor must call on the leader of the Opposition to lead a government.

Authorities here, asked whether Mr. Smallwood could call another election after being defeated in a vote of confidence, said no.

"There would be no alternative for the lieutenant-governor in a case like this—he would have to call on the leader of the Opposition to form a government."

Should a Conservative government be formed, and it in turn be defeated in a confidence vote, an election could then be called.

Drinking Railroaders Now Have Counsellor

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Canadian National Railways has established a program to help alcoholics in its Atlantic region work force.

A full-time counsellor has been appointed to assist employees, and seminars are being organized for supervisors to help them identify employees with problems and take steps to have them rehabilitated.

In outlining the program, D. N. MacKenzie, assistant to the Maritime area manager, said surveys of all industries have shown an average of from three to six per cent of employees are problem drinkers.

He said alcoholism is no worse among Canadian National employees than it is among workers in other companies.

"The choice is either to pretend the problem doesn't exist or to look into it. The more you look into this problem, the more urgent becomes the need to do something about it."

He said CN's new approach towards helping alcoholics does not mean a relaxation of company rules regarding drinking or being under the influence of alcohol on the job.

"If anything, our supervisors will be more alert than ever to these situations. There now will be less temptation for anyone to cover up in these instances because more people will realize that this does nothing but harm for the person they are seeking to help."

Part of CN's program involves enlisting the services of organizations such as Alcoholics Anonymous to help the individual and his family get back to normal.

Today's Telegram Collectors' Item

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Telegram died today at the age of 95.

It was born on an April morning in 1876 and during the course of its lifetime chronicled many of the important events in this country's history.

John Ross Robertson, who was to become a colossus of Canadian journalism, stuffed the first sheet of a four-sheet newspaper into the press himself.

He had borrowed $10,000 to start the paper, but it was such a success from the beginning he never had to cash the cheque.

The first run of 2,480 copies was sold out within an hour.

Today, when The Telegram died, its presses roading defiantly, it ran to more than 80 pages and left 225,000 daily readers, 1,200 employees, and every legitimate newspaper man in Canada to mourn its passing.

When The Telegram started you could buy a first-class dress shirt for $1.50 and a bucket of beer for a dime. The population of Toronto was 71,693 and growing by leaps and bounds.

The Telegram grew with the city.

Its circulation climbed to 25,000 by 1881 and in 1918, when John Ross Robertson died, it was more than 100,000.

For 26 years after the death of John Ross Robertson—who spent much of his newspaper fortune in making the Hospital For Sick Children one of the largest pediatric hospitals in the world—The Telegram was run by trustees.

By that time, Toronto Star had caught up and passed The Telegram as Canada's largest newspaper, and the days were long gone when John Ross Robertson used to lend his delivery carts to his struggling rival to keep The Star alive.

In 1947, when some Telegram editors began looking for backers in hopes of saving the paper, C. H. J. Snider, a trustee, said: "Don't you realize the last feather has been plucked from this chicken?"

He was wrong by 24 years.

On Nov. 25, 1948, The Telegram got its second publisher, C. George McCullagh, the blunt and dynamic publisher of The Globe and Mail, bought the newspaper for $3.61 million.

He promised a vigorous and determined fight in an effort to knock The Star from its top position. But The Star's circulation stood at an overpowering 325,000 to the Tely's 190,000 and the smaller paper never caught up.

Mr. McCullagh died in 1952 and The Telegram got its third and last publisher, John Bassett, six-foot-four native of Ottawa, bought the paper for $4.25 million with the backing of department-store tycoon John David Eaton.

Mr. Bassett described his paper's position as "independent Canadian" and, like his predecessor, made vigorous attempts to cut into The Star's lead.

He attempted to launch a Sunday newspaper in 1957 and lost $500,000 when Torontonians wouldn't buy it.

In 1963 he moved the paper to its third and last home, a gleaming modern plant on Front Street. The paper was first published from there on Monday, Oct. 13.

Eight years and 17 days later, the paper died there.

It announced last month that the paper was closing. Mr. Bassett said it lost $2 million in 1969 and 1970 and estimated another $1-million loss this year.

Globe Buys Tely Plant

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail has bought the building and equipment of The Telegram which ceases publication today, Globe general manager E. B. Richards said Friday.

Mr. Richards said the deal, for an undisclosed sum, will be concluded Monday.
